Pauley Is Summoned Today to Tell Senators Of Dealings in Grain

Aide to Royall Ordered to Bring All Records of 1947 Transactions

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Edwin W. Pauley, special assistant to Secretary of the Army Royall, last night was summoned to appear before the Senate Appropriations Committee today to tell of his speculation in grain and other commodities.

The summons for Pauley was ordered after Royall had divulged to the committee that Pauley had told him he had been speculating in foodstuffs before his Army appointment September 3.

The summons calls for Pauley to appear at 10:30 a. m., with all records of his dealings since January 1.

Pauley Admits Holdings

Pauley last night issued a fighting statement, declaring frankly, "Yes, I have holdings in grain."

"I have been informed," he declared, "that, if I chose to be legalistic, I could probably stand very properly on my rights of privacy as my personal business transactions have not been in any way connected with my official duties. I do not choose to be legalistic."

Pauley related that he had informed Secretary Royall of his holdings before accepting his new position, and declared "that my conduct has been such that I feel no occasion for apology, and have no intention of accepting any suggestion that I am subject to censure."

Pauley said his operations were undertaken "to protect myself and my family" from inflation.

Truman Stand Discounted

He refused to his refusal to answer a telegram from Harold E. Stassen, candidate for Republican nomination for President, by saying:

"After all, one does not discuss his personal business with every Tom, Dick and Harold who happens to simulate a curiosity."

Pauley took a position directly opposite to that of President as to the effect of market speculation upon prices of food commodities.

"Let us not be deluded," he said, "by the pretense that trading in commodities is the cause of the price situation, even though certain loose charges to that effect have been tossed about by some political parties and candidates."

Royall broke into a committee discussion of Army policies in Germany to make his statement. His remarks set off a rumpus that disrupted proceedings for more than half an hour.

He added that he knew Pauley "was the owner of certain commodities" when he was appointed special assistant early in September.

Agreed to Sell Holdings

He said that Pauley had agreed not to engage in any further speculation after his appointment, and to dispose of his holdings "as quickly as possible" after taking advantage of the capital gains tax.

Royall then read a statement from Pauley in which the latter said that "My agreement with you has, of course, been carried out scrupulously. I have not only not increased my holdings but have decreased them."

He then added that "I am liqui-

'No Occasion for Apology'

Pauley Says His Grain Deals Were Legitimate Transactions

The text of the statement issued last night by Edwin W. Pauley, Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Army, regarding his dealings in commodity markets, follows:

Members of the Congress have indicated an interest in knowing whether I have or have not bought or sold grain or other commodities.

I have been informed that, if I chose to be legalistic, I could probably stand very properly on my rights of privacy, as my personal business transactions have not been in any way connected with my official duties. I do not choose to be legalistic.

As to the principal question in which members of the Congress have expressed interest, the answer is:

Yes, I have holdings in grain. As a businessman I have dealt in grain for many years. I have also dealt in securities, in petroleum and petroleum products, in rubber, in real estate, and in other legitimate enterprises. And, just so there may be no suggestion of lack of frankness on my part, the purpose of these activities was the making of a profit.

I do not believe that it has been seriously suggested that trading commodities is not a perfectly proper and ethical form of business investment, just as trading in merchandise is a perfectly proper and ethical form of business investment. I, therefore, feel no occasion for apology for my transactions in commodities.

When I was requested by Secretary Royall to accept appointment as his Special Assistant, I told him that I was the owner of certain commodities, and that we would both, of course, want it specifically understood between us that I was not to act on behalf of the Department of the Army, directly or indirectly, in any transaction involving commodities in which I had a financial interest; and that I would not request, receive or have access to any Department of the Army information relating to such transactions.

As I stated i na memorandum to the Secretary on December 10, my agreement with him has been carried out and I have materially decreased my holdings, in spite of the fact that this has resulted in very great personal loss to me.

I have at all times meticulously avoided any participation, direct or indirect, in any discussions or transactions by or with representatives of the Department of the Army, involving any of these commodities. Moreover, I have not at

Arabs Slay 10 Jews in Road Convoy

Killings Increase As 40 Die in Day; Iron Ring Being Put About Holy Land

Jerusalem, Dec. 11 (AP).—Arab gunmen ambushed a five-truck convoy on the Jerusalem-Hebron road tonight and killed 10 Jewish settlers and wounded 3 others before Jewish policemen drove them off in a gun battle.

Forty persons were killed in fighting throughout Palestine today—highest single day's toll since the United Nations partition decision touched off the battling November 29.

In the 12 days, 171 persons have been killed in Palestine and 287 in the entire Middle East, an Associated Press count showed.

Victims of the attack on the convoy were members of the Hatoel and Hamizrachie settlements in the vicinity, endowed with American funds.

Jews and Arabs shot it out in Jerusalem's old Walled City within sight of the Holy Sepulcher and battled each other in bloody engagements in Haifa, where the day's death toll was eight.

Haifa Fighting Resumes

Haifa sources said fighting broke out aagin there tonight with a counterattack by the Jewish defense militia Hagana against the port city's Arab quarter, Wadi Rushmiya. These sources said a dozen Arabs were wounded by bombs and gunfire. Hagana reported it had blown up a house from which Arabs directed fire that killed two persons yesterday.

Another Hagana report said five Jews from the Mishmar Hanegev settlement in the southern desert, missing since last night, were found dead today.

Accounts from the capitals of neighboring Arab nations said the putting of a ring of troops around Palestine had begun in earnest. Arab desert fighters were reported moving up to Palestine's borders and also assuming positions for the attempted encirclement of Jewish communities in the Holy Land.

Jews Denounce Partition

Throughout the Arab world other than Palestine a semblance of normalcy prevailed. But it was a normalcy that caused outnumbered Jews in Arab cities like Damascus, Baghdad and Cairo to bar their doors and affirm their loyalty to their Arab state passports and their hatred to partition.

Fighting in the ancient sacred section of Jerusalem swirled not only near the Holy Sepulcher but also close to the Wailing Wall and the Mosque of Omar. At least four Arabs were killed and several Jews and Arabs wounded. Shooting began after a group of Arabs occupied a synagogue and raised a Moslem flag over it.

A Christian cleric said the fighting assumed "full-scale battle proportions."

In normal times the walled area has a population of approximately 20,000 Arabs, 2500 Jews and 4000 other mixed nationality—mostly Armenians and Greeks.

Communal fighting was particularly bitter in Haifa, a port city in northern Palestine. Five Arabs died and 30 were injured when a bomb wrecked a Lebanese bus. A military sentry killed another Arab near the internment camp at Latrum.

A British sentry at a military hospital in Haifa was fired upon by four Jews. He killed one of the attackers, an announcement said.

20 Believed Dead in Crash Of Transport

18 Bodies Reported Taken From Wreck Of Army Plane on Tennessee Hillside

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 11 (AP).—An Army C-47 plane with 20 persons reported aboard crashed on a wooded hillside near here early tonight.

First reports indicated that all its occupants had perished.

Lieut. Frand E. Sass, chief of Army Crash Rescue Squads at the Memphis Airport, said that 13 bodies had been taken from the wreckage a few minutes after the crash. A little later, the Memphis Commercial Appeal said that its reporters had counted 18.

Reports of the crash were radioed to Memphis by the crew of a Memphis Light, Gas & Water Co. truck in the area—near Whitehaven, Tenn.

The crash occurred about two miles directly south of the Memphis airport. Observers said the plane may have struck the radio directional towers which send out aviation beams.

In Atlanta, the CAA reported it was informed the plane is an Army C-47 transport, but that it did not know how many persons were abaoard. However, the Commercial-Appeal said it had learned from Army personnel at El Paso that the ship was en route from that base to Aberdeen, Md., with 20 persons aboard.

The Atlanta CAA reported there was a ceiling of 1700 feet at the time. Early reports gave no indicated cause for the tragedy.

Helicopter Rescues Three of 6 Survivors

Westover Field, Mass., Dec. 11 (AP).—Three of the six survivors of an ATC transport plane crash which claimed the lives of 23 others at midnight Tuesday were evacuated by helicopter tonight from icy Labrador wastelands to Goose Bay, Newfoundland.

A Westover Field Army spokesman said he had no names and no report on the condition of the survivors, who were trapped in the forested wilderness north of the Royal Canadian Air Force Field at Goose Bay.

He added that, weather permitting, other survivors and the bodies of the 23 victims will be taken out by helicopter during the night.

Ground rescue parties, who reported they were able to move only 1 mile an hour over the ice, bog and heavy brush, also will be flown out of the area.

Three Doctors Flown In

Three doctors were flown in through a snow and sleet storm to give emergency treatment.

Only one of the crew of 10 on the transport survived, Staff Sergt. William J. Bubak, flight clerk.

The five other survivors were passengers returning to the United States:

Lieut. Col. Harry J Bullis, who is assigned to the ATC base in Newfoundland; Lieut. J. M. Bickley, Abilene, Tex.; Sergt. Joseph P. Stefanowicz, Warren, Ohio; Corpl. John H. Staner, Harrisburg, Pa., and Corpl. G. L. Harder, Fort Wayne, Ind.

The names of the dead were withheld pending notification of their families.

For Harder, it was the second time he was rescued in the Arctic within a month. A C-47 made a risky landing in Clyde River on November 11 to remove him from an isolated Baffin Bay outpost to

House Passes Aid Bill For Full 590 Millions; Conferees Meet Today

Inadequate, Truman Indicates

House Committee Approves Republican Controls Bill

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Ignoring a repeated demand by President Truman for his full, 10-point, anti-inflation program, House Republicans yesterday reported out of committee their fractional, "voluntary" inflation-control bill. The President indicated it was inadequate.

The measure, approved by a 14-to-9 vote of the House Banking and Currency Committee yesterday afternoon, came within an ace of failing to win majority support, it was learned.

The first vote on it was 12 to 12, Republican Representatives Hull (Wis.) and Smith (Ohio) voting with the Democratic opponents, and Stratton (Ill.) abstaining. A motion was carried to reconsider the vote and on a second tally, all three Republicans rejoined their colleagues, while Democrats Hayes (Ark.) and Folger (N. C.) refrained from voting.

The bill, approved by GOP congressional leaders, provides:

Extension of expiring controls over exports and rail transportation.

Increase of Federal Reserve Board gold reserves against deposits and currency issues, and Freedom from antitrust prosecution for business groups entering into Government-sponsored voluntary agreements for allocations and priorities.

At his press conference yesterday morning, President Truman declined to comment directly on the measure. But he declared that the anti-inflation program he wanted was the one he outlined in his message to Congress at the beginning of the special session.

He said he wanted it carried out to the letter and anything short of that would be inadequate to do the job.

Undismayed by those remarks, Chairman Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the House Banking and Currency Committee said the GOP bill embodied the voluntary control methods which the President asked for in his message, and that that was all he was going to get get at this time.

"We'll see how he uses these weapons before we give him more," he said. "If the President doesn't want the bill, he doesn't have to sign it."

President Truman had said he could state positively that another bill would be sent to Congress in a couple of days, covering his recommendations on wage and

Measure Rushed Through by Martin; Wheat Carryover Proviso Included

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A 590-million-dollar foreign-relief bill, to help France, Italy and Austria combat communism through the winter, yesterday passed the House by a resounding voice vote.

No roll-call tally was taken. Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., snapped the bill through with such speed that proponents and some foes of the program said they had no opportunity to ask one.

Martin merely smiled and said he heard no requests for a roll call.

As passed after six days of turbulent debate, the bill carried the committee-recommended aid total, despite repeated attempts to change it.

This provided 67 million dollars less for western Europe than the Administration asked and the Senate approved. The reduction resulted from an unrequested 60 million dollars China relief item, diverting that amount from western Europe.

Amendment Approved

House Appropriations Committee leaders flatly told the House no funds for China will be included in the enabling appropriation. This may mean that an appropriation of no more than 530 million dollars will be reported to the House.

One more weakening amendment was written into the bill before the final vote. Sponsored by Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.), it was modified by the House to require a minimum 150 million bushels wheat carry-over in this country "to protect the economy . . . and to insure against a scarcity of bread for domestic consumption."

Bill managers voiced concern that such a tie-up of wheat might cripple the program and looked to the forthcoming House-Senate conference to change this and one or two other "strait-jacket" amendments.

House Conferees Named

House conferees were immediately named and arranged to meet with Senate managers at 10 o'clock this morning.

Clashes between Republican and Democratic leaders, with "playing politics" charges freely bandied, ushered in the last day of one of the longest and loudest debates in recent House history.

Both friends and bitter-end foes of the bill lamented the failure of the House to go on record. The Senate had approved its own unimpaired 597 million dollars by an overwhelming 83 to 6 record vote. House managers claimed the opposition in their own chamber would have tallied no more than 50 on a roll call. They said they would demand that the House go on record when conferees report the bill for final passage.

A motion to recommit the bill was likewise defeated without a roll call. The recommit move came from Representative Glen D. Johnson (Okla.), a freshman Democrat.

Added to the bill before Martin sped it to conference was a June

Chest Still 19% Short as Drive Closes

Solicitations to Be Extended in Effort To Reach $3,900,000

The Community Chest Federation officially completed its campaign for 1948 funds yesterday, almost 20 per cent short.

The campaign will be extended "as long as it is fruitful" in an attempt to obtain the $726,258 needed to complete the 1948 budget quota of $3,900,000, drive leaders said.

Campaign Chairman Edward H. Foley, jr., said 310,287 residents and firms of greater Washington had contributed or pledged $3,173,741.86 or 81.38 per cent of the quota.

A committee of the American Business Association, headed by J. A. Kamerow, has offered to try to raise 10 per cent of the deficit by recanvassing donors and those who have been solicited unsuccessfully. The offer will be considered today, Foley said.

At the final report meeting, held at the Annapolis Hotel, Foley declared he had "only one regret" that the $3,900,000 quota had not been reached, "and that is for the agencies we sustain." They are the ones that suffer, he said.

"There is no way we can make up the funds," he said, "unless we continue our efforts." Noting that the Chest Federation campaign this year "has been under heavy criticism," the campaign chairman, who is Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, declared "it has weathered the storm, and I hope this will demonstrate the Chest can go on, carrying out its great work."

Foley noted that about 50,000 less pledges had been made durnng the 30-day campaign than last

School Board Defends Blow, Webb Switch

Rep. Dirksen Told Shift Gives 1150 Pupils Full Time

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Use of Blow and Webb elementary school buildings as annexes to the Negro Browne Junior High School was defended in two actions yesterday by the Board of Education.

A six-page statement listing reasons why the two former white schools were transferred was sent to House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.).

A school board motion to dismiss a suit by three Browne pupils to prevent transfer to Negroes of the two annex buildings was filed in District Court.

School Board Statement

The statement, requested by Dirksen after Browne parents took their children out of school in protest, declared that the use of the two buildings placed 1150 part-time pupils on full time programs.

William B. Stinson, principal of Browne, reported that 771 students out of 1827 showed up for classes yesterday morning. Attendance at Blow and Webb buildings in the afternoon was 66 pupils, when 589 should have been occupying the buildings, week ago Wednesday.

The statement to Dirksen said that unless temporary use is made of Blow and Webb, "it is altogether likely that Browne Junior High School will have to be placed upon a triple-shift program, or several elementary schools in the neighborhood placed on a part-time basis to accommodate the overflow of junior high school children."

Enrollment to Grow

Browne enrollment now at 1836 in a building with a capacity of 888, will increase in February to to 1977, in September, 1948, to 2402, and in September, 1949, to 2550 pupils, the statement said.

The other three schools were transferred at the same time as Blow and Webb and for the same

General Strike Ties Up Rome; Troops Called

City's Police Unable To Control Crowds; Reds Make Threats

Rome, Dec. 11 (AP).—Detachments of Italy's three fighting services moved into Rome tonight after police had spent a harassed day trying to keep order among large crowds made idle by a paralyzing leftist general strike.

Day-long hopes of an early end of the strike, the first general walkout in Rome since pre-Fascist days, were shattered by the Communist-controlled Chamber of Labor in a communique which threatened "energetic methods of battle" if the government did not release all arrested strikers.

The chamber voted to reject government terms for winter unemployment relief in Rome and its province, assailed the government for alleged "Fascist methods" in attempting to break the strike. Christian Democrat labor leaders, who declared the strike had "political" purposes, were called "scabs."

Buck Jeeps Into Crowds

A battalion of regular army troops with full field equipment moved into Piazza Colonna when police, their patience wearing thin, began bucking their jeeps into crowds, which, for the most part, were good-humored but at times menacing.

Sailors were brought in to stand guard over the Navy Ministry, and air force personnel mounted a watch at Air Ministry installations.

Mounted police paraded through the center of the city and army armored vehicles toured the outskirts.

Few serious incidents were reported, however.

Police said 80 persons who appeared with unauthorized "civil police" armbands were arrested, and 50 or 60 other persons had been detained for attempting to blockade public buildings, obstructing traffic and forcing shops to close. Britain to Get Soviet Grain, Commons Told Trade Agreement Expected to Furnish 'Substantial Quantities'

London, Dec. 11 (U.P.).—Russia will ship to Britain a "substantial quantity" of coarse grain from the 1947 harvest under a trade agreement reached in Moscow, Harold Wilson, president of the board of trade, announced today.

Wilson told Commons he reached agreement in principle with Soviet negotiators on all aspects of a trade pact, including modification of the terms of repayment of 520-million-dollar British wartime credit to Russia.

He disclosed that he had agreed to meet Russian representatives at a future conference to form a "long-term" trade agreement.

Soviet Trade Minister A. J. Mikoyan promised that the grain would be ready in Black Sea ports within two to three weeks of signing of the final contract, Wilson said.

In reply to a question as to the price asked by Russia for the grain, Wilson said the "prices we agreed on were very fair and favorable in relation to the present prices ruling in the world market."

He gave no clew to the quantities of grain involved, but London newspapers speculated that Russia had offered Britain one million tons (37,300,000 bushels) of grain this year and renewed her offer of last July of 4,500,000 tons (1,678,500,000 bushels) to be delivered in the next three years.

They suggested that Soviet grain might enable Britain to abandon bread rationing next year.

Wilson told Commons that the trade agreement included quantities, prices and detailed terms of a contract under which Russia will ship grain to Britain in exchange for "certain goods" and a "supply of engineering equipment" from the United Kingdom.

British and Soviet trade experts are now drafting the formal agreement, Wilson said.

Boosts Favored In Beauty Culture Minimum Wages

The Beauty Culture Occupation Minimum Wage Conference has recommended that the minimum wage of workers in the industry here be increased drastically, it was announced yesterday.

The increases would boost the minimum wage allowed operators and most other classifications from the present $18 a week to $30.60 a week. Maids and cleaners in the industry would get an increase from the present $14.50 to $24 a week if the conference recommendations are adopted by the Minimum Wage Board.

The board will discuss the suggested increases at a meeting Tuesday.

Other recommendations include allowing employes $1.50 weekly if they furnish or launder their own uniforms, and a daily bonus of 95 cents if the spread of hours exceeds 10 hours or there is a split shift.

Federal Supplier Boosts Gasoline

Petrol Corp. in Baltimore, which sells much of its gasoline to the Federal Government here and in Philadelphia, boosted wholesale and retail prices yesterday on gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil.

Speeding G. W. Coed Slowed To Walk by Prosecutor, Dad

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

A Municipal Court prosecutor yesterday invoked parental authority to punish a coed for speeding.

The coed, Bette Light, 22-year-old George Washington University are student, will not be permitted to drive her shiny black 1947 Buick convertible for 30 days under the decision.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King decided that a judgment by the girl's father, Joseph Light, a contractor, would be a greater penalty than a $10 fine at a Municipal Court hearing.

Bette, who lives at 1436 Kennedy st. nw., was arrested Wednesday night by Motorcycle Policeman Francis Raymond and charged with driving her father's Packard 40 miles an hour on 16th st. nw. near Arkansas ave.

King asked if her father knew of the incident.

"Goodness, no," Bette replied, "please don't tell him."

King called her father and put the punishment up to him.

Light told a reporter he would take the keys to Bette's convertible coupe for one month. He added if she ever got into any other driving trouble, the car would be sold.

Bette surrendered the keys as she stepped through the front door "He jumped on me as soon as I walked into the house," she said.

Delinquency Charges Dropped

10 Prince Georges Parents Warned to Supervise Children

Ten Prince Georges County parents were warned in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday they may face criminal prosecution for failure to properly supervise their children.

The 10, mothers and fathers of 12 boys and girls ranging in age from 11 to 17, were freed by Judge Arthur P. Owens from charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors, after he handed out a stern warning that the county will not tolerate parental neglect.

Six of the defendants were the parents of six boys and girls who spent the night in a mired automobile near Greenbelt last week, while the other four were the mothers and fathers of six youngsters who were taken in by Hyattsville town police for frequenting a Hyattsville restaurant during early-morning hours.

Juvenile Court authorities withheld the names of the parents, inasmuch as they were found not guilty.

Under the new juvenile law, parents can be charged for permitting their children to remain away from home at hours deemed "unreasonable" by county officials, Judge Owens pointed out.

Following the closed hearings, Judge Owens said he dismissed the charges because he saw no clear-cut evidence the parents were responsible for their children's actions. He warned them, however, that they will be expected to keep a closer check on the

Worker Wields Pick-AxHandle On Striker at Fairlington

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Violence flared on the Fairlington strike front yesterday.

Striking maintenance workers clashed with employes on the job.

First outburst of fighting in the 5-day-old dispute at the huge housing project came at noon, when a worker wielded a pick ax handle against one of a group of union strikers whom he claimed had threatened him. No arrests have been made.

The incident brought charges from the union, Local 82, Building Service Employes Union, AFL, that the management is importing "armed strikebreakers" and "has now resorted to violence."

Both the union and representatives of the management, Fairmac Corp., said charges would be filed as a result of the fight. Each side claimed the other side struck first.

Another aspect of the dispute is that Arlington County yesterday discontinued its garbage collection in Fairlington. Charles E. V. Prins, public relations counsel for Fairmac, said services at the development, which houses more than 14,000 persons, would not be affected by this.

Prins said the corporation is fully prepared to continue normal service at Fairlington.

Yesterday's fight took place in front of the T. D. Thorne general store, at Braddock rd. and King

Senate Unit Summons Pauley To Tell of Deals in Grain dating my holdings as rapidly as possible consistent with the capital gains tax at very great personal loss to me."

The capital gains tax provision of the income tax law provides for a tax on profits of only 25 per cent on commodities held more than six months, instead of the much higher rate on normal income levied on transactions completed in less time.

Royall declared that Pauley's Army position did not "directly or indirectly permit him participation in or information about" any purchase of commodities by the Army.

Stassen Brought Out Name

Royall emphasized that his report on Pauley's operations was in answer to a request for a statement as to market operations of all officials and employes of the Army engaged in food procurement made by Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) late Tuesday.

He later admitted, however, that Pauley was not asked to make a statement until after the latter's name had been brought out by Harold E. Stassen, candidate for Republican nomination for President, in a speech at Doylestown, Pa., Wednesday night.

The statement required of Pauley, Royall declared, was different from that required of 300 other officials and employes of the department. This was because his position did not give him access to information as to Army grain purchases and because his operations in the market were already known by Royall. All others were required to state the amount of their transactions.

All but five of the 300 reported no grain dealings, Royall said, and those five only as farmers and raisers of grain.

Royall said he did not know the extent of Pauley's operations. When the committee asked that Pauley appear today with records showing all his dealings since January 1, Royall protested that such action was unfair.

If the committee proposed to question Pauley as to his dealings, and to ask similar statements from other appointive Government officials, Royall asserted, it should "propound the same inquiry to the members of the legislative, judicial and other branches of the Government."

In a heated discussion leading up to the demand for Pauley's appearance today, Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) termed Pauley's transactions "gambling in grain."

"You'll admit it was gambling, won't you?" Ball asked Royall.

"I've heard that term used," Royall replied.

Truman's Address Quoted

"I'm just quoting the President," Ball rejoined, and then read a portion of a radio address by President Truman in which these terms were used.

Senator Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.) declared that "those familiar with the grain trade know that Government purchases "have been the thing, more than anything else, to raise prices."

"It is worse than bad taste," Reed declared, "for any man holding any important Government position to engage in speculation in such commodities."

"I agree entirely with you," Royall answered. "But his transactions prior to the time he took his present position are entirely his own."

Wheat Alone Mentioned

The only commodity in which Pauley was dealing that was specifically mentioned in the discussion was wheat. Since September 2, the day before his appointment, December wheat has gone from $2.55 3/8 a bushel to $3.12, and May futures from $2.51¾ to $3. The latter figures are yesterday's closing prices.

Before he completed his statement, Royall was subjected to a chorus of angry questions.

"At the time Pauley came in it was known he held future in wheat," Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) shouted.

"Why was he not asked the amount? Suppose he owned 10 million dollars worth, wouldn't that have been important?"

"Not unless he had access to information about or participated in the purchasing," Royall shouted back, his face flushed with anger.

Heated Exchanges

From time to time he engaged in heated exchanges with Ball—like Stassen, a Minnesotan—Reed, Ferguson, Bridges and others.

Ball continued to call Pauley's operations "gambling," referring constantly to the fact that President Truman has used that term in describing grain speculation.

"Isn't this the Pauley from California?" Ball shouted. "Isn't he an oil man? Has he ever been known as a grain dealer, or processor, grower?"

At his morning news conference yesterday President Truman declined to comment on Stassen's charges of the night before that Administration "insiders" had speculated in foodstuffs. Mr. Truman added that he hadn't read Stassen's speech, and that he knew nothing of any such activities.

EDWIN W. PAULEY

Investigation Demanded

In his Pennsylvania speech Stassen stated that he had written House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck demanding an investigation of market speculation by Government officials.

Last night Halleck revealed that he already was taking such action.

"Any Government official or employe who is in a position to know the Government's buying program and who is speculating in the grain markets ought to be dismissed and exposed to the public censure he so much deserves," Halleck said.

Personal Friend of Truman

When Pauley, a former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, and a personal friend of President Truman, took his present office September 3, he declared that he was going to serve "probably three, maybe four months" only.

He declared that he didn't want a permanent top Government post, and branded reports that he was being groomed to succeed Royall as Secretary as "pure speculation." He denied that President Truman had "sponsored" him in his new post.

Last year Peuley's nomination to be Undersecretary of the Navy provoked a long and bitter congressional battle over confirmation. President Truman finally withdrew the nomination at Pauley's request.

Opponents, led by the then Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes, charged that he had suggested dropping a suit to establish Government ownership of California tidewater oil fields in return for Democratic campaign contributions. Ickes resigned from the Cabinet as a result of the row.

Given Reparations Post

Pauley Says His Grain Deals Were Legitimate Transactions

any time sought or received any information relativ eto transactions in such commodioties by the Department of the Army.

'No Occasion for Apology'

All of these things considered, I repeat that my conduct has been such that I feel no occasion for apology, and have no intention of accepting any suggestion that I am subject to censure. On the contrary, I would call attention to the fact that my positino with the Department of the Army is not one that I solicited. Others be it noted, have declined to enter public service, because they have been unwilling to make the financial sacrifice which I have made. They have been unwilling, also, to subject themselves to the purposeful distortion of motives which I knew, when I accepted the position, would be forthcoming.

Now, as to the suggestion that trading in grain has been responsible for excessive prices to the American public: I would emphasize at the beginning that I consider, as a great many others do, that prices are now higher than they should be in comparison with the earnings of the average person. Because I believe they are higher than they should be, I believe that they should be controlled while in short supply—all prices, including those of grains and certain other commodities.

But, let us not be deluded by the pretense that trading in commodities is the cause of the price situation, even though certain loose charges to that effect have been tossed about by some political parties and candidates.

Causes of Inflation

All parties recognize that wars and their economic consequences are inflationary, and it is because of this recognition that all parties agreed during World War II that certain curbs were necessary. All realistic persons of all parties recognize, further, that there are two basic causes of present inflationary tendencies:

First—The vast volume of dollars accumulated as the result of the increased earnings of our citizens during the war.

Second—The heavy demand resulting from the necessity to supply assistance to foreign countries.

All parties agree that it is essential to meet the demand represented by each of these factors, but there is the most noteworthy hesitancy to impose those remedies and preventives which are necessary to correct the situation and keep it corrected.

Consequently, age-old economic laws are manifesting themselves: supply simply has not caught up with demand, and, obviously, the result is intensified bidding for whatever is available and, hence, increasing prices. As a result, the dollar, according to recent announcement by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, is now worth only 53 cents.

Decided tto Protect Himself

Now, what should a man do in such circumstances if he wants to protect his position and that of his family? Should he stand by idly and watch his earnings dissipate in value, or should he exercise some foresight and hedge himself against these inflationary tendencies? I have no hesitation in telling what my own decision was: I decided tot protect myself and my family. I considered it not only my right, but my duty. I still so consider it. My conviction on this is so strong that, until or unless the Congress enacts definite controls against rising prices, I think that every citizen should protect himself against the continued inflation by acquiring commodities which will increase in value as his dollars decrease in value.

As I have stated before, I handicapped myself in this respect by volunteering to liquidate my holdings in orderly fashion consistent with good business methods, in order that there might be no ground for criticism, even though that criticism would be unjust. Certainly no one suspects that I did not know that this criticism was coming. By the same token, certainly no one would suggest that, knowing this, I would have gone ahead and accepted the Army position if I had considered that I could be considered guilty of wrongdoing. Rather, if such had been the case, I would have been rather foolish if I had not chosen to remain solely in private business, and thus have avoided the financial loss which I have sustained.

I have been asked why I did not reply to telegraphic questions sent to me recently by a political candidate. The reason, obviously, is that the query, on its face, was submitted for the most obvious political motives by one whose aspirations had been treated more than a little indifferently by the voters. After all, one does not discuss his personal business with every Tom, Dick or Harold who happens to simulate a curiosity. I must confess that I was a little surprised to learn that this political aspirant feels that the farmers, who more than most others have known the pinch of lean years, are now becoming too prosperous. It seems to me that price controls during this inflationary period should not be imposed upon the products of the farmers, alone, but should apply equally to the goods and services which the farmers must buy.

French People Sent to Russia, Note Charges

Paris, Dec. 11 (NYHT).—The French government, in a note handed today to Alexander Abramov, Soviet charge d'affaires at Paris, charged that the Soviet repatriation mission in France had sent French nationls to the Soviet Union.

It said 40 Frenchwomen and 20 Frenchmen were assembled at the Soviet repatriation camp at Beauregard, near Paris, and sent to Russia "without the knowledge of the French authorities." At Moscow they asked the French Embassy for immediate repatriation, the note said, and they have since returned to France.

The note charged further that the Soviet repatraition mission—which was expelled from France on Tuesday—had been using its permitted activities as a cover for "act sthreatening French internal security." When the Russians were expelled, the Soviet government announced that it was asking the corresponding French mission in Moscow to leave Russia and was breaking off trade negotiations with France.

Claim Pact Complied With

The French note declared further that repatriation of Russians from France had been favored more than was required by the 1945 Franco-Soviet accord on the subject. The Beauregard Camp, it may be recalled, was raided by the French police on November 14, and has since been taken over by French authorities.

The raid and the expulsion of 19 Soviet nationals from France on November 25—for allegedly interfering in the strikes then in progress—occasioned a Soviet note of protest which the French government yesterday ordered returned as "unreceivable," because of its language.

The French veterans' ministry took notice today of the statement yesterday at Moscow by Lieut. Col. Raymond Marquie, head of the French repatriation mission, in which he attacked his government and accused it of "systemtaically malicious attitude" toward the Soviet Union.

Colonel Marquie Recalled

The veterans' ministry pointed out that Colonel Marquie had no authority to make statements about French government policy. It said action would be taken as soon as he returns here. He was recalled as soon as his statement became known to the French government. Some reports noted that he was a long-time Communist.

A foreign ministry spokesman said it was regrettable that the Soviet government had decided to cancel a proposed exchange of Russian grain for French manufactured products, but he said France would be able to maintain the present bread ration with the aid of the United States.

Meanwhile, monetary inflation as a rate never attained hitherto in France was revealed in the statement of the Bank of France for the week ending December 4, showing an additional 19,493,000,000 francs in circulation.

This figure, together with the increase of 13,825,000,000 francs in the previous week, swelled the currency by 33,318,000,000 francs within a fortnight, a record for two successive weeks.

During this period the total banknote circulation rose to another all-time high, 898,985,000,000 francs, which is nearly double the figure 18 months ago after the note exchange operation.

Reds Are Painted Fascists, AMG Tells Germans

Berlin, Dec. 11 (AP).—An American Military Government official told the German people in a broadcast tonight that "communism is fascism with a coat of red paint."

In eastern Europe, he said, Communists are beating and terrorizing the people" in a manner typical of the worst excesses of fascism."

The speech was transcribed in advance by Richard M. Scammon, chief of AMG's elections and political parties branch, as the fifth in a series of weekly broadcasts entitled "Freedom versus Totalitarianism."

Scammon detailed Communist restrictions on political freedom which non-Communist Germans repeatedly have charged prevail in that zone under the rule of the Russian-sponsored Socialist Unity Party.

Scammon urged the Germans to resist intimidation.

Last-Hour Hideout of Hitler Blown Up by Reds in Berlin

Berlin, Dec. 11 (AP).—The commodious bomb shelter where Adolf Hitler hid out during the fall of Berlin was blown up today in the ruined garden of the wrecked Reichschancellory.

Kasischke

German police said Russian demolition squads set off a charge in the "fuehrer-bunker" as part of a program of destroying German fortifications. The Russians made no announcement.

In the steel-and-concrete shelter, British intelligence reports say, Hitler and his long-time mistress, Eva Braun, wed and died as suicides on April 30, 1945. Then they were cremated, the British say.

The Russians discouraged publicity about the demolition. Richard Kasischke, Associated Press correspondent, going to the bunker in early afternoon to ask permission to photograph the explosion, was shot at by a Soviet sentry. He was not hurt.

The bunker, a postwar Berlin tourist drawing card, was about a 30-second run from the chancellory veranda. Some 15 feet of its concrete roof showed above earth.

Three flights of steps led into a small reception hall in the shelter. Inside were several rooms, including separate bedrooms for Hitler and Eva Braun. There also was an underground passage to the bunker from the chancellory.

The Bavarian marble in the chancellory is being dismantled by the Russians for use in building a memorial to Stalin and the Red army.

Fish, Wildlife Agency Plans War on Rats

The Fish and Wildlife Service called in eight experts in rodent control yesterday to lay out strategy for a war on rats.

The experts, summoned by Dorr D. Green, chief of the agency's division of predator and rodent control, will confer with Agriculture Department extension service workers today and tomorrow on a Nation-wide kill-rats-and-save-grain campaign in which 12,000 workers, county agents and home demonstration agents will join.

Green estimated that rats destroy 200 million bushels of grain a year, more than one third the amount the United States is planning to send to western Europe this winter.

Jane Cowl Hit by Taxi; Play Closes

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—Actress Jane Cowl, appearing in "The First Mrs. Fraser," was hit by a taxicab yesterday as she was about to cross a street.

Miss Cowl was taken today to Wickersham Hospital where her injuries were diagnosed as a fractured leg and torn ligaments. A theater spokesman said her play had been "definitely closed" as a result of the accident.

Windsor Tells of Recoiling From Role Requiring Homage

New ork, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor, writing of his investiture as Prince of Wales, said today it was during this ceremony that he learned "I recoiled from that which tended to set me up as a person requiring homage."

In the second of a series of three autobiographical articles in Life magazine on his youth, the Duke described minutely great State ceremonials.

At the investiture, which took place when he was 17, Edward rebelled unsuccessfully against the costume he was expected to wear, which he described as "fantastic" and a "preposterous rig."

Ceremony in Wales

The ceremony was held in Wales and Lloyd George, later Prime Minister, had taught the young prince some Welsh sentences to speak, telling him "all Welshmen will love you for that."

After the investiture, Edward wrote he was "half fainting of heat and nervousness" but "I delivered the Welsh sentences which Mr. Lloyd George, standing close by in the ancient garb of constable, had taught me.

"In the midst o fall this commotion, I made a painful discovery about myself. It was that while I was prepared to fulfill the duties bound up in my heritage, I recoiled from that which tended to set me up as a personage requiring homage. After all, hadn't my father drilled into me that I was no better than anybody else?"

Years at Oxford

Writing of his years at Oxford, the duke commented wryly that the ancient university "failed to break down the resistance to learning that was the legacq of my unbookish ancestors."

He said he was a little discouraged "to realize how little I learned there," but added "the fault does not lie with Oxford."

Describing lively student parties which sometimes ended with "the ceremonial smashing of glasses against the fireplace, and, eventually, the carrying out of those who could no longer walk by those who thought they could," the duke said:

"It would be wrong to give Oxford credit for teaching me how to drink" but all the same, it "certainly furnished me with opportunities for tentatively testing the art on myself, as well as for observing the dubious progress and occasional disasters of others."

Visit to the Kaiser

The duke relates one anecdote concerning a courtesy call upon Kaiser William II of Germany.

"He was sitting in uniform behind an extraordinarily high desk and in greeting me rose in a most curious manner, as if dismounting from a horse," Edward wrote. "Upon drawing closer, I perceived to my astonishment that he had risen from a wooden block shaped like a horse's back, tot his was girthed a military saddle, complete with stirrups.

"Noting my startled expression, the Emperor smiled and explained condescendingly that he was so accustomed to sitting on a horse he had found a saddle more conducive to clear, concise thinking than a conventional desk chair."

Personal Income Drop Shown During October

Personal income for the Nation during October fell below the record high reached in September, mainly because of a decline in terminal leave bond cashing.

Total personal income in October was at an annual rate of $204,500,000,000 compared with $210,900,000,000 in September and an average rate of $195,600,000,000 for the first 10 months of 1946, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

Final Figures

Unit chairmen reported $86,019 turned in yesterday. The unit chairmen also reported these final figures:

Special gifts, E. Cortlandt Parker, chairman: $1,017,232, or 102 per cent of quota. Of this amount $52,697 was turned in yesterday, including a $10,000 "windfall" contributed by an anonymous community leader.

Government unit, W. John Kenney, Undersecretary of the Navy, chairman: $1,276,335, or 94 per cent of quota; 31 Government agencies pledged more than 100 per cent of their respective quotas. The total represents 195,034 contributors.

Business unit 1, Granville Gude, chairman: $1,151,726, or 78.49 per cent of quota, pledged by 62,204 contributors.

Residential unit, Mrs. Angus Dun, chairman: $412,482, or 77.1 per cent of quota, pledged by 17,105 contributors.

Montgomery County, Md., Mrs. P. Landon Banfield, chairman: $103,568, or 83.52 per cent of quota, pledged by 8470 contributors.

Prince Georges County, Md., William M. Werber, chairman: $39,605, or 90 per cent of quota, pledged by 6597 contributors.

Business unit 2, Jack Bartlett, chairman: $71,626, or 95.5 per cent of quota, pledged by 4426 contributors.

Fairfax County, Va., Comdr. Keith Merrill, chairman: $25,695, or 59.48 per cent of quota, pledged by 3325 contributors.

Arlington County, Edmund D. Campbell, chairman: $40,955, or 77.27 per cent of quota, pledged by 7043 contributors.

Alexandria, Marvin L. Wilson, chairman: $51,648, or 89.04 per cent of quota, pledged by 6074 contributors.

The campaign has ended short of the goal in other recent years:

At the official end of last year's campaign, which was also extended, the total pledged was $3,017,285—$156,456 less than the total reported yesterday—or 71.84 per cent of the $4,200,000 goal.

The 1945 campaign brought in 62.08 per cent of its $4,970,000 quota at its official end in October, while in 1944, 90.42 per cent of the $4,850,000 goal was realized.

Gromyko to Move To Plush Mansion

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, is moving to a mansion on Park ave.

Gromyko, chief Russian delegate to the United Nations, is giving up modest quarters in a brown brick apartment at Columbus ave. and 88th st. on New York's upper West Side for the red-carpeted marble home at the corner of Park ave. and 68th st.

Gromyko's new place is the old residence of the late Percy Pyne, financier. The Russians purchased it last June 30. The price was around one million dollars, according to well-advised real estate circles.

The chief delegate and some of his staff will occupy the mansion.

House Passes by Voice Vote 590-Million Stopgap Bill

30, 1948, termination date for interim relief.

Another eleventh-hour change, by Representative Jack Z. Anderson (R., Calif.) brought the measure in line with Senate provisions making Commodity Credit Corporation surplus food stocks available for the program.

Earlier the House had saddled on President Truman the responsibility for seeing to it that purchases for foreign relief exert "minimum" impact on domestic prices and scarcities.

Other House changes, some of which face modification in conference:

Required recipient governments to certify Communists will have no part in distribution of supplies, and provided for termination of relief to any country embracing communism.

Forbade Government purchases at above-market prices in this country, but permitted purchases abroad of up to 25 per cent of the supplies for as much as 10 per cent more than domestic prices.

Authorized appointment of a House-Senate joint committee to keep close tab on relief distribution.

An attempt to bar China from the program, by cutting aid to the Orient to $100, was defeated by a voice vote. Representative Earl R. Lewis (R., Ohio), who said any aid given China would go directly into the pockets of private persons," offered the amendment. Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) spoke against the China cut. Judd said China would turn to Russia without our aid and if war comes "we must fight a two-front war."

Shouted down by a voice was a move by Representative Vita Marcantonio (A. L., N. Y.)to raise the figure to $1,500,000,000, provided aid was distributed by the United Nations.

The left-wing Marcantonio, who had previously kept silent, sitting out most of the votes, charged the United States program of direct aid to combat Communism "will lead to war and depression." He attacked the present French and Italian regimes saying they are denying the "and" demands of the peasant class.

Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) replied briefly that the peasants won't get their demands if the Communists take over: "They will be in the position of the people of the Soviet, where the peasants may not own one foot of land."

Among other amendments quickly turned down:

By Representative W. R. Poage (D., Tex.), to use 3 per cent of impounded foreign funds for advertisement and publicity abroad.

By Ralph W. Gwinn (R., N. Y.), to freeze Government grain purchases at the price prevailing when the bill becomes law.

Final Action Possible Monday

To meet with Senate conferees on the program today Speaker Martin named House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), John M. Vorys (R., Ohio), Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.), Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.) and John Kee (D., Va.). Senate conferees, named Wednesday, are Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), Arthur Capper (R., Kans.), Wallace H. White (R., Me.), Tom Connally (D., Tex.) and Walter F. George (D., Ga.).

Timetable for last-lap clearance of foreign aid, already nearly two weeks behind Secretary of State Geogre C. Marshall's December 1 "deadline," calls tentatively for a conference report Monday and final action immediately thereafter. Leaders said the House Appropriations Committee will have a report on enabling funds ready for action Tuesday or Wednesday.

Halleck Blames New Deal

The political clash came at the outset of yesterday's session following an angry attack on the Truman Administration by Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.). Halleck said he supported the relief program, despite his vote for a 90-million-dollar cut, but lit into Administration handling of foreign affairs and price policies.

"Why, three years after the war, is it still necessary to send food and fuel abroad to feed the cold and hungry and to try to stop communism?" he asked amid cheers from the Republican side. "I'll tell you why—it is because the New Deal Administration has terribly mismanaged the foreign affairs of our country. For years the Administration has coddled Communists at home and abroad. The deals made at Yalta and Teheran are coming home to plague us. The Potsdam agreement also has its seamy side."

Rejoiner From McCormack

House Democratic Whip John W. McCormack (Mass.) slapped at Halleck for injecting a "preview of the 1948 campaign" into the aid debate. He said Republicans, like John Foster Dulles and Senator Vandenberg, had had something to say about foreign policy. McCormack got applause from the Democratic side when he praised Vandenberg as "one of the greatest Americans of this generation."

Then he turned to the Republican leader and said: "I wonder if he (Halleck) is at heart for the bill. I wonder if he is riding two horses . . . I think he is trying to please (the people) and at the same time put some crippling amendments in the bill."

Representative Clarence Brown (R., Ohio), who has frequently differed with Halleck as "a great American."

Representative Pete Jarman (D., Ala.) mixed in, accusing Halleck of "delaying this bill with a political discussion." Jarman said the country wants the bill passed "without the delay of tweedledee and tweedledum."

GOP Inflation Control Bill Is Approved by Committee

price control. All 10 points in his message would be covered by draft legislation, he added.

The Administration has already submitted one bill to Congress, offered by Secretary of Commerce Harriman, prescribing Federal powers to institute an allocation program.

Police State?

A reporter, asking about the price control recommendations, reminded Mr. Truman that a month ago he termed OPA a "police state method."

It is a police state method, the President snapped, only when it is carried out by a dictator. If Congress authorizes it and the President is authorized to do it, that is a free government approach to it, he declared.

In answer to questions about relaxing the antitrust laws to help carry out the control program, Mr. Truman twice vehemently affirmed that they would be enforced to the limit as long as he was President.

Later, Representative Wolcott cited this as showing that the President "doesn't understand the working of these laws."

Rent Control Clause Fails

Like the Wolcott bill, the legislation submitted by Harriman also contains a provision exempting cooperating business groups from antitrust law action in connection with allocation and priority agreements.

An attempt was made, it was learned, to substitute the other, nonvoluntary, features of the Harriman bill for the section dealing with allocations in the Wolcott bill. The motion was offered in the Banking and Currency Committee session by Representative Buchanan (D., Pa.), but it was defeated. The vote was on a straight party basis, with 15 Republicans opposing and 10 Democrats favoring the substitution.

Representative Monroney (D., Okla.) moved to include in the bill a section extending rent controls, which expire next March. His motion was thrown out on a point of order.

Hopes for Rule Today

Wolcott told reporters that he hopes to get a rule, under which the bill will be considered, today. He added that the Republican leadership plan is to bring the measure before the House on Monday.

Commenting on the section of his bill which raises the required gold reserves of the Federal Reserve Banks, Wolcott admitted the provision would have no immediate effect. The banks' actual reserves, he conceded, are already well above the limits set by the proposed legislation.

But, he insisted, it would act as an element to restrict bank credit in the future, and was a token of GOP policy to reverse the "cheap money" standards of the Administration.

The bill's credit provisions, he said, would have a "strong psychological effect."

Briton Warns U. N. on Palestine Control

London, Dec. 11 (U.P.)—Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones, confirming Britain's decision to lay down its Palestine mandate about May 15, warned today the United Nations commission which takes over the riot-torn country may have to invoke the authority of the Security Council to impose partition.

This implicitly was a warning that the U. N. may have to decide whether to use armed force to impose partition on the Arabs.

Opening a two-day debate in Commons on Palestine, Creech Jones criticized the lack of U. N. action to back up its partition decision and showed plainly the strong resentment Britain holds against the position in which it has been placed.

Troops' Use Limited

He invited the U. N Partition Commission to keep out of Palestine until about two weeks before the mandate ends, and said that Britain would use its troops to maintain law and order in the country, after its mandate ends, only in those parts where its evacuating troops happen to remain.

R. H. S. Crossman, Labor Party rebel, accused the government of blundering in Palestine policy and expressed anxiety lest the Holy Land become a political battle ground between the United States and Russia.

Conservative Oliver Stanley, demanded that Britain instead of consulting the U. N. on the exact date—about May 15—for laying down the mandate, the government set its own date and get out even before May 15 if possible.

The time table in Palestine, as Creech Jones outlined it, is:

February or March — British troops' start to withdraw.

Mid-April — Full scale evacuation starts.

About May 1—U. N. commission arrives.

About May 15—Britain ends mandate and U. N. assumes full responsibility.

August 1—Britain completes withdrawal of 70,000 troops.

Creech Jones said flatly that Britain would not share control of Palestine with the U. N. or any other organization until its troop evacuation was well under way.

He said that the 16,000 immigrants now in camps in Cyprus would be sent to Palestine. Unless the situation is altered, they will be moved up to May 15 only at the rate of 1500 a month, which is the present quota.

a Jewish milk truck, killing the driver.

The bodies of six more Arabs were found in an orange grove bordering the bloody Hatikvah quarter of Tel Aviv, where an Arab-Jewish gun battle raged Monday night. The Tel Aviv-Jaffa borderland area was reported quiet.

Arabs Believed Studying Guerilla Warfare Plans

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 11 (AP).—Guerilla warfare plans by a so-called "peoples army to save Palestine" were believed to have been submitted tonight to the Prime Ministers and other representatives of the seven countries in the Arab League.

A reliable Arab informant, however, said earlier that the Arab nations had agreed to supply an army of volunteers with weapons and money as the method of defeating the U. N. partition of Palestine.

Belief that war plans were considered was bolstered when Ahmed al Sharabati, Syrian Minister of Defense, arrived.

He told reporters he conferred yesterday in Damascus with Fawzi Bey al Kawkazi, field commander of Palestine Arabs who revolted in 1936.

Romania Suspends Jewish Emigration

Bucharest, Romania, Dec. 11 (AP).—Illegal Jewish emigration from Romania to central Europe has been halted to avoid swelling the number of Jewish displaced persons in Germany waiting to go to Palestine, a spokesman for Zionist and Jewish organizations here announced today. He said the step was taken before the United Nations decided November 29 to partition Palestine.

General Strike Opens in Rome for Vatican City's L'Osservatore Romano, said 500 had been arrested.

At countless places police had difficulty with bands of youngsters, many wearing Communist badges and colors.

The government's latest terms for ending the strike were not disclosed, but officials said they represented an increase over the offer Wednesday night of a public works appropriation for the Rome area to absorb unemployed. The Labor Chamber estimates unemployed at 80,000.

The chamber originally had demanded a 10-billion-lire ($18,650,000) public works program, and the government had offerer 11 billion lire.

The chamber also demanded a Christmas dole for all unemployed and the punishment of police who killed an unemployed Communist in a Rome riot last Friday.

The Christian Democrat labor movement called the strike a "Red imposition" on the labor movement.

L'Osservatore Romano declared it was in "the framework of chain agitations" against the government. The Vatican City newspaper's reference was to the series of strikes, demonstrations and riots inspired by leftists which began in Milan November 12 as part of a "winter offensive" against Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Christian Democrat government.

Rome was almost completely tied up. There were no streetcars or buses and but few taxis operating. The Central markets and most food stores and shops closed soon after noon in accordance with the strike call. Some street railwaymen were reported willing to work if given protection, but police were said to be feeling unequal to the task.

Railroads were functioning normally, however, and there was water, gas and electric service.

A tiny thimbleful does your dinner dishes

Floats grease away.....leaves glasses, dishes diamond-bright--

Cuts grease faster than soap!
Clinging grease vanishes from the dirtiest dishes, pots and pans. Even sticky egg stains are cut away clean. Glim surrounds grease, floats it away fast.

Cleans dishes faster than soap!
In go the dishes, off comes the dirt. Rinsing's easier and no wiping needed. Not even a grimy dishpan ring to clean. Glim makes dishwashing faster, easier than soap.

Dishes gleam like ma-a-ad!
No soapy streaks! Glassware, silver shine like diamonds—free from dulling soap film. Glim doesn't just wash the dishes—this wonder liquid cleans them cleaner than soap!

Leaves hands feeling surgically clean!
Glim leaves hands cleaner than ever before. Yet no soap made—powder, flake or bar—is safer, gentler, or milder to hands. Unlike soap, Glim contains no harsh alkali. In tests with eleven leading soap and soapless dishwashers, only Glim proved 100% non-irritating to all types of skin.

Suds faster than soap!
No stubborn soap particles to dissolve. For instant suds in hard or soft, hot or cold water—pour Glim into dishpan. Add water full force. Glim is easy on hands!

Money back!
. . . if you don't like Glim better than soap! Just send bottle with unused portion to Antara Products, 230 Park Avenue, New York 17, N. Y., and we'll gladly refund the purchase price plus postage.

Hints for enhancing your holiday baking

SPRINKLING PECAN MEATS OR WALNUTS OVER PUMPKIN PIE the last 10 minutes of baking adds toasty chewiness. . . The frost on our pumpkin pie is meringue—and a spoonful or two of orange marmalade whipped into that meringue is not amiss. It's a hit!

AND HERE'S AN EASY WAY TO LINE A TUBE PAN for baking fruit cake. Use a piece of heavy wrapping paper twice as large as the top of the pan. Fold in half, then in quarters, and finally in eighths. Round off the top and cut off the point. Cut slashes along folds from outer edge toward the center of the circle; unfold. Fit into greased pan, lapping side pieces over one another—makes smooth surface. Grease well. Trim off top edge so that 1 inch extends above upper rim of pan. This collar will keep cake from getting too brown during baking.

MAPLE HARD SAUCE: AS PERKY FOR PUDDING AS A NEW HAT FOR A LADY. Instead of vanilla, add maple flavoring to a favorite hard sauce recipe . . . and use brown sugar instead of powdered sugar to rekindle even fonder memories of Vermont.

GOOD HOLIDAY GREETERS ARE INDIVIDUAL MINCEMEAT PUDDINGS

2 cups flour	¼ cup thinly sliced citron
½ cup sugar	1 cup fine, dry bread crumbs
½ tsp. salt	1 cup finely chopped suet
1 tsp. soda	1 cup sour milk
1 tsp. cinnamon	1 cup molasses
1 tsp. nutmeg	2 cups mincemeat
½ tsp. cloves

Sift flour, then measure and sift again with sugar, salt, soda and spices. Stir in citron, bread crumbs, suet, sour milk, molasses and mincemeat; mix until smooth. Fill 12 well-greased custard cups ⅔ full. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 1 hour, or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. OR, cover with waxed paper and steam 2 hours if a moist, more traditional pudding is preferred.

Communists Seen Losing Out in West Europe; Must Decide Soon Whether to Attempt Force

A special report issued by the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday asserted that the Communists have lost their chance for political victory in western Europe and must decide "within a few months" whether to resort to force.

Maloney

"If they do not choose a violent strike for power in France and Italy," the report said, "then for the time being the limits of Communist expansion after World War II have been set for the western world.

The report was written by Representative Franklin J. Maloney (R., Pa.) on the basis of a three-month investigating tour of Europe and the Near East.

Reds' Course Uncertain

Maloney said the political swing to the left that followed the war has been halted in Europe and that Communist strength is waning.

"It is impossible for an outsider to deduce the solution which Communist minds will reach," his report said. "For the moment, it can only be said that the Communist hope for early victory in Europe through legal democratic politics is dead for years to come."

Maloney said the Communists may decide to retrench and wait for the capitalist collapse which they believe to be inevitable, but he cautioned that they might also decide on violence.

In the latter case, he said, they have two options: first, to use the Italian and French Communist parties to start civil war in those countries, during which Russian armies would "occupy all of continental Europe," or second, foment civil wars designed solely to block European recovery, "thus gaining time for Russian recovery or for development of atomic weapons."

Sees Europe More Hopeful

Within a few months, he said, the world will know what choice the Communists have made. He added that all signs in non-Soviet European countries are "hopeful" for success of the Marshall recovery plan and that there appears to be no real threat to that program "unless the Communists resort to force."

Maloney, whose tour took him through Britain, France, Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Spain and Belgium, said the Marshall Plan already has stirred a "genuine response" in non-Soviet Europe.

He said the people in those countries appear to be regaining their vigor and are coming up with "new ideas" for their own recovery.

"The most important of these," he said, "is the idea of European unification for which sentiment is now widespread . . . the achievment of Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg in establishing the (customs) union called Benelux is regarded with hope and admiration all over Europe."

Truman's Soviet Aims Please Churchmen

By The Associated Press

A group of churchmen said after a White House call yesterday that President Truman indicated to them the United States is trying hard to be friends with Russia.

Dr. Paul Poling of Philadelphia, a member of the board of christian education, Presbyterian church, U. S. A., drew this conclusion from the President's remarks when he called with other clergymen.

The churchmen went to the White House to recommend that the Government adopt "a more positive approach to the Marshall Plan," putting it "on a basis of feeding the needy rather than fear of Russia," Dr. Poling said.

They also objected to proposals for universal training as "a threat to democracy and freedom," he added.

He said he was encouraged by what he said was the indication from the President that the United States Government "is trying exceedingly to be friends with Russia."

President Hopes For Fast Solution Of NSLI Problems

President Truman said yesterday that "every effort is being made" to straighten out veterans' life insurance problems and that he hopes it can be done very shortly.

Mr. Truman made the statement in a letter to Chairman Edith Nourse Rogers (R., Mass.) of the House Veterans Committee, who read the letter on the House floor.

Mrs. Rogers had urged the President to remove Harold W. Breining, assistant veterans' administrator, from active control of veterans' insurance. She said the administration of National Service Life Insurance was "chaotic."

'Raise' Asked For Elizabeth

London, Dec. 11 (AP).—An all-party committee in the Commons recommended today a £25,000 ($100,000) increase in the yearly allowance to Princess Elizabeth, making her income £40,000 ($160,000).

The committee proposed also that £10,000 ($40,000) annually be allowed to Prince Philip, her bridegroom.

Shortly before the royal marriage three weeks ago, King George VI offered to increase Elizabeth's allowance by using his own savings. The King built up a $400,000 surplus during the war with expense money for public functions which could not be held. If she should die before him, and a child also survives, $100,000 would be provided for Philip.

The committee, which Parliament created to consider problems of the heiress-presumptive's purse, made public its report shortly after Buckingham Palace announced that Elizabeth and Philip would return Sunday from their honeymoon, the last part of which was spent in a remote part of Scotland.

The committee recommended the allowances of both be subject to income taxes unless the treasury, exercising existing powers, decided to make part of it tax free because of the couple's expenditures for public duties.

Sen. Cooper to Speak

A PRODUCT OF COLGATE-PALMOLIVE-PEET COMPANY

MRS. A. SAMUEL BURGES, Washington Librarian, 801 Butternut St., N. W., Washington, D. C., says: "I've known of Mrs. Nellie Procter Hewitt for years, so when I heard she supervised County Fair Bread, I knew it had to be delicious. And you can take my family's word for it—it certainly is! And fresh, too!"

MRS. PAUL C. WOODBRIDGE, owner and operator of Bragpatch Farms, Vienna, Va., says: "I've heard about Mrs. Nellie Procter Hewitt's baking ability for years and years, so I started serving County Fair Bread in my home right away—and I'm glad I did—for it's simply grand!"

MRS. STANLEY ERICSON, Mother and Washington Law Secretary, says: "I find no other bread remains as deliciously fresh for such a long time as the bread that's supervised by Mrs. Nellie Procter Hewitt. And in these times of necessary conservation, that makes County Fair Bread the best bread I can buy!"

Gen. Feng Calls U. S. Aid to China Useless and Dangerous

China's famous "Christian general," Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, said in Washington yesterday that any American help to China at this time would be useless and dangerous.

Feng

Relief supplies, he said, were sure to fall into the hands of Chiang Kai-shek and his lieutenants, and some would find their way into the black market at Shanghai. As for military supplies, the Marshal predicted they would be captured by the Communists and prolong the civil war.

Already, he told an interviewer, the Communist armies are equipped to a large extent with American weapons they have seized from government troops.

The marshal, an almost fabulous figure in Chinese history for 35 years, was unsparing yesterday in his attacks on the Chiang regime, although he is still a member of Chiang's Kuomintang Party and is in the United States on an official mission for Chiang to study improvements in China's water supply. Until recently he ranked second to Chiang as vice generalissimo.

He has held aloof from the present civil war with an attitude of "a plague on both your houses." He urged yesterday that the United States immediately stop all forms of military assistance to Chiang, and follow up its action by a renewed offer of mediation in the civil war.

If any Chinese should offer mediation, he said, Chiang would at once brand him a Communist and an enemy. Therefore, he argued, mediation must come from outside.

He thought Chiang was losing the civil war, but that the Communists would never succeed in controlling China. The Communist forces, he said, included moderate and democratic elements, which never would let the Communists paint China red."

One reason for Chiang's lack of success, he said, was the existence of 72 different grades of rank and pay in his army.

Another was that most of Chiang's divisions were far under the regulation strength of 15,000 men; those headed by Chiang's close lieutenants, he said, had a strength of only 3000 men, but the generals collected pay and supplies for 15,000.

The marshall has long had the reputation abroad of being an efficient military commander and administrator.

In the struggles with the war lords 20 years ago he brought honest government and order to many turbulent areas. Although he is 67, he looks 20 years younger, a big and powerful man who is reported to hold the loyalty of many thousands in both armies in the present civil war.

He was last in Washington a year ago, when he visited the Seventh-Day Adventist General Conference Headquarters at Takoma Park and renewed old friendships with many Adventist ministers who had served in China.

National Strike Committee Set Up By WU Employes

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 11 (U.P.).—Western Union employes today set up a national strike committee which immediately announced that a strike by 50,000 employes of the telegraphic agency would be called "in all probability before Christmas."

The strike would affect commercial telegraphic communication across the country. The workers are seeking a 15 cents an hour wage increase.

Hal R. Swann, general president of the Telegraphic Employes Union and a member of the strike committee, said that the exact date for the strike would be announced early next week.

The employes are members of three AFL unions—Swann's CTU, the Commercial Telegraphers Union, and the Telegraphic Workers Union. Named to the national strike committee with Swann were Adolph Brungs, national president of the CTU's Western Union division, and W. Lee Cooney, general president of the TWU.

Swann said the strike committee would immediately take up headquarters in Washington.

King Mihai's Mentor Sees Romanian Premier

Bucharest, Romania, Dec. 11 (AP).—Constantine Negel, the palace minister who accompanied King Mihai to London for the wedding of Princess Elizabeth, was received today by Premier Petru Groza, but the subject of the meeting was not announced.

[Maj. Jacques Vergotti, King Mihai's private secretary, said last week the king would ask Groza's Communist-dominated government for permission to marry Danish Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma, "perhaps next week." The king and princess are in Switzerland.]

Ancient Frozen Bodies Found

Moscow, Dec. 11 (U.P.).—A Soviet archaeological party led by S. I. Rudenko today reported the discovery of a 2000-year-old "natural icebox" tomb in southwestern Siberia in which the found the almost-perfectly preserved bodies of a beautiful young girl and a young man.

Food, particularly cheese, which was buried with the couple for their journey to the "next world," was so well-preserved that it could be eaten by members of the excavation party, they reported. The bodies of seven horses were also found in the tomb.

Scientists reported they had uncovered the tomb 25 feet beneath a burial mound in the Altai district of southwestern Siberia, close to the Mongolian border.

Thieves who broke into the tomb shortly after it was sealed 20 centuries ago did scientists an important favor by letting in Siberia's frigid winds and thus preserving the two bodies.

The girl was dressed in expensive, elaborate clothes and furs and despite the thieves' raid was still covered with valuable delicately carved golden jewels, the expedition reported.

Her companion—her lover, a servant, or perhaps an unfortunate tribesman chosen by survivors to accompany her in death—had been slain by a blow on the head. He wore a false beard.

Rudenko said the find was of "exceptional significance to the history of world culture."

AMG Lists Reparations Already Taken

Berlin, Dec. 11 (AP).—The three western occupation zones of Germany have delivered industrial equipment worth 100 million Reichsmarks — 40 million dollars at prewar valuations—as reparations to Russia and Poland, the American Military Government announced today.

It was also announced that the first of reciprocal deliveries from the Russian zone were expected to arrive "at an early date." According to the Potsdam agreement these shipments will be of wheat, diesel oil, timber and petroleum and will be distributed among the western Allies.

Officials said the allocation of food delivered from eastern Germany had already been made by the Inter-Allied Reparations Agency in Brussells.

N. Y. Bank to Open Branch in Frankfurt

Frankfurt, Dec. 11.—The Chase National Bank of New York will open its first postwar German branch here on Monday, European command headquarters announced today.

At the outset, this office will serve only as a bank for members of the occupation forces and American and Allied civilians. It is not authorized to engage in normal commercial banking involving financial relationships with German industry and business firms.

China Sells War Surplus U. S. Provided

Shanghai, Dec. 11 (AP).—The Chinese government is reselling to America and the world at least two million tons of Pacific island war surplus which China received in settlement of a wartime United States debt of 174 million dollars.

This was disclosed today when a contract was signed whereby the Bethlehem Steel Corp. will buy approximately one million tons of scrap for 30 million dollars.

The sale was announced by Ralph Ring, general agent of United States Lines, who acted for Pacific Far East Lines. The latter firm will move mountains of scrap from dozens of Pacific islands in 100 shiploads during the next 18 months.

The scrap was sold directly to General Commodities Corp., an American firm which acted as agent for Bethlehem. Ring said this was the biggest purchase of scrap in Bethlehem's history, and the largest shipping contract ever signed in the Far East.

Simultaneously it was announced that more than one million tons of equipment still operational is being resold by China on the world market, with the stipulation that it is not to go either to the United States or China.

Several companies already have bought quantities of operational equipment. General Commodities Corp. purchased the entire residue of surplus on Manus Island in the Admiralties, acquiring 150,000 tons of equipment ranging from road-building tractors to fountain pens.

Ring said most of the operational equipment is expected to go to Mexico, Central and South America and the Mediterranean countries. Some is believed headed for pipeline construction in the Middle East.

A Government spokesman said the decision to resell the surplus was reached after China received more than she could use. Another factor, he said, was China's pressing ned for United States dollars.

The scrap deal consummated today will bring approximately 30 million dollars, but 18 million dollars will be devoted to shipping costs, so China will receive between 10 and 12 million dollars net.

Judge McWilliams Denies Governor Has Resignation

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—Politicians of Anne Arundel County are discussing possibilities involved in the rumored intention of Judge William J. McWilliams to resign.

The judge has made no statement, but denied his resignation was on Governor Lane's desk, as some political sources have asserted.

McWilliams was named by Governor O'Conor to succeed Judge Ridgely P. Melvin, who as chief jurist in the Fifth Judicial District, also was a member of the Court of Appeals. McWilliams formerly had served as Secretary of State.

He will have to run for election to the full five-year term next year if he wants to retain his seat.

Local politicians say there is some question as to the election of a judge if McWilliams should resign after January 1.

Big 4 Reach Agreement on German Steel

By Walter Kerr

London, Dec. 11 (NYHT).—The first basic agreement arrived at during the London session of the Council of Foreign Ministers was concluded this evening when steel production for all Germany was fixed at 11,500,000 tons a year.

Today's reconciliation resulted from a concession by the French delegation, which for a long time opposed German reconstruction on security grounds.

A year and a half ago, German steel production was fixed at 5,700,000 tons a year and steel capacity at 7,500,000 tons. In Moscow last spring the Soviet, British and American Foreign Ministers urged a ceiling capacity of something between 10 and 12 million tons. The French objected.

Almost Quadruples Output

In August, however, the American and British governments reached an understanding, after consultation with the French, on a new production level. They fixed it at 10,700,000 tons. Ten days ago the French agreed in principle. Today they went on to 11,500,000 tons and the figure was accepted.

At the present time, production is about three million tons a year. All German production is based in relation to steel output.

In reaching this understanding, the Big Four registered their first forward step from their Moscow Conference decisions of last April.

It never was, however, a serious issue, for long ago it was agreed that German industrial production had to be increased. Far more important to Georges Bidault, French Foreign Minister, are security requirements such as a special regime for the Ruhr industrial basin and a long-range guarantee against future German rearmament.

Nearing Reparations Issue

The Foreign Ministers worked slowly during the afternoon toward their major economic dispute, reparations, which will make the conference or wreck it.

The Russians have asked for 10 billion dollars worth of German reparations, including reparations from current German production. Secretary of State George C. Marshall told Viacheslav M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Minister, that unless the Soviet Union was prepared to abandon its demand the council was simply wasting its time.

Molotov has postponed his reply, but this may come tomorrow.

Patrol Wagon Returns 5 Times in Bookie Raid

Baltimore, Dec. 11 (AP).—It took three hours and six patrol wagon trips to get the 68 men arrested at a political club by the police vice squad to the police station after a booking raid which nearly turned into a free-for-all.

Seven men, including five brothers, were charged with bookmaking at the club, which had its quarters on the second floor of a downtown Baltimore building.

The other 61 were charged with disorderly conduct and released on $2.45 collateral each.

Unity Pledged by Midwestern Democrats

Omaha, Dec. 11 (AP).—Midwest Democrats were described today as prepared to go to the 1948 National Convention "as a unit—and with some 220 electoral votes, or a fifth of the convention strength."

"That's what we accomplished by our meeting here," said James C. Quigley, of Valentine, Neb., who was reelected chairman at the conclusion last night of an all-day meeting of the Midwest Democratic Conference.

How this unity of action will work was outlined in one of the resolutions adopted. Each State is to advise Quigley what it wants in the national platform. Quigley then will assemble the Midwest viewpoint and be prepared to present it at the convention.

"We will have unity of action," said Quigley, who is Nebraska national committeeman. "Obviously, Midwest interests will get more attention at the convention. We will get more help from the national committee in the form of money and speakers to accomplish our prime purpose—regaining States lost to the Republicans."

Quigley said "it's too early to say if we'll act together in supporting candidates," and that "our principal purpose is to put up a united front on issues and causes."

The three principal issues, he said, are agriculture, cost of living and conservation, reclamation and irrigation.

The conference was broadened to 13 States with admission of Michigan, Wisconsin and Montana. Previous members were Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Minnesota. Iowa National Committeeman Jake More of Harlan, Iowa, was reelected secretary. Mrs. Georgia Neese Clarke, Richland, Kan., was named vice chairman and Harold Barker of Elbow Lake, Minn., treasurer.

Senate Group Head Backs Christenberry

By The Associated Press

Senator Cooper (R., Ky.) chairman of a committee considering the nomination of Herbert W. Christenberry to be Federal judge for eastern Louisiana, said yesterday he personally favors confirmation of the nomination.

He made the statement at the conclusion of a hearing by his subcommittee. The other members are Senators Magnuson (D., Wash.) and Moore (R., Okla.) who have not attended all the hearings.

Dingell Introduces 'Equitable' Tax-Cut Bill

By The Associated Press

A $5,500,000,000 tax reduction bill was introduced yesterday by Representative Dingell (D., Mich.), a member of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Dingell

Dingell, who opposed the Republican-backed income tax cutting bills vetoed by President Truman during the last session of Congress, said his measure offers "an equitable system of tax reduction."

Among other things, he proposed:

1. A cut of more than two billion dollars annually in Federal excise taxes levied on many products.
2. Increasing personal exemptions on income taxes by $100 and reducing surtax rates 1 per cent in each bracket.
3. Allowing husbands and wives to split their incomes for tax purposes to bring down their income tax rates.

Excise Removals Favored

Before Dingell acted, the Senate Expenditures Committee recommended removal of the excises on gasoline, admissions to theaters and athletic events, and local telephone and electric bills.

Chairman Aiken (R. Vt.) said the recommendation will go to the Senate Finance Committee, which handles tax legislation. Under the Constitution, however, all revenue bills must originate in the House.

The expenditure groups also suggested that Congress:

1. Equalize Federal taxes between the so-called "community-tax States" and other States. Under community-property laws, husbands and wives are permitted to divide income for tax purposes and thus reduce their taxes.
2. Allow States to collect the present Federal tax levied on employers to pay for administering State unemployment compensation and employment programs. The committee said the States then should assume responsibility for the administration.

The House Ways and Means Committee heard yesterday that New York University owns the biggest macaroni factory in this country and pays no taxes on it.

The House committee is investigating tax-exempt organizations. Representative Mason (R., Ill.), a member of the committee, brought up the university's case and Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.) said he understood the macaroni factory is operated by alumni, who turn over profits to the school.

Mason insisted that any corporation giving its profits to an educational institution should have to pay taxes on them first. Educators at the hearing insisted that it was an exceptional case and should not be made to reflect on business activities of other institutions.

Called Exception to Rule

Laurence Lunden, comptroller of the University of Minnesota, told the committee:

"I find myself hard-pressed to justify the macaroni case. It is one of the few exceptions to the general rule. Any steps taken by Congress to eradicate cases of tax evasion should be taken with that in mind."

Representative Lynch (D., N. Y.) said he thought "pressure of public opinion will take care" of the matter.

Representative Martin (R., Iowa) wanted to know what should be done about "colleges with heavy real estate holdings who show no inclination to get out."

Dr. Robert Stewart, vice president of Purdue University, replied that local tax authorities and State legislations are "going after that problem."

Lunden said the University of Minnesota has "taken steps to divest itself" of real estate holdings.

Dr. George F. Zook, president of the American Council of Education, representing 868 colleges and schools, told the committee that any limitation of the present tax-exempt privileges enjoyed by educational institutions would have twofold results:

1. Increase the fees of students and make it more difficult for poor students to go to college.
2. Keep down teachers' salaries.

Lloyd Morey, comptroller of the University of Illinois, testified that Federal taxation would also result in increased Federal subsidies and State appropriations to colleges and universities.

"The test is the use of income," Morey said. 'Our educational institutions use their income only for educational purposes and therefore are not subject to taxation."

Doctor, Former Convict, Faces Narcotic Count

Martinsville, Va., Dec. 11 (AP).—Dr. Robert S. Fitzgerald, a pardoned convict and a former coroner for the city of Martinsville, today faced a Federal court hearing in Danville February 23 on a charge of violating the narcotics act.

The 67-year-old former Richmond physician has waived preliminary hearing after being accused of failing to keep proper records of narcotics handled through his office, the United States Marshal's office at Roanoke

Truman Believed Favoring New Aid Agency

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Now that the House has approved stop-gap relief for Europe, President Truman is almost ready to send a major message to Congress asking approval of the long-range European recovery program.

The message probably will be too long to deliver in person, the President told his news conference yesterday. He explained, with a grin, that Congress members probably would not like to listen to him for about two hours, although they listen to each other that long.

He would not commit himself to a date for sending the message, except to say that it would not go to Capitol Hill this week. The present intention is to follow the message with the draft of a bill and with volumes of supporting data for the foreign policy committees of the two houses.

New Agency Held Favored

The message has been delayed partly by the bitter political debate in the House on stopgap aid and partly by several disputed questions, among them the method of administering the long-range program.

An informed source said yesterday that the President had virtually decided to recommend a new Government agency for the purpose, instead of putting management of the program directly into the hands of the State Department.

Secretary Marshall and Undersecretary Lovett were said to have urged the President not to saddle the State Department with an operating job which they felt it could not handle. Other presidential advisers, however, warned him of jurisdictional clashes and confusion at home and abroad if the administrator of the program were not made directly responsible to the Secretary of State.

Favored by Planning Group

Any attempt to put the program in the State Department probably would be unpopular in Congress, where many members feel the new agency should be a corporation entirely divorced from the executive agencies of the Government.

Support for the creation of a separate Government agency came yesterday from the National Planning Association, in a report drawn up after a two-day conference of 57 prominent private citizens.

The report asked Congress to set up (1) a coordinating committee headed by the President, with the Secretary of State as vice chairman and the heads of the interested Government departments as members; (2) a new operating agency within the Government, headed by an administrator of Cabinet rank responsible to the President; and (3) a nonpartisan advisory board representing the public.

These recommendations closely resemble those of the Harriman committee of business, labor and professional leaders last month, although the Harriman group did not rule out the possible use of a corporation to manage the program.

The National Planning group, however, said that "a corporate form of organization is neither desirable nor necessary."

It said the need of the Marshall Plan "should hardly present a controversial issue today." It dealt, therefore, with the proper method of helping European recovery, and it emphasized especially the need of leaving executive powers to the President.

"Congress should define the policy, appropriate the required funds, and give precise powers to the President, as chief executive, for its execution," the report said. "Final approval of any major program, under the policy, should be vested in him. This is in accord with our tradition, our experience and our Constitution."

Signers of Report

The report suggested letting the President decide which of the 16 recipient countries should get credits, and letting him direct the Export-Import Bank to make the credits available. It recognized that the capital of the Export-Import Bank would have to be increased and its basic legislation amended.

Among the signers of the report were Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Isador Lubin, Luther H. Gulick, Lithgow Osborne, Lauchlin Currie, Morris L. Cooke, Guy Emerson, Frank Altschul and William L. Batt. Many of the signers held important positions in the Government or in the diplomatic service during the war.

Bishop Oxnam Urges Church To Advise U. S.

Buck Hill Falls, Pa., Dec. 11 (AP).—Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of New York today urged the Methodist Church to take a more active part in formulating this country's foreign policies, by "providing competent men to represent the moral opinion of the world at the places where decisions are made."

Oxnam

"Unfortunately, we have largely waited until decisions are made and then protested them," Bishop Oxnam told the board of missions and church extension. "Protests don't build constructive programs. There should be a flow of opinion to the White House from all groups —Protestant, Jewish and Catholic alike."

He cited partition of the Holy Land as an example of what he termed the inarticulateness of his church.

"The very complexities of partition left us silent. We were not prepared to recommend any action."

A step toward preparing the church for a more informed voice in world policy decisions was taken this year, he said, with the appointment of the Rev. Garland Evans Hopkins as associate secretary for the relation of business and government to missions.

Steward's Mate Gets 35 Years for Murder

Portsmouth, Va., Dec. 11 (AP).—Clarence Thompson, 19, Marion, Ind., a steward's mate first class aboard the USS Coral Sea, was sentenced to 35 years in the State penitentiary today on his plea of guilty to a murder charge after hearing of evidence by Judge Lawrence W. I'Anson in the Portsmouth Court of Hustings.

4 Killed in Pa. Mine Explosions

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 11 (AP).—Two gas explosions 1000 feet underground in an eastern Pennsylvania anthracite mine today killed at least four men.

A fifth worker was reported missing, and three others suffered critical burns in blasts at the Lehigh Coal Co.'s colliery 3 miles from the heart of Wilkes-Barre.

Some of the 250 diggers employed in other sections of the rambling workings were knocked down, but walked out safely. John Gola said his hat was blown off his head.

There was no immediate explanation as to how the gas was ignited. The United States Mines Department reported the colliery was last inspected in June, and several earlier recommendations for improved safety were repeated. Inspectors, however, reported no particularly hazardous conditions.

Civic Service Awards Given 9 Virginians

Certificates for public service beyond the call of duty were presented last night to nine Virginians at the twenty-fifth annual Old Dominion Ball of the Society of Virginia at the Shoreham Hotel.

Over 400 members of the society and guests attended the dance, which was preceded by a reception. Last night's certificates were presented for the first time as part of the long standing social event.

During the presentation ceremonies Justin Lawrie sang "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," and Mrs. Richard A. Allen recited "The Roses Nowhere Bloom So White."

Jackson Presents Awards

Presentation of engraved certificates was made by Justice Robert H. Jackson of the United States Supreme Court, who was introduced by John W. Rixey Smith, president of the society.

The Virginians who received the citations were: Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, Commandant of the Marine Corps; Stephen T. Early, former secretary to the President; Sidney F. Taliaferro, vice president of the Riggs National Bank; H. Graham Morrison, executive assistant to the attorney general; I. Chance Buchanan, for his administration of the Rent Control Act in northern Virginia.

Also William C. Hull, secretary of the United States Civil Service Commission; Col. Christopher B. Garnett, for his work as a member of the board of visitors of the University of Virginia; Robert Nelson Anderson, for his work on the organizing committee of the International Bar Association; and Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., for being the first woman on the board of visitors of George Washington University.

2 Given in Absentia

Awards were presented in absentia to Justice D. Lawrence Groner, chief justice of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals; and to Thomas S. Settle, executive secretary of National Capital Parks.

Smith said the selections were made by the society's executive council, and that such certificates will be presented to outstanding Virginians each year.

Forrestal Says He Isn't Open to Draft for Political Office

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal yesterday flatly ruled himself out of consideration for the Democratic vice presidential nomination in 1948.

He told a press conference he has never taken himself seriously as a "political glamour character" and "never could be drafted" for "any political office" while serving as Secretary of Defense.

In squelching talk of a Truman-Forrestal ticket next year, the armed forces chief also made it plain that he is remaining as Secretary of Defense. Rumors of his expected resignation have accompanied reports that he was a likely choice for the vice presidential nomination.

President Truman had said earlier in the day that Forrestal is not resigning.

This reply was given to a reporter who said there were repeated rumors that Forrestal might step out.

No, Mr. Truman said, adding that his answer was categorical.

Borrows Marshall Quotes

Forrestal adopted Secretary of State George Marshall's words of last January to end political speculation about himself. His own job, as well as Marshall's, should be entirely free of politics in these times, he said.

A month ago when asked about the vice presidency, Forrestal declined comment, saying he'd have to "think up a historical answer." Yesterday he was prepared for the question.

Telling reporters he had "never heard the rumble of distant political drums, even with both ears to the ground," he proceeded to read Marshall's words. Forrestal said he didn't think he could improve on what the Secretary of State said when sworn in last January 21.

"I will never become involved in political matters and therefore I cannot be considered a candidate for political office . . . I never could be drafted," the defense chief said.

Appointments Announced

Forrestal had several announcements on the progress of unification of the services:

1. The appointment of six ranking defense officials to serve under Dr. Vannevar Bush on the Research and Development Board. They are: Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Army Ground Forces commander; Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand, director of research on the Army General Staff; Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, vice chief of naval operations; Rear Admiral Paul F. Lee, director of the office of naval research; Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, Air Force material chief, and Maj. Gen. Lawrence C. Craigie, director of Air Force research.

Both Navy members will be replaced shortly following a reshuffling of top naval jobs, it was said.

2. Establishment of a committee on human resources under the Research and Development Board. Dr. Donald G. Marquis, University of Michigan psychologist, heads the group, which consists of four other civilians and six members from the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Dr. Bush said that heretofore military research largely had been confined to "machines," but that consideration must be given to fitting them to man. Some of the subjects to be considered, it was said, are human factors in the design of equipment, environmental conditions influencing efficiency, mass behavior, morale, and public opinion.

Post for Hawley

3. The appointment of Dr. Paul R. Hawley, retiring Veterans' Administration medical chief, to head a committee consisting of the Army, Navy and Air Force surgeons general. The group will consider duplications of Army and Navy hospital facilities, and other medical problems.

Forrestal also disclosed that he had called upon the Army, Navy and Air Force for reports on the advisability of joint recruiting for all services. The Navy opposes the idea, while the other two are said to be for it.

Autos Devastate Cities Like Bomb, Seminar Is Told

Chicago, Dec. 11 (AP).—A University of Michigan research director declared today the automobile "already has accomplished a less spectacular but quite as effective a job of devastation" to cities as the atom bomb.

Addressing the fifth annual press seminar of the Public Administration Clearing House on "Breaking the Urban Traffic Jam," Victor Returus of Flint, Mich., resident director of the social science research project at the University of Michigan, said:

"The automobile has impelled people to move out of the area in which they work. The outlying areas are growing more rapidly than the central cities."

Manufacturing plants, he said, are tending to locate on the outskirts of cities instead of maintaining "obsolete, multi-storied cramped sites." Thus cities are losing tax from these properties, which are the mainstay of civic revenue, he added.

Milk Raised 1 Cent

Hopes They 'Talk'

FBI Quizzes His Backers, Kem Says

By The Associated Press

Senator Kem (R., Mo.) said yesterday he has been informed that FBI agents are interviewing Missourians who contributed to his campaign fund and that he hopes the contributors "will tell all they know."

Senator Kem

"Those with whom I had the honor to be associated and I, myself, have nothing to hide or conceal," Kem said in a statement. "My campaign was conducted in a godfish bowl."

Kem said he has received no inquiry or communication from Attorney General Tom Clark, the Justice Department or the FBI regarding any phase of his campaign and so far as he knows no complaint or charge of a violation of law has been made.

"I can only conjecture as to the Attorney General's purpose," he added.

Kem said reports of all his contributions and expenditures have been filed with the Senate and the Missouri Secretary of State. He added copies in his Washington office are open for inspection by any interested persons.

Justice Department officials told a reporter an investigation of activities in the 1946 Missouri elections has been underway for some time under direction of Richard K. Phelps in compliance with recommendations made last year by a House committee.

"Senator Kem was not singled out but is just one of the candidates and the department is looking into all phases of the elections as a result of the House committee recommendation," one official said.

Kem contended the committee's recommendations for an investigation were aimed at the Democratic primary and not the Republican primary nor the general election which Kem said was held after the committee acted.

Kem is author of a resolution proposing an investigation of the Attorney General's and Justice Department's alleged failure to follow through early this year on an inquiry into alleged frauds in the 1946 Kansas City primary election.

Stettinius Appointed To Overseas Aid Board

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—Edward R. Stettinius, rector of the University of Virginia, has been named to the board of American Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children.

In making the announcement, Lee Marshall, AOA-UNAC chairman, noted that the organization is seeking 60 million dollars for relief abroad to be used particularly to help the millions of hungry children. The appeal is handled through 22 private American foreign aid agencies and the U. N. Appeal for Children.

N. Y. School Board Drops Russian Course

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—The board of superintendents of New York City schools has decided to discontinue a course on "The Soviet Union: Its Economic and Cultural Development," which was organized and sponsored by the American-Russian Institute.

For the last few years the course has been part of the lecture program offered to teachers. Associate Superintendent Jacob Greenberg, supervisor of the teachers' in-study program, said today that the board also was reexamining all intercultural courses for teachers.

17 States Alerted to Capture 4 Maryland Jail Breakers

Police in a 17-State area were alerted yesterday for four prisoners who escaped from the Prince Georges County jail at Upper Marlboro late Wednesday after beating an elderly jailer.

Hampson

The Prince Georges officials expressed belief the men had fled the immediate area in an automobile which was reported stolen only a short time after the break was discovered.

The fugitives are William G. Midgett, 25, an escapee from a Virginia chain gang who formerly lived at 1529 S st. se., who was awaiting grand jury action on three burglary charges; James C. Hampson, 21, of East Riverdale, Md., jailed on a non-support charge; Robert Morris, 23, of Laurel, Md., serving a 60-day sentence for drunkenness, and Joseph L. Boswell, jr., 31, no fixed address, awaiting grand jury action on a grand larceny charge.

Of the four, Midgett was the only one discribed by police as "possibly dangerous." He escaped last year from a chain gang at Culpeper, Va., where he was serving an 18-year term for larceny, and police said he "probably would take desperate steps to remain free."

The men escaped around 9:30 p. m. Wednesday after overpowering 67-year-old jailer Vincent I. Wells when he went to assist Midgett, who claimed he was ill.

D. S. Myer to Head Inter-American Affairs Institute

Acting Secretary of State Lovett yesterday announced appointment of Dillon S. Myer as president of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs, effective on or before January 1, 1948, by action of its board of directors. Myer is retiring as commissioner of the Public Housing Administration, a post that he has held since August, 1946.

The Institute of Inter-American Affairs, a United States Government corporation under the Department of State, is charged with carrying out cooperative programs between the Government of the United States and the governments of the other American republics in the field of health and sanitation, food supply, and education.

During the recent war, Myer was director of the War Relocation Authority, which was responsible for relocation of the people of Japanese ancestry who were evacuated from the West Coast of the United States.

Myer will replace Col. Arthur R. Harris who has resigned because of his health.

Probe Sought Of U. S. Tax Unit in Boston

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The Justice Department was asked by a congressional committee yesterday to look into reports that "a condition which may embrace criminality exists" in the Boston office of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

A subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee suggested "appropriate action" by the Attorney General. A similar request was made to the Treasury Department, the Internal Revenue Commission and the Civil Service Commission.

To support its request the subcommittee sent the transcript of secret hearings in the case and a report by Robert E. Lee, chief of the committee's investigating staff.

Violations Indicated

Lee reported that "a review of the evidential material" appeared to indicate:

"1. A disregard of trust funds.

"2. Lack of proper control and supervision over various collections from outside charitable and political organizations, including the March of Dimes and the Jefferson Day dinners.

"3. That the civil and criminal sections of the Hatch Act may have been deliberately and consistently violated by the office of the collector at Boston, Mass."

Copies of its hearings and records also were sent to Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Testimony was that funds belonging to the foundation were found in an unlocked file cabinet drawer in the Boston office.

Report Made December 3

Lee, a former FBI agent, identified Denis W. Delaney as collector of internal revenue at Boston when his report was made December 3. He said reductions made by Congress in Treasury Department funds appeared "to have been deliberately applied to the field staff of the Internal Revenue service, predominately in the enforcement arm."

His investigation was a result of reports to the committee that the Treasury had "improperly" distributed cuts in its budget. During committee hearings on the Treasury appropriation bill, officials predicted revenue would be lost if shortage of funds made curtailment in enforcement necessary.

The printed record of hearings by the subcommittee, headed by Representative Canfield (R., N. J.), contains a memorandum dated February 25, 1946, to Delaney from John E. Burns, chief office deputy at Boston. It read:

"In considering promotions in the field I thought you might like to have a list of employes who purchased dinner tickets to the Hannegan reception."

Robert E. Hannegan was then Postmaster General and Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Promotions Cited

Lee testified that of 57 people on the list, 32 were subsequently promoted, 20 already were in the top grade for their jobs, 2 had resigned, 1 died and 1 retired.

Delaney said he did not remember the memorandum but "if such a memorandum was in my office . . . I would destroy it the very minute I received it because I think communications of this kind have no bearing on our office." He denied being influenced by donations in making promotions.

Burns testified he could not explain "at this time" why he wrote the memorandum, but said it was "purely coincidental" that the list of contributors was almost identical with that of employes promoted. He explained that practically all field men had been promoted at the same time after a delay for veterans to return from service.

250 Reservations Made

Lee testified that documents were found in the Boston office indicating that reservations had been made for 250 persons at the 1947 Jefferson Day dinner in Boston and that all but nine had been paid for, at $25 a plate, through the collector's office.

Jeremiah W. Taylor, chief office deputy, explained that these were handled through the collector's office because there was a "voluminous" demand for tickets and employes asked help in getting them. They also asked, he said, that arrangements be made to seat them together and the list was sent to the Jefferson Forum for seating arrangements.

Numerous references to these transactions in the committee transcript were subtitled "possible violation of the Hatch Act."

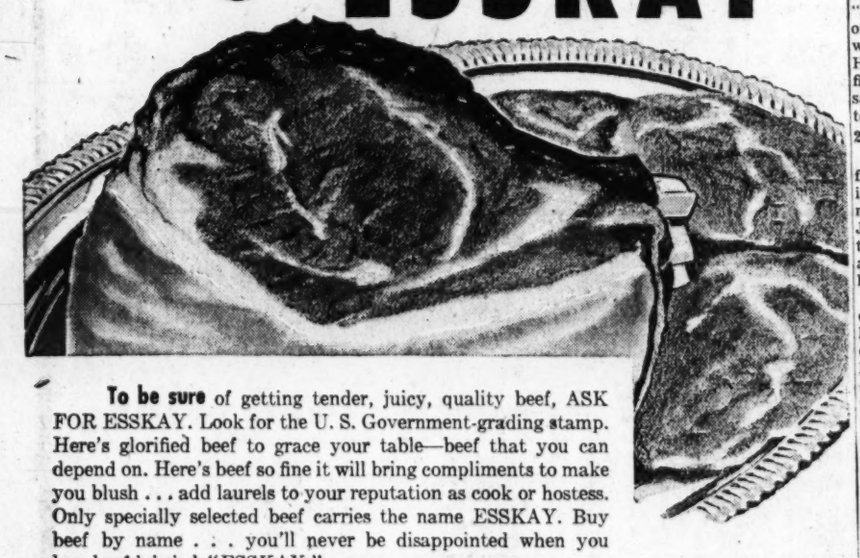
BUY BEEF BY NAME!
The Best Name on Beef is . . .
ESSKAY"



To be sure of getting tender, juicy, quality beef, ASK FOR ESSKAY. Look for the U. S. Government-grading stamp. Here's glorified beef to grace your table—beef that you can depend on. Here's beef so fine it will bring compliments to make you blush . . . add laurels to your reputation as cook or hostess. Only specially selected beef carries the name ESSKAY. Buy beef by name . . . you'll never be disappointed when you buy beef labeled "ESSKAY."

Meat on the table means your family is getting the kind of nourishment we all need—grownups and children alike. ESSKAY Beef is rich in complete, high-quality, body-building protein. Protein in your meals helps keep your body in good repair—helps you keep fit and feel fit.

Again, as it has been ESSKAY's once-a-year custom, we have bought a large percentage of the prize winning cattle at the Eastern National Live Stock Show. Included in ESSKAY's purchases of prize winning show cattle is the Grand Champion Carload and Reserve Grand Champion individual steer. Many of these prize winners have been raised and fed by 4-H Club and F. F. A. Boys and Girls. This fine show-beef is an example of the same high-grade beef ESSKAY gives you all year 'round. Whatever the time of year, beef with the ESSKAY label is selected quality.

Union Local Officers Win On Appeals

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—The Maryland Court of Appeals nullified today an order temporarily restraining two Baltimore men from serving as local union officers.

The court returned the case to Baltimore City Circuit Court to allow the United Slate, Tile and Composition Roofers, Damp and Waterproof Workers Association (AFL), to include Local No. 80 in its suit against the two officers.

Joseph Martin, business agent and secretary-treasurer, and William Krumm, president, of the local, appealed to the high court after the Baltimore Court denied their motion to dissolve an injunction against them.

In seeking the restraining order, the international union president charged Martin with inefficiency and conduct "tending to bring the union into disrepute." No charges were made against Krumm, except that he was "wholly dominated" by Martin.

The international asserted Martin had been convicted of bookmaking on union premises and assaulting a policeman during a raid. It suspended the local charter and authorized Edward F. Hurley, an international vice president, to supervise local funds and documents until the union executive board acted on the charges against Martin and Krumm.

The court order was issued, but Martin and Krumm contended the union action was illegal and "arbitrary." They maintained the "local union was a necessary party."

Judge William Henderson's opinion for the Court of Appeals compared the case with a corporation receivership, declaring it clear that the local union "was a necessary and indispensable party."

The lower court was ordered to set a time limit for the union to include the local in its bill for injunction.

Hospital Bid Protest Denied By State Board

Richmond, Va., Dec. 11 (AP).—The State Hospital Board today formally rejected a protest over an award of a construction contract for work at Eastern State Hospital, Williamsburg.

The board's action had been contemplated in view of a ruling by Atty.-Gen. Harvey P. Apperson last week that the board had acted within its legal rights in awarding the contract on an emergency basis.

At the suggestion of Gen. E. Walton Opie of Staunton a resolution was unanmiously adopted directing the chairman of the hospital board to answer a letter of Attorneys Beecher E. Stallard of Richmond and Lee Ford of Newport News relative to construction work at Eastern State, which was awarded J. Kennon Perrin Co., of Richmond.

Tax Payer Protests

Th etwo attorneys protested the award on a cost, plus fixed-fee of $47,000 in behalf of Paul F. Baker, sr., identified only as a Richmond citizen and tax payer.

The protest was based on the contention that the Eastern State situation was not an emergency in the proper sense and that therefore the board acted illegally.

Another important item to come before the board today was a committee report from Dr. R. A. Morison of Abingdon on the problem of dealing with alcoholics in the State.

Alcoholic Problem Acute

H. Miner Davis of Lynchburg told the other board members that he considered the question of alcoholics "one of the most acute" before the people of Virginia and urged that positive action be taken.

A contract for work on a roof at Dejarnette Sanatorium at Staunton was awarded to C. E. Nuckols of Richmond on a low firm bid of $58,000 on the condition that a deficit appropriation bill will be made available by the Governor to assist in paying for the work. The board at present has $39,500 to be used for this purpose.

Berkeley Workers Give Hour's Pay for Poor

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 11.—"An hour of your pay so our children can play" is the slogan of the Berkeley County War Memorial Association here. The group is attempting to raise $100,000 for completion of a swimming pool and bathhouse before next summer.

Garland L. Dunn, president of the association, said that a system of monthly payroll deductions of one hour's pay is being worked out by employes and employers in the county. Dunn said that about $42,000 has been collected.

MARY RIVERA PAREJA, 22-year-old brunette, filed suit in Los Angeles yesterday against Enrique Pareja, 34, a Peruvian importer, for $311,500 and a decree of separate maintenance. She contends Pareja entered into an "agreement of marriage" with her, but declined to follow it with a marriage ceremony, although they once resided as man and wife, she said

Martinsburg Judge Considers Annexation

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 11.—Judge D. H. Rogers yesterday took under advisement a petition of City Council for annexation of suburban Rosemont. In an informal referendum several months ago, a majority favored the proposal, and at a public hearing yesterday supporters and opposers of the measure appeared. State law permits Circuit Court jurists to make minor adjustments in municipal lines.

Man Uses Ax-Handle on Fairlington Striker

st., just across from Fairlington on the line dividing Alexandria and Arlington County.

According to Sergt. Francis Johnson of the Alexandria police, who investigated the fight, three Fairlington workers got out of a pick-up truck and entered the store where there were a group of strikers.

The three workers, he said, were John Crone, 75, of 3324 King st.; Benjamin Hamilton, 46, of 1011 Queen st., and Henry Gray, 24, of Muirs ct., all of Alexandria.

There was a "controversy" inside the store, Sgt. Johnson said, and the trio was "chased out" by the strikers. Gray, who was the driver of the truck, ran to it and grabbed a pick-axe handle.

The strikers gathered around Gray, Sgt. Johnson said, and Gray struck out with the handle, hitting James Smith, whose age and address were not given. Then, said police, Crone, Hamilton and Gray ran from the scene.

Photographer Sees Fight

Bob Burchette, an advertising photographer of The Washington Post, said he was at the corner, fixing the tail-light on his car, when the fight broke out. About a dozen men were in the crowd, Burchette said, and he saw someone pick up a length of steel pipe, and another man gram a piece of rock while a third man wielded the pick-axe handle.

Burchette said he could not determine which men were strikers or nonstrikers at the time. The man hit by the pick-ax handle partly warded off the blow by raising his arm.

The union said last night that James Smith, who started work at Fairlington in 1941, was treated by a Washington physician for bruises. Samuel Levine, union attorney, said Smith will swear out a warrant against the man who hit him.

Justice Investigation Asked

Local 82 called for an immediate investigation and "appropriate action by the United States Justice Department in connection with:

"(1) Importation of armed strikebreakers to Fairlington; (2) the use of United States Government trucks by a private corporation for strikebreaking purposes; (3) the use of United States Government trucks by the corporation for the purpose of conveying weapons to strikebreakers."

The union statement declared that the pick-up truck in which the nonstrikers were riding had the name "Fairlington" on its side and bore United States Government license plate NH-1614. Before Fairmac Corp. took over Fairlington on October 10, it was operated by Defense Homes Corporation.

Prins, speaking for Fairmac, declared that the three Fairmac workers "were attacked" by the strikers in a "completely unprovoked" assault. "It's quite evident," he said, "that our men acted to defend themselves. We're going to prosecute this to the limit."

The three workers, he said, have been employed by Fairmac for several years and remained on the job when the strike began.

Truck Ownership Explained

He said that the truck involved is registered in Fairmac's name, but because of a question over its motor number the Government license tags have been temporarily continued.

Since the union, which claims it represents the 170 maintenance workers at Fairlington, called the strike on December 1 to protest management's refusal to bargain with it, Fairmac has been bringing in outside workers.

On Tuesday, Arlington County sent in two garbage collection trucks and eight men to make collections in Fairlington and prevent "a health menace." Both the union and the Arlington Republican Committee criticized this work, and it was discontinued yesterday.

Search for Transport Fails in Europe

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 11 (AP).—The full-scale search for a U. S. Air Force transport plane which disappeared 13 days ago on a flight from Pisa, Italy, to Frankfurt ended tonight without solving the mystery of its whereabouts. Twenty persons were aboard.

The final day was marked by a widespread search by 85 American planes and an undetermined number sent up by other nations on the plane's route.

youngsters' activities in the future.

Referring to the case of the six juveniles who slept in an automobile after it became mired on a secluded road, Judge Owens said the evidence indicated poor judgement by the youngsters, but "no trace of neglect by the parents, who obviously were frantically alarmed by their children's absence."

He said parents of the other children, including boys and girls between 11 and 15 years of age, had been severely criticized and warned they would be returned to court if they did not exercise more rigid control over the youngsters.

The parents were brought to court on complaints filed by the county's probation department.

purpose without protest, the statement declared.

The motion filed in court by Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton D. Korman, declared that the question of an injunction is "moot" since the transfer of the two schools has taken place.

In an affidavit filed with the motion, Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent in charge of Negro schools, said that as a result of the use of the two annex buildings Browne students will get 65 minutes more instruction a week in each subject than pupils in any other junior high school in the city.

Embezzler Gets Sentence Of 15 Months

A former Safeway Store manager was sentenced to 15 months in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday for embezzling $6294 in store funds to recoup gambling losses.

Cary Roper, 38, of 11 Ridge ave. se., was sentenced in Montgomery County Circuit Court, after he pleaded guilty, admitting he lost the money in a Howard County gambling house. He was manager of the Safeway Store in Rockville.

Judge Charles W. Woodward said the fact that Roper had no criminal record prior to his arrest last May 4, and he reported the missing funds himself resulted in a lighter sentence.

Roper testified he visited the gambling house on several occasions losing up to $1000 a night. With each new loss, he said, he would take more of the store's money trying to recoup his losses.

Married, with two children, Roper had been with the chain grocery firm for 18 years.

3 Nominated For Rhodes Scholarships

The Maryland Rhodes Scholarship Selection Committee has nominated three youths for district scholarship competitions in Philadelphia tomorrow.

The three scholars are Fauntleroy Gee, jr., 21-year-old Baltimore Negro; Neil Carothers 3d, a member of the staff at Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory in Silver Spring, and Stephen W. Terry, 25-year-old St. John's College senior.

In Philadelphia tomorrow, the men will be interviewed by the district selection committee, which selects men from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Deleware and West Virginia for scholarships. District interviewers determine what students will be sent to Oxford Universiy, England.

Carothers, 28, a native of Bethlehem, Pa., graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree in electrical engineering from Princeton University in 1941.

Cosmopolitan Club Names Hartley President for '48

Milton E. Hartley, Washington vice president of the Corporation Trust Co., was elected 1948 president of the Cosmopolitan Club of Washington yesterday at its meeting at the Calrton Hotel.

Hartley

Succeeding Dr. Edwin H. Silver, Hartley will be installed at a luncheon January 8. Dr. Silver will represent the club as delegate to Cosmopolitan International.

Hartley, 49, a member of the club since 1934, is a resident of Falls Church, Va. A graduate of Georgetown University Law School, he has been associated with the Corporation Trust Co. since 1917. He was treasurer of the club in 1938 and a member of the board of managers in 1946.

Other officers elected were: vice president, Dr. Anthony J. Scullen, dean of engineering at Catholic University; secretary, Paul V. B. Heiss of the Potomac Telephone Co., elected for the ninth consecutive year to the post, and Milton J. Schlosser, Washington jeweler, treasurer.

Spring Cleared by D. C. Jury On Drunken Driving Charge

Chief Petty Officer Ralph H. Spring, 32, of the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., was acquitted of a drunken driving charge Wednesday by a Municipal Court jury.

The Washington Post erroneously reported yesterday that Spring had been convicted. The Washington Post regrets the error and is glad to make this correction.

The jury, sitting in the courtroom of Judge Thomas D. Quinn, returned with the acquittal after deliberating 30 minutes.

According to Pvt. Richard A. Barnes of the Tenth Precinct, Spring drove his car into a streetcar plow pit at Georgia ave. and Trumbull st. nw. on November 15.

Barnes testified that Spring said he had been at the Maryland-North Carolina football game at Griffith Stadium.

Testifying in his own defense, Spring said he took two drinks from a pint bottle of whisky at the game. He denied that he was drunk.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert Kneipp, in making his closing address to the jury, said he was impressed by Spring's appearance and thought him a credit to the Navy. Kneipp said he regretted having to prosecute the case, but that the law demanded it.

Spring, who was represented by Attorney Charles E. Ford, was graduated yesterday from a training school he has been attending at the Naval Medical Center. He will be sent to the West Coast and later to Honolulu.

Alexandria Legion Loses Beer License

Richmond, Va., Dec. 11 (AP).—Hunter Miller, chairman of the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, said today the board had suspended through next June a license of American Legion Post 24 at Alexandria permitting it to handle wine and beer.

A hearing was held here by the ABC Board on November 26 to determine whether the Legion post club's license should be suspended or revoked and after considering all evidence the board decided on the suspension for the balance of the present term. New licenses are issued on July 1.

The case, heard before Howard Siple on October 20, resulted in the hearing officer recommending that the license be revoked. Numerous reports of trouble at the Legion home were put into the evidence.

In appealing the case to the ABC Board members, officers of the Legion post declared they had taken steps to remedy the situation and contended that marked improvement had been made.

The license permitted the post to handle wine and beer on premises and beer off premises.

Parking Meters Stay

Luray, Va., Dec. 11.—The town council here has turned down a request for changes in the locations of parking meters. The proposal was made by a group of businessmen who contended that the meters constituted unfair discrimination.

Industry Maps Conservation Of Fuel Oil

By The Associated Press

A twin-pronged drive by the petroleum industry to encourage conservation of fuel oil and supply more of it to shortage areas was in the making yesterday.

Davidson

At the same time, Interior Department official announced that no Government rationing of petroleum products is contemplated immediately, even though Congress should make such a step possible.

C. Girard Davidson, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, told a judiciary subcommittee yesterday that the department is willing to await the outcome of the industry's voluntary program. He expressed hope this would cut consumption by 10 per cent.

The committee is considering an Administration bill which would give the Government power to allocate critical scarce materials.

Conservation to Be Stressed

A spokesman for the American Petroleum Institute said the oil industry plans to conduct an extensive advertising campaign asking fuel oil users to use all possible conservation methods. He called it an "educational" program and said that it will get under way immediately.

The Petroleum Institute official, who asked not to be identified, said the program will be directed only at fuel oil conservation at present. He added that he knows of no campaign to cut down on pleasure driving to conserve gasoline.

Previously Davidson had indicated at the hearing that the voluntary campaign would include gasoline as well as fuel oil.

He told a reporter later, however, that the fuel oil situation is the more critical and that it is "perfectly normal" to concentrate on it at this time.

This does not preclude, however, the possibility of an appeal from the White House for self-rationing of gasoline by motorists. Such a step was predicted in testimony before a Senate committee Friday by Robert Friedman, counsel for the department's oil and gas division.

Gas Shortage Foreseen

Davidson told the committee yesterday there are indications that there will be a severe gasoline shortage late next summer.

The oil industry effort to lessen the threat of cold homes in some areas this winter through more equitable distribution of fuel oil was instigated by Senator Tobey (R., N. H.), chairman of a Senate Commerce Subcommittee on Coal and Oil Shortage.

Tobey last night appointed a 10-member industry committee and charged it with the job of producing "results" from testimony given before his committee Tuesday. He said the testimony indicated that "transportation, apparently, is one of the keys to the situation."

The New Hampshire Senator asked the industry leaders to pay particular attention to the needs of New England, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York, where the situation is regarded as acute. He asked for a report by December 18.

Last American Troops Quitting Italy Sunday

Leghorn, Italy, Dec. 11 (U.P.)—The last American troops will leave Italy aboard the transport Admiral Sims on Sunday, the Italian peace treaty deadline, Maj. Gen. Lawrence C. Jaynes, Mediterranean theater commander, announced today. They will arrive in the United States by Christmas.

A graves registration team and a liquidation commission will remain in Italy as nonmilitary groups, Army officials said. About 5000 American troops are stationed in the Trieste area as part of an international police force.

Citizens' Associations

Anything that tends to keep new blood out of the local citizens' associations has the inevitable effect of frustrating natural growth and of making the groups unrepresentative. For this reason we look with misgivings upon the recent attempt of the Federation of Citizens Associations to deny a seat to the delegate choosen by the Kalorama Citizens Association, Mrs. Sylvia Wubnig. The pretext on which Mrs. Wubnig was denied a seat, that her membership in the League of Women Shoppers proved her to be disloyal, was so absurd as to reflect on the good sense as well as the good faith of the federation. The decision to seat Mrs. Wubnig taken Saturday night was made imperative by every consideration of fair play.

Now, however, it is proposed to change the organization's by-laws in such a way as to exclude from the parent body all delegates not in conformity with the ideas of the persons in control. The revised by-laws would automatically disqualify any delegate who is a member of any group pronounced subversive by any Federal Department, agency, or branch. This would be, in effect, to disqualify any person belonging to an organization called subversive by the House Committee on Un-American Activities—or, in other words, any person entertaining views more progressive than, say, those of John Rankin or J. Parnell Thomas. In addition, the revised by-laws would deny a seat to any delegate judged to have interests inimical to the United States. The extravagant vagueness of such a stipulation leads one to fear that it is designed to test conformity rather than civic spirit.

There is a ferment in the rank and file of the citizens' groups. It was manifested in the Kalorama citizens' election of Mrs. Wubnig to represent them. There was another symptom of it in the resolution adopted lately by the Georgetown Progressive Citizens Association indorsing the report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights and dissociating the local from the federation's condemnation of that report. The ferment is a healthy one, a sign of growth. The federation can serve the community effectively only in the degree to which it affords a medium of expression and activity to all elements in the community's life.

Arab And Jew

Even though, as the London Times points out, the U. N. vote on Palestine was the "mere recognition of accomplished fact," the Arab League's decision not to accept the U. N. Assembly's recommendation was not unexpected. There had been little diplomatic effort to develop Arab cooperation, and the problem of Palestine has been allowed to become a festering sore. Now the State Department must make up for lost time, as, for instance, in economic cooperation. An economic project which would appeal to the joint interests of both Jew and Arab in Palestine is a TVA for the River Jordan. An outline is available in W. C. Lowdermilk's book, Palestine, Land of Promise. When the book was published, this newspaper advocated the undertaking that Mr. Lowdermilk sketched, and several times has mentioned it as capable of "absorbing the problem of Palestine," as we put it as far back as January 6, 1946. The suggestion is made more valid as the Arab League, spearheaded by the Mufti of Jerusalem, seeks to stir up the Arab people against the United Nations.

Actually the Arab League is a loose group of mutually jealous chieftains and heads of governments. None of them is indissolubly united with the other in any matter, let alone in opposition to the partition of Palestine. Now that the Arab world has landed on our front pages, little is remembered of the coups and riots in the Arab world since it was liberated from the Turkish yoke. In other words, what is going on now is nothing new. Disturbances generated by anti-foreignism and internal instability have been endemic in most of the Arab countries whose spokesmen are now echoing the Mufti that the sword has been unsheathed—as if it had ever been sheathed. In turn, and sometimes simultaneously, the sword has been raised against the British, the Jews and Arabia's own rulers.

The fact of the matter is that today, altogether aside from Palestine, virtually all the regimes are uneasy. In these circumstances the occupants of the five thrones in the Arab world will walk very warily. Doubtless King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan is the one who most regrets having taken a header into Pan-Arab politics. He is an expansionist, and would like nothing better than to grab Arab Palestine. But, having taken his plunge, he could not retreat, though the Arab politicos had to put him under great pressure on the eve of the Arab League's statement. Anyway, the Arabs in Palestine, if they had to make a choice in their allegiance between Trans-Jordan and Syria, would prefer Syria. To add to the complications around Palestine, Abdullah is at odds with the Syrian republic over his designs for a greater Syria.

As for Iraq, the Regency has long been under threat from the very same persons whose revolt in 1941 left Britain's wartime position in a perilous state. In Egypt, King Farouk never knows from one day to another whether the republicans will triumph. The chieftain who is most secure on his throne is Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia. Besides, he is the most statesmanlike figure in the Middle East, with a strong leaning, aided by the American oil interests which furnish him his royalties, toward modernization. Those oilmen are in sharp contrast to the British officials on the spot whose fortification of Arab backwardness and concentration on divide and rule brought on their heads the irate criticism of Wendell Willkie. Our diplomats, now wringing their hands over the Middle Eastern problem, could take a leaf out of the oilmen's book with profit.

A premium is put on our diplomacy to fortify the U. N.'s partition solution with an economic weapon aimed at benefiting Jew and Arab alike. The way to Arab-Jew cooperation is paved in the very terms of the partition plan recommended by the General Assembly. The plan is officially called Plan of Partition with Economic Union. One depends upon the other, as the Woodhead Commission of 1938 went to some pains to demonstrate. It was recognized then, it is recognized now, that binationalism in economic relations was an adjunct of any petition plan—if the bad blood that had been shed made nothing else tolerable. And, as we know from history, an economic tie-up is the inevitable forerunner of political unity. This is a consummation devoutly to be wished. With tempers as well as rights in collision in Palestine, economic union might be the nucleus of an agreed instead of an enforced solution, if supported by a plan for economic development on the lines of a River Jordan Authority.

Now For Action

It was a foregone conclusion that the House would approve the interim aid bill, but the victory is blunted somewhat by the refusal of the legislators to stand up and be counted. The voice vote on such a significant measure will be puzzling to the foreign onlooker. The explanation lies in the schisms in Republican ranks. There was a dislike to put the split on foreign aid on record, as well as an unwillingness to air intra-party disagreements in public. The incipient rifts on the Republican side of the Senate between freshmen Senators and the leaders have already got too much attention in the newspapers for Republican comfort.

But the affirmative vote is the thing on which to dwell. To be sure, there are a few differences to be ironed out between Senate and House, but the task should be accomplished swiftly and without much difficulty. The amount of interim aid still has to be settled. The Senate authorized 597 million dollars; the House 590 million dollars, with China added to the House list of recipient nations. The House left the allocations blank, but in committee asked for 60 million dollars for China. This is likely to be the only stumbling block between the two branches of Congress. We, of course, hope that China will be left out, for Secretary Marshall has said that China will be the subject of a separate measure to be submitted later.

The House also has made certain conditions of aid which the members must know are unworkable. One is a kind of certification from the beneficiaries that no Communist will be employed in the distribution of relief. We anticipate, however, no serious impediment to conference agreement and then to action in speeding argosies of help to the beleaguered and hungry peoples of western Europe.

Administration Plan

In answer to repeated demands for a concrete legislative program, Secretary Harriman has submitted a bill to a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee embodying some of the President's anti-inflation recommendations. Provision for direct control of prices and wages, as recommended by the President, is not included. In fact, Administration spokesmen have been noticeably reluctant to discuss such proposals. In spite of their conspicuous lack of enthusiasm for this aspect of the President's program, Mr. Truman announced yesterday that he would send specific wage and price control legislation to Congress within the next few days.

In our opinion, the broad allocation and rationing powers requested under the draft bill are essential to protect the country from economic dislocation and inflation. The grant of such powers would not, according to Mr. Harriman, imply "anything approaching a comprehensive system of controls over materials, products and productive facilities." The bill calls for a selective-control program authorizing direct consumer rationing of specified scarce foods and fuels and a few other articles. More restricted powers of control would be applied to materials, such as iron and steel, in the form of priority orders, inventory controls and set-asides to insure fulfillment of essential contracts and satisfy the most important foreign and domestic needs. Provision is also made for an extension of export controls, with the power to refuse export licenses for too highly priced goods.

With the removal of legal obstacles to agreements among producers, as contemplated in the bill, Secretary Harriman believes that a great deal could be accomplished by voluntary cooperation of industries to channel scarce materials into most essential uses. Provided the Government is given allocation powers so as to discipline nonconformists in case of need, Mr. Harriman's confidence in the efficacy of the so-called voluntary approach is probably justified. But a check is necessary, for without it we doubt the success of purely voluntary agreements among competing industrial concerns.

If the Government were given power to ration scarce foods and fuels, it might be possible to put a brake on price increases without resort to direct price controls, since rationing would reduce the competitive scramble for limited supplies. Nevertheless, a rationing system affords no guarantee against excessively high prices for the rationed commodity in the absence of price controls. We believe, therefore, that the Government should also have authority to impose price ceilings selectively on essential commodities in short supply, the prices of which have reached, or threaten to reach, levels that cannot be justified by any criterion of reasonableness. For similar reasons it should be empowered to put ceilings on wages in industries subject to selective price control.

Congress will, no doubt, refuse to give the Administration the necessary authority that it seeks to curb inflation. If living costs soar to still dizzier heights as a result, it may attempt to repair the damage only when it is too late to avert disaster. For, as the President said in his address to Congress outlining his anti-inflation plans: "The only prudent course is to establish the authority (requested) at this time so the necessary preparations can be started. If we fail to prepare and disaster results from our unpreparedness, we shall have gambled with our national safety—and lost."

China's Generals

The Capital at the moment is entertaining a distinguished visitor from China who could enlighten the many members of Congress who are constantly asking for truth and not fiction about China. He is Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, the famous "Christian general," who is visiting America for the first time—on a mission of inquiry into river conservancy. Actually Marshal Feng is in the doghouse so far as Chiang Kai-shek is concerned, but Chiang was so constrained by Feng's prestige with the people and the armies of China—all of them, Communist as well—that he gave him a mission abroad and a high-sounding title as the mark of his displeasure. Feng's "crime" is that he refused to participate in Chinese killing of Chinese. In other words, he was opposed to the civil war, and, in protest, resigned his post as vice generalissimo of the Kuomintang armies under Chiang Kai-shek.

In this country Feng has been an unremitting critic of the generalissimo and the misconduct of affairs by the clique around him. But, instead of rebukes from Nanking, all he has got so far is the extension of his commission in America! Renowned in China as a blunt man, he is calling a spade a spade in Washington, and recently, when he read that the venerable Li Chai-sum had been read out of the Kuomintang for criticism such as Marshal Feng is indulging in, he blandly cabled to the generalissimo that he felt "humiliated" that he had not been consigned to outer darkness along with his friend, Li.

The news he bears from China is that, with the declining fortunes of Chiang Kai-shek's war machine, graft and irresponsibility are in the ascendant in Chiang's domain. Commandeering of men and things has become so shocking that Chinese progressives are refusing to have anything to do with Chiang. The generalissimo is making things worse by such acts as the proscription of the Democratic League, which comprises the very men that Secretary Marshall, when he left China, looked to for salvation. In these circumstances any aid that this country extends to China will simply go into the coffers of the Chiang oligarchy. As for arms to Chiang, they would simply perpetuate the civil war, and make the name of America execrated. As it is, the American origin of most of Chiang Kai-shek's arms is advertised far and wide by Chiang's henchmen after they have been employed against Chinese villages, and then lost to the opposing armies.

It is wrong to think that the present war is a war between Chiang Kai-shek and the Communists. It is a gigantic melee in which many factions and dissidents, as well as the Communists, are engaged against Chiang Kai-shek. A bare chance remains of mediating this fratricidal strife, but if this is impossible, and, furthermore, if Chiang is defeated, any new regime in Nanking would certainly not be Communist. Marshal Feng, whose view this is, merely confirms what most sober observers of the confusion in China report.

FULL MOON: REMEMBERED WARNING

Full moon above the quiet river, the marble city,
Gold over white.
No twinkling tower shows, no street or bridge
Patterened in light.
With helmet, torch and whistle the warden passes.
Drugged hours creep.
Like litters of fox and the mouse who huddle in darkness,
Man will not sleep.
What whisper tingles on the tongue? What word of horror
In warning?
Who is brash enough not to be thinking on the pale
Far sky of morning?
Suddenly, hark! Wild clamor of siren winding in moonlight,
Screaming,
"All clear! No plane of the enemy. Not tonight. Not tonight.
City go back to your dreaming."

Civil Rights Report

With all our varying points of view, most Washingtonians have some degree of interest in the report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights.

A strongly worded resolution concerning this report was adopted by the Federation of Citizens Associations, stating it "resents and deplores many misleading and inaccurate statements in the report." The resolution was proposed by Clifford H. Newell, retiring president.

We believe that, in the interest of improving conditions in the District, it would be helpful if Mr. Newell would make public the factual data upon which he bases his charges.

The resolution also charges that the "report principally confines its findings to conditions and social life in the District of Columbia." It is hard to understand this, since only about eight pages out of 178 directly concern the District of Columbia.

The resolution further charges that "not a single member of the committee resides in Washington, D. C." It should be pointed out that Boris Shishkin and James B. Carey not only have worked here many years, but live in metropolitan Washington (Alexandria). Moreover, it is a widely accepted fact that experts unhampered by local ties and prejudices can usually conduct a more objective survey of sociological situations.

Finally, the resolution charges that "All or at least most of the said committee are active members of organizations that are notoriously biased and prejudiced against the accepted and traditional customs and conditions in the District of Columbia." This, too, needs clarification, and seems irrelevant, anyway, as the committee were concerned with the civil rights of every citizen of the United States, not the District alone.

"Antisocial Landlords"

Your editorial of December 8 attacking District landlords and praising the Rent Control Administrator misses the point. The fact is that in effect, but not in words, Mr. Cogswell has been surely and deliberately raising the prevailing rent level for the District an average of about 9 per cent, and as his authority for this "modest" fillip to the inflation spiral he cites the Rent Control Act—which was enacted to keep inflation down. All a landlord need show to get some increase is that taxes and operating expenses have gone up, and what landlord can't show that?

Mr. Lusk's complaint is that since the inevitable result is going to be a rent increase in the average above noted, why require the elaborate, expensive and somewhat hypocritical mummery of petitions, hearings, witnesses and elocution? For nothing the tenant can say will avail him in the typical case.

The real point is that the rent control statute is being methodically frustrated in its administration, to the consistent advantage of landlords. Mr. Cogswell's reading of the law is curious. Purporting to follow it literally, he apparently holds it to be irrelevant that a landlord's over-all income attributable to the real estate in issue may have actually increased in consequence of the elimination of normally heavy items of real estate charges such as apartment vacancy, decorating and services incident to normal competition. Indirect increase in income has accrued in the removal of rent ceilings on garages, beauty parlors and retail service outlets to be found in a considerable number of the apartment houses involved in the current increase campaign.

Pidgin English

In Time's December 1 issue, Wabash College's Prof. W. Norwood Brigance is quoted: "If the standard speech continues to be pidgin English, Hawaii will never fully become a cultural part of the United States. Politically it may become the forty-ninth State, but its people . . . will be held in contempt . . ."

Elsewhere the article explains pidgin: "In easy going pidgin, one word does the work of 20, a shrug or grimace the work of 10."

In a world of too many words and too little action he cries "wolf" at a possible aid. Maybe the U. N. could use a little pidgin. Progress is very slow with the present "cultured" languages.

Snow Parking

The Police Department informs me that the wholesale posting of snow signs, "No parking from 2 a. m. to 9 a. m." is an annual event, designed to keep the main streets clear for snow plows during the winter months. The obvious effects will be a decrease in precious overnight parking space, and an increased revenue from parking tickets. Those of us who live in thickly populated sections, where the parking problem is already very acute, can now look forward to longer daily hikes to and from our cars.

In Milwaukee, (or almost any Northern city where snow is a real problem) the situation is handled in a more reasonable manner; after a heavy snowfall, motorists are requested via frequent short radio announcements to move their autos for the plows. Those who don't are likely to find their cars snowbound the next morning from the work of the plows. It takes only one lesson to educate every driver to move his car during or immediately after each storm, whether or not he hears the radio requests. Thus valuable parking space is not needlessly wasted throughout the whole winter and the city's faith in the integrity and intelligence of its motorists has been fully justified.

AVC And The Communists

In The Washington Post editorial of December 6, "He's Got 'Em on a List," reference is made to the fact that despite denunciations of the American Veterans Committee by Senator Taft and Representative Rankin, Attorney General Clark had in effect told these worthy legislators they were talking through their hats by not including AVC on his list of subversive organizations.

It is an indication of the unhealthy state of mind which has been induced by the hysteria sweeping the country that some persons have taken this editorial to mean that The Washington Post agreed with Representative Rankin and Senator Taft and thought that AVC should have been included on the list. We are certain this is not the case, but for the record several facts should be stated:

1. Representative Rankin has attacked AVC on several occasions with his usual slanders which would be libelous if uttered outside of Congress. We expect that Representative Rankin will continue to attack AVC as long as we continue to support legislation against discrimination in employment, antipoll tax legislation, and the report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights.

2. To my knowledge, Senator Taft has never been foolish enough to denounce AVC as communistic, although during the price control fight the positions of Senator Taft and AVC were, of course, diametrically opposed. On the other hand, AVC has enthusiastically supported Senator Taft's housing bill as well as joined him in his opposition to universal military training.

3. AVC's position on communism is unequivocal, as The Washington Post well knows. At our recent national convention a slate of officers which was avowedly anti-Communist was overwhelmingly elected.

Our platform adopted at this convention reaffirmed the preamble to our constitution to which all our members are required to subscribe, and which states as among our purposes: "To preserve the Constitution of the United States; to insure the rights of free speech, free press, free worship, free assembly, and free elections; to provide thorough social and economic security to all; to maintain full production and full employment in our country under a system of private enterprise in which business, labor, agriculture and Government cooperate."

Our platform stated clearly our opposition to totalitarianism of both the left and the right, and in planks too numerous to mention departed sharply from the policies advocated by the Communist Party. (Support of the United States proposal for international control of atomic energy, opposition to the Federal bonus, support of the Marshall Plan, etc.)

After the convention the progressive but non-Communist program of AVC was hailed, among others, by The Washington Post. A number of Congressmen took occasion to note that AVC delegates had proven that the way to defeat communism in America is not by denying Communists their civil rights but by outworking, outthinking, and outvoting them.

As veterans who believe firmly in the democratic ideals which we have indorsed, we reject the notion that the Communist Party possesses the key to the magic formula whereby the betterment of human welfare can be achieved. As progressives, we spurn the insincere cooperation of a minority group unquestionably obeying leaders whose objectives, including a totalitarian dictatorship, are irreconcilable with our own.

We realize that the mere fact that the AVC intends to stand fast on its progressive platform will cause some irresponsibles to attack our organization. But we think The Washington Post should make clear to its readers that no such attack was intended by its recent editorial.

CHAT PATERSON,
National Chairman, American Veterans Committee.
Washington.

Editor's Note: Mr. Paterson is entirely correct in his certainty that The Washington Post had no thought of urging that AVC (or any of the other organizations referred to in the editorial) be included on the Attorney General's list. Indeed, we heartily applauded the AVC's effective use of the democratic process to trounce its annoying Communist minority last summer. In commenting upon the differences of opinion in compiling lists of subversive organizations, we sought simply to show that such lists are inevitably capricious, or at any rate entirely subjective, and that to permit the compilation of them at all is, as we said at the conclusion of the editorial, to "forsake the freedoms that have been the true source of our security." But apparently the attempt at irony proved inept.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Taft's Negativism

NEW YORK.—A year ago, after the congressional elections, a Republican victory in 1948 seemed a foregone conclusion. Six months ago, that victory appeared nearly as certain.

However, traveling through the country, I have had the strong impression that the Republicans are determined to throw away that victory if they possibly can. The Republican pronouncements that come out of Washington have very little to do with the prevailing mood of the country.

The chief reason, it seems to me, is that the spokesman for the party in Washington is Senator Robert A. Taft. Or, rather, Taft is increasingly identified by the public as the official voice of the party.

Senator Taft is a "no" sayer. He says no by temperament and predilection. Because he is running for President he is more inclined than ever to say no, hoping thereby to curry the favor of opposition groups of every kind and variety.

But the country is not in a no-saying mood. The mood is one of confidence and buoyancy in spite of high prices. While there is skepticism on the score of European aid, even there the general feeling seems to be that the country is strong enough and rich enough to carry it through.

THE PRESENT mood may not endure. If even higher prices produce strikes and angry strife, then perhaps the mood of the majority may coincide with the twangy, nasal, ever-repeated "no" of the Senator from Ohio. That would seem to be the condition on which Taft is calculating—a revulsion against the party long in power.

As of today, however, the polls reflect prevailing sentiment when they show that President Truman would defeat Senator Taft as the Republican nominee—and by a considerable margin. Rather than any positive passion for the man in the White House, this means with many simply letting well enough alone.

Several of Senator Taft's colleagues have tried to make clear that he is not the sole official mouthpiece of the Republican Party. Senators Baldwin, Knowland, Aiken, Tobey and others have nearly as much right as Taft to speak for the GOP. They speak, of course, quite a different language. They say yes at least as often as they say no.

Taft's dominance, however, lies in the fact that his views coincide more or less closely with those of the ultraconservative gentlemen who, through all the lean years, have paid the party's bills and kept the party organization alive. Moreover, Taft's man, B. Carroll Reece, is the party's national chairman.

These ultraconservative gentlemen will have a great deal to say about the Republican nomination. Their real preference is for Taft. The chances that he will get the nomination seem to me to have improved in the past six months.

WHILE professional Republicans in the South are cautious, they will say, when pressed, that Taft has the edge in that region. Having assiduously cultivated these professionals, Taft should come to the convention next June with an impressive nest egg of Southern delegates.

In Taft's favor in the South, his negative stand on a fair employment law is cited. He is quoted as expressing doubt that a law could bring about equality of opportunity between the races. In contrast, the record of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, in obtaining adoption of a fair employment practices law in New York State, is cited to his disadvantage.

Col. Robert R. McCormick of the Chicago Tribune has named Taft as his first choice and Gen. Douglas MacArthur as his second. And the colonel will have a great deal to say about what the Illinois delegation does at Philadelphia.

These are substantial straws in the Republican wind. They can add up to nomination of the Senator from Ohio..

But whether that would mean a Republican victory, come next November, is quite another matter. Changes can occur very rapidly. One proof of that is the way in which President Truman's popularity rating has moved up and down.

Today the Taft voice has a harsh, discordant sound. It seems to identify the GOP with the negative when the country in its present temper is out to accentuate the positive.

Chinese Communists

As to "Chinese Communists" the conclusions of "Veritas" conflict with those of Mr. T. A. Hamilton as printed in The Washington Post of November 29. From the trenchant remarks of "Veritas" in The Washington Post of December 8, it is clear that their divergence of opinion arises from their different comprehension of the conditions in China.

It serves no useful purpose to enter into a discussion about conditions in China until such conditions are made known and the statement thereof is known to be verified. Among the latest reliable authorities published this year is the book of Harold R. Issacs entitled "No Peace in Asia."

May one respectfully suggest to "Veritas" that he read what a mythical knowledge he has relied upon as to Chiang Kai-shek and how far he must revise his conclusions. For countless generations there has been ancestral worship in China. The head-of-family rule has been religiously followed. It is directly anti-communistic. We may as well expect to see native-born Americans of our day turn to support a royalist dictator as to witness the Chinese become Communists.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

The Strategic Partnership

LONDON.—In tracing the development of the Anglo-American relationship since the end of the war, the role of Lieut. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay is not the least interesting problem to consider. The tough, hard-faced young general, who brandishes a cigar like a club, now has his headquarters in the small German city of Wiesbaden. From Wiesbaden, although Britain in 1947 is certainly no holiday resort, he makes fairly frequent trips to London. Here is a mystery, which must afflict the chiefs of the Soviet intelligence services like a throbbing tooth, and should interest anyone who wishes to understand British or American policy.

General Lemay, after all, is probably the greatest younger fighting leader who emerged in the American Air Forces in the Second World War. He contributed vitally to the tactics of our heavy bombardment of Germany. He led the crushing grand assault against Japan. He commanded the Twentieth Air Force when the bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. And now he has been plucked from the key post of director of air research and set down at Wiesbaden in command of the pitifully small American Air Force in Germany, succeeding an officer of lesser rank. Why has this extraordinary thing been done?

It does not take a very powerful mind to guess the answer. General Lemay is engaged in on-the-spot tactical and strategic planning of the if, as and when kind that may never bear fruit but is none the less essential to preparedness. As his trips to London clearly indicate, he is working fairly closely with the British Air Staff and, one suspects, with the Imperial General Staff as a whole.

At the same time, despite the smallness of the forces under Lemay's command, his mere presence in Germany is no doubt also intended to serve as a mild deterrent to Soviet military planners with an inclination to be too venturesome.

THERE IS nothing official about the foregoing speculations, and the conclusions are likely to be vociferously denied. Yet the betting is approximately 9 to 1 that these conclusions are correct. Furthermore, they are entirely in accord with the other known facts about the military-strategic aspect of the Anglo-American relationship. As to this, there is no need to speculate. It can be stated on the highest possible authority that the wartime frankness and intimacy, the close wartime partnership, between British and American strategists and planners has now been revived in these times of peace that is not peace.

Behind this state of affairs, there is a curious and important history. Not very long after V-J Day, when the British were prime targets of the Soviet's political and propagandistic drive, London formally proposed placing the Anglo-American Combined Chiefs of Staff—the formal link in the Anglo-American strategic partnership—on a permanent peacetime basis. It was an old idea of Winston Churchill's, which he had both sold to the cabinet and discussed in public. The Truman Administration, bemused by the great, phony "back to normalcy" campaign in the United States, reacted to London's overture like a nervous sea anemone being poked with a sharp stick.

Officially, the combined chiefs were then only kept in being because certain areas of combined military interest, such as Italy, were still garrisoned by considerable Anglo-American forces. After about a year, however, these forces were reduced materially; the target of the main Soviet attack shifted to the United States; and the British government became alarmed by its own left wing's constant agitation. London, in turn, now indicated to Washington that since there was no desire to maintain the combined chiefs on a permanent basis, the agency might as well be liquidated at once. In the interval, fortunately, the Administration in Washington learned about a few of the hard facts of the postwar world. Washington was horrified by London's new proposal. Where the pleading had emanated from London the year previous, it was now from the other end of the cable wire that the pleading came.

WASHINGTON'S pleas were successful. The combined chiefs again survived this new danger in their rather Perils of Pauline-like peacetime history. They are now, unofficially but in fact, on almost the kind of permanent basis which Churchill envisioned. As is suggested by the presence of General Lemay at Wiesbaden, the combined chiefs by no means carry the whole burden of Anglo-American strategic liaison. There has also been a good deal of what one highly placed military leader oddly, on the side, described to this correspondent as "healthy hanky-panky" through other channels. But the pattern of the Anglo-American partnership is far less important than the fact of the partnership's existence. What matters is that in the field of strategy, Britain and the United States are collaborating with the closest intimacy.

International good will is, on the whole, an extremely rare emotion among soldiers, sailors and airmen of any nation. Certainly British and American soldiers and sailors and airmen are not working so intimately together because they love one another's company. They are doing so, rather because their hard-headed, professional assessment of the world strategic situation imposes upon them this necessity, which most of them, probably, find rather disagreeable. It is all the more significant, therefore, that the same closeness of Anglo-American collaboration is not to be found in the political and economic field, and that this gap in the partnership may well upset all the best laid plans of the strategists. These aspects of the situation must wait, however, to be discussed in subsequent reports.

Palestine Aftermath

By Ernest Lindley

Risks In Partition

FOR BETTER or worse, the decision as to Palestine has been made. But criticism of it, even within our own Government, has not yet been put aside.

Lindley

Part of the criticism is applied to the decision itself, part to the conspicuous leadership finally asserted by the United States in bringing about the decision in the United Nations Assembly.

This, in brief, is what the more extreme critics foresee: The Arabs will oppose with armed force the partition of Palestine. When the British withdraw, the Russians will move in, either unilaterally or as part of a force dispatched by the U. N. Security Council to enforce the U. N. decision. Once the Russians are there, they will stay.

Such a forecast was attributed to high, but anonymous, United States military sources on the morrow of the U. N. decision. The fear is shared, up to a point, by political specialists in the Middle East. Some of them, while conceding that partition was probably the least unworkable answer to a difficult problem, think that the United States erred diplomatically in campaigning for votes in the U. N. Assembly. They would have preferred to see the United States say that it would support any reasonable solution attempted by the United Nations. Or, as the next best course, they would have liked to see the United States rest on an endorsement of partition without putting pressure on others to support partition. They fear that our active leadership in this matter will prejudice our relations with the Arab world for years to come.

THE POLICY and tactics of the United States in the Palestine controversy were, of course, influenced greatly by the American Zionists. Domestic politics, rather than a considered analysis of the interests of the United States, has been the predominant factor in our policy concerning Palestine.

At the same time, it is inconceivable that Secretary of State Marshall, who was trained as a military man and who thinks in terms of global strategy, would have lent his support to a policy which he believed would jeopardize our vital interests. Among the analyses provided for him was a blackly alarming report from the joint (United States) chiefs of staff. It may be said on reliable authority that, having read this paper to the United States delegation to the Assembly, General Marshall threw his head back and laughed.

As the Secretary of State certainly realizes, there are serious risks in the partition of Palestine. But there were risks also—probably greater risks—in delaying a decision any longer. There would have been no decision if the United States had not lined up a few votes—enough to give the required two-thirds majority in the Assembly. And there were risks in any other solution that might have been attempted.

THE DECISION has been made, and the U. N. must enforce it, if necessary. Our top policy makers believe that the Jewish state can cope with internal trouble and guerilla attacks. Organized armed attacks by Arab forces would, of course, be acts of aggression calling for action by the U. N. Security Council. The Russians could not move in without our approval, however. It is hardly conceivable that a Jewish state which owes its economic present and future chiefly to American money would invite the Russians to come in. Moreover, the execution of the U. N. decision has been entrusted to a commission of five small nations.

If help from the U. N. to deal with Arab aggression were needed, the United States probably would propose the dispatch of security forces by smaller nations having no direct interest in the Middle East. Some of our specialists doubt that this would be practicable. They say American troops would have to go—and, if our troops went, of course Russian troops, and probably British also. Then the Russians, with their secret police and highly-trained agents, would have a foothold which they might never give up.

But all this supposes: (1) that Arab forces will commit overt armed aggression and (2) that if they do there is no effective way of preventing the Russians from planting themselves at this strategic point at the eastern end of the Mediterranean. The second move, if made without the approval of the U. N. Security Council, including the vote of the United States, would be as clear an act of aggression as the first. It would mean war—a great war, not a little, local war.

There are risks in the course taken by the United States with regard to Palestine. But there were risks in any other course we might have taken, and even greater risks in taking no clear course. There is no escape from risk in the present condition of the world.

'Genuinely' Disabled Veterans Told Pensions Won't Be Cut

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The House Armed Services Subcommittee investigating the disability retirement system yesterday announced that genuinely disabled veterans had no reason to fear the subcommittee might recommend cutting their disability retirement pay.

Subcommittee Chairman Charles Elston (R., Ohio) said his group had been flooded with mail from disabled veterans who feared their disability pay might be cut.

The group is interested only in any racket which may have been used to get retirement pay for officers who don't deserve it, Elston declared.

"It is neither the desire nor the intention of this subcommittee to cast any reflection upon those veterans who are legitimately drawing disability retirement pay," Elston said in a press release.

"The object of our inquiry," he stated, "is to investigate the numerous charges of fraud, inequities within each of the departments and inequities between the departments.

"The committee wishes to assure disabled veterans that there is no cause for their misapprehensions."

The subcommittee began its inquiry after it was disclosed that Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, retired AAF procurement officer involved in sensational charges by the Senate War Investigating Committee, was drawing $550 a month tax-free disability retirement pay. Meyers was given the disability retirement on the ground that he was suffering from nervous exhaustion," a disability classed as psychoneurotic in nature.

After the committee had closed its hearings into the high-living, free-spending general's wartime financial transactions, Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington announced that without legal sanction the pension had been stopped.

At that time he said the Air Force was discussing with the Justice Department the proper time for a court-martial of Meyers. The pension could be legally removed after court-martial, military experts held.

The Meyers disclosure brought a demand from President Truman for a list of all officers in all branches of the armed services who are receiving disability pensions.

The list, which is to be furnished Saturday, is said to contain more than 30,000 names.

As a press conference yesterday Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal was asked if the armed services were investigating the possibility that other officers might have been involved in transactions similar to those of Meyers.

The Secretary said the whole matter is under study.

Currently District Attorney George Morris Fay and Assistant District Attorney Edward Molenof are presenting evidence against Meyers before a District grand jury.

The present phase involves evidence on perjury and subornation of perjury (the act of trying to get someone else to lie under oath).

This phase of the case is expected to be concluded today with testimony from Francis D. Flanagan, assistant counsel of the Senate War Investigating Committee, which had Meyers testify under oath.

Monday is the usual day in which grand jury indictments are returned.

Film Figures Weigh Return To D. C. Court

Martin Popper, member of defense counsel for the 10 Hollywood figures indicted here for contempt of Congress, said last night he will appear before Judge David A. Pine in District Court Monday in connection with the time of arraignment of his clients.

A Federal Court hearing for removal of the 10, who had refused to answer questions from the House Committee on Un-American Activities as to whether they were Communists, was recessed abruptly in Los Angeles yesterday for a conference on whether the 10 would waive objections to removal to Washington for arraignment December 19.

After the conference, Popper, who conferred with Attorney Robert Kenny in Los Angeles by telephone, said the situation was not sufficiently clear for comment.

To Insist on Removal

District Attorney George Morris Fay said he had asked United States District Attorney James M. Carter in Los Angeles to insist on removal proceedings if the 10 did not waiver their objections.

Fay said the representations to be made by counsel for the Hollywood figures had been scheduled to be heard before Pine at 10 a. m. Monday.

The 10 writers, directors and producers, all of whom used to earn about $100,000 a year, have been released under $1000 bond pending their appearance here.

After their refusal to testify before the House Committee, all 10 were either fired from the movie industry or barred from being given other jobs by the motion picture producers.

Communist Party membership cards of the 10 were put into evidence before the House committee after each refused to answer as to their affiliations.

Proceedings Halted

Removal proceedings were recessed in Los Angeles by District Judge J. F. T O'Connor after Kenny declared that the indictment charging contempt "is void on the face of it."

Kenny is president of the National Lawyers Guild, Popper is vice president for Washington, and Bartley C. Crum, another member of the defense counsel, is vice president for California.

The Associated Press reported from California that Kenny told Judge O'Connor he was raising a constitutional question in the removal proceedings which might require two days for arguments.

Fay has stated that the Government is asking that removal proceedings be confined to the question of identity of the persons charged.

Outcome Obscure

Poper confirmed news association stories that conferences had been initiated in Los Angeles to determine if the defendants would waive their objections to removal here December 19, although he said the result of the conference was still not clear.

He pointed out, however, that he was still going to make representations to Judge Pine on Monday regarding the time of arraignment, which indicated that the result of the conference was unsatisfactory to the defense.

Popper said the question at issue in California was not one of extradition, but simply removal here for arraignment. If the court orders his clients removed to Washington for arraignment December 19, he said, his clients will obey the court ruling and appear.

Hunger Victim Dies

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 11 (AP).—The Frankfurter Rundschau reported today that Hermann Weiss, 50, had died of undernourishment, and listed him as the winter's first hunger victim in Frankfurt.

NLRB Counsel Ruled in Error By Examiner

A trial examiner of the National Labor Relations Board yesterday rejected a contention that a strike by one union in a plant which has a contract with a rival union is a violation of the new labor law.

The decision, involving a new point raised by the Taft-Hartley Act, was handed down by Horace A. Ruckel. It was the first trial examiner's intermediate report to be issued since the effective date of the new law. Unless exceptions are taken to it within 20 days, it will have the force of an NLRB order.

In his decision, Ruckel sharply attacked contentions of the attorney representing NLRB General Counsel Robert Denham, who prosecuted the complaint. He said that the general counsel's theory, as stated in the case, "amounts to the concept of a strike as a conspiracy, a concept which has long been obsolete."

The case involved a strike at the Perry Norvell Co., of Huntington, W. Va. It has a contract, expiring at the end of this month, with an AFL union, the Boot and Shoe Workers.

The company discharged an employe, precipitating a strike. The leaders of the walkout were alleged to be fronting for a CIO union, the United Shoeworkers of America.

Denham issued a complaint against the CIO group, charging that the strike was called to force the company to violate its contract with the AFL union. He claimed that the CIO union violated a section of the Taft-Hartley Act forbidding union restraint and coercion of employes.

He argued that the strike was, itself, "the coercive element, and the responsible party for the strike . . . is the one who is responsible for the coercive element."

The attorney for the CIO group contended that with this theory the general counsel was seeking to "enlarge and extend" the Taft-Hartley Act so that "any strike which occurs on the part of employes during the life of an existing collective bargaining agreement constitutes coercion and restraint with respect to the rights of the other workers."

Ruckel apparently concurred, for he found that no actual restraint or coercion was involved.

"Neither the language of the act nor its legislative history furnishes any grounds whatsoever," he said, for the theory that the strike itself was the element of coercion.

It was not known yesterday whether Denham or other parties to the case will take exception to the examiner's ruling, and thus bring the matter before the NLRB itself for a hearing. Denham's office indicated last night that he would have no comment on the decision at this time.

Union Workers Get New Contract At Oak Ridge

Oak Ridge, Tenn., Dec. 11 (AP).—The labor dispute which had threatened to tie up production at one of the Government's largest atomic energy plants was settled early today when the Carbide & Carbon Chemicals Corp. and a CIO union agreed on a new contract.

The company and officials of the United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers Union reached agreement in two marathon negotiations meeting held immediately after plans for the first strike in the history of an atomic energy plant were shelved Monday by the union at the urgent request of the Government.

Under the new 18-month contract 3000 production workers at the giant gaseous diffusion atomic process plant receive a 10-cents-an-hour "across the board" wage increase and other concessions.

Throughout a month-long dispute, the union had held out for a 25-cents-an-hour blanket wage increase.

U. S. Transfers Six Gunboats To Greek to 'Help Selves'

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 11 (AP).—The United States transferred six gunboats to the Greek navy today and Greek Ambassador Basil Dendramis said in accepting them his country "will never cease to fight as long as our democratic way of life is at stake."

Rear Admiral W. L. Ainsworth, commandant of the Fifth Naval District, in an address at ceremonies at the Naval Station said the United States Government was helping those "we know will help themselves."

"The principle upon which the United Nations Charter was formed," said Ainsworth, "lies in the inherent right of sovereign states within themselves to determine their destiny . . . this transfer of ships from our Navy to yours is just the way we sailors of the United States Navy would have it. We are helping those whom we know will help themselves."

The transfer of the 173-foot ships for which 275 Greek officers and men have been trained under the Chesapeake Bay fleet training group is "a noble gesture . . . which deeply moves the Greek people," Ambassador Dendramis said.

"We have been at times alone without losing heart and we are not alone any more," he said. "In spite of all the shortcomings and the misgivings caused by the plight in which, once more, destiny has placed us, we are greatly heartened to know that in our struggle, along with all of the freedom-loving nations of the world, our great allies, the American people, are on our side."

The 22-knot ships, each mounting nine guns including three-inch dual purpose antiaircraft weapons and 60 mm. mortars, will be named after Greek naval officers who lost their lives in the last war.

THE WORLD'S FINEST OVERCOATS ARE AT LEWIS & THOS. SALTZ

The Lewis & Thos. Saltz establishment is a recognized agency for some of the finest overcoats ever to come out of England. Represented in our very comprehensive collection are coats from such noted makers as Burberrys, Rodex and Chester Barrie. Each coat is representative of the luxurious woolens and traditionally fine tailoring for which Great Britain is famous the world over. Crombies, fleeces, hand-woven Scotch and Irish tweeds, camel's hair and cashmeres, in preferred colorings.

Lorton Offers Overtime Pay

Inmates at Lorton Reformatory, who have plenty of time on their hands, may trade some of it in for money, the Commissioners decided yesterday.

The city heads approved a plan to give 35 prisoners extra pay for overtime work in the reformatory's license tag plant. The rate: $2 a month for four extra work hours per day, five days a week.

This will more than double the regular pay for some "employes," whose salaries range from $1.50 to $4.50 a month, Donald Clemmer, director of the Department of Corrections, revealed.

Clemmer recommended the pay boost as an "incentive" for "volunteer" laborers to work 12 instead of 8 hours a day, thereby speeding production of license plates.

The work speedup is necessary, Clemmer told the Commissioners, to insure delivery of 180,000 pairs of new license plates to the District by March 1.

Tags usually begin rolling off the Lorton production line before November 1, he said. But late delivery of dies this year made it necessary to postpone initial operations until next Monday.

Prisoners already have responded enthusiastically to the monetary incentive, Clemmer reported. "Every one of the tag plant workers has volunteered for the extra work," he said.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Truman Asks Transfer Of USES, Jobless Pay To Labor Department

REORGANIZATION: The President told his news conference yesterday that he will recommend to Congress next month an extensive reorganization of the Federal Government.

He revealed only one part of his plan, the transfer to the Labor Department of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation and the U. S. Employment Service. The BUC is now in the Federal Security Agency. USES, now in Labor, must be returned to FSA under existing law unless the President's plan is approved by Congress. Also, there's talk of transfering the vocational rehabilitation office of FSA to Labor.

These are additional reorganization plans under study by Government planners:

1. The transfer to the Federal Works Agency of Treasury's Bureau of Federal Supply and the independent War Assets Administration;

2. The creation of a department of transportation to include such agencies as Civil Aeronautics Administration, Inland Waterways, Civil Aeronautics Board, Office of Defense Transportation, Interstate Commerce, and possibly the Weather Bureau;

3. The transfer to the Commerce Department of several independent agencies such as Federal Trade Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, and the Tariff Commission, and finally,

4. Centralization of the Government's public power agencies in either the Interior Department or a new agency to be created. Involved in this study are these agencies: Federal Power Commission, Tennessee Valley, Agriculture's Rural Electrification Administration, Interior's and FWA's power projects.

Several of the plans under discussion could not be made under the present reorganization law because it exempts some of the agencies that would be involved in them from any revamping move. Apparently the Administration hopes to persuade Congress to remove all agencies from the exempted list.

The move to build up the Federal Works Agency, it's reported, is a step in the direction of the creation of a department of public works. Government planners are said to be convinced that either FWA must be given more to do, or else the FWA superstructure should be abolished and the agencies under it moved to the Interior Department.

The transfer of War Assets, it was explained, could be brought about by an executive order. Some thought is said to have been given to its transfer to FWA on January 1. FWA has been the liquidating agency for several war agencies such as WAA.

The move to transfer the Bureau of Federal Supply to FWA ties in with the WAA liquidation. FWA now has control of the Government's real estate and real property through Public Buildings Administration. WAA has real property to sell. The Bureau of Federal Supply purchases consumer items for the Government and WAA is selling such items as surplus. To get these agencies together, officials believe, would speed up WAA liquidation.

It isn't believed that Treasury would oppose the transfer of its supply bureau to FWA.

WORK WEEK: The Government 40-hour week for its employes was attacked yesterday by Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.).

Horan said he was amazed to learn that hundreds, if not thousands, of Federal workers also worked part-time at other jobs.

He said only that the Wage and Hour Act, which, incidentally, does not cover Federal employes, should be made "more flexible" both for Government and industry. He did not reveal how flexible he thought the law should be amended, or how far the work-week should be lengthened. Horan said:

"The health and welfare arguments for a shorter work week do not hold when a man sees fit to work 10 and 20 hours at another job after finishing 40 hours at his regular stand."

But as Senator Langer (R., N. D.) and Representative Stevenson (R., Wisc.) have pointed out previously, many Federal workers have been compelled to take side jobs to meet the high cost of living.

Any attempt to lengthen the 40-hour week isn't apt to be seriously considered with a general election coming up next year.

PAY RAISES: Representative John Dingell (D., Mich.) yesterday introduced a bill in the House to raise the salaries of most Federal workers by $1000 annually. Incidentally, all pay bills in Congress would raise the salaries of all classified employes, permanents as well as war service and temporary people.

BEP: Per diem employes at Treasury's Bureau of Engraving and Printing have requests in for pay raises up to 25 per cent. No decision will be made on the demands until after the Government Printing Office settles its wage problems.

Fewer Water Fowl In North America

Stillwater, Okla. (U.P.).—The number of water fowl on the North American continent has decreased considerably since 1945, according to Dr. F. M. Baumgartner, wild life specialist at Oklahoma A. and M. College.

Baumgartner said surveys made during the past summer in Canada and Alaska indicated fewer birds were nesting compared to the range available.

Gasoline Cost For Federal Agencies Up 1½ Cents

Supplier Increases Price of Fuel Oil 1.3 Cents; No Other Rise in D. C. Area

The price of gasoline was raised 1½ cents a gallon yesterday by one large supplier.

Petrol Corp. in Baltimore, which supplies the gasoline the Federal Government uses here and in Philadelphia, boosted its wholesale and retail prices on gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil.

The Petrol boost will apply to the Government as well as private purchasers, L. A. Forestell, a company spokesman, said.

Announced increases amount to 1½ cents per gallon on gasoline, both wholesale and retail, and 1.3 cents per gallon on kerosene and domestic grade fuel oil.

A Federal Bureau of Supply official estimated the price hike would boost the Government's gasoline bill "several thousand dollars."

Prices Rising Elsewhere

Other gasoline and oil dealers serving the Washington area said no price increases have been made. Some said any increase orders would come from home offices in other cities. Standard Oil Co. of Ohio boosted its gasoline prices last Monday 1½ cents in the Ohio area. Yesterday Standard Oil of Indiana ordered increases on gasoline, kerosene and fuel oils in 11 Midwestern States.

Petrol Corp. in Baltimore attributed the price increases to higher prices being paid for crude oil. The new Petrol wholesale prices, the company said, make regular grade gasoline 13.3 cents, premium grade 14.8 cents, kerosene 13.2 cents and domestic fuel oil, 12.2 cents.

Forestal said the Petrol Corp. increase was due entirely to an increase of 50 cents a barrel it pays for crude oil.

8.99% Rent Hike Granted For 117 Units

Ontario Apartment Tenants Had Agreed Upon 10% Increase

Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell yesterday granted an 8.99 per cent rent boost for 117 units at Ontario Apartment House, 2853 Ontario rd. nw.

Cogswell ordered the increase following a series of conferences with the owners' attorneys, Archibald and Lanier P. McLachlen. No public hearing was held because all the tenants consented to a 10 per cent rent hike, Cogswell explained.

Figures presented by the attorneys were checked by the rent control auditor and it was determined that increased operating costs warranted only an 8.99 per cent increase, he revealed.

Present rents range from $35 a month for one room and bath to $122.50 for eight rooms and bath. They bring the owners about $92,424 a year. Cogswell said the increase would add about $8316 a year to the owners' income.

Typical Wintry Day Forecast For D. C. Area

While you're buttoning your overcoat this morning you might take into serious consideration this official notice from the Naval Observatory:

Winter will begin officially in the Northern Hemisphere and summer in the Southern Hemisphere on December 22 at 11:43 a. m. EST.

Then you can put up your collar—even if it is only December 12. It'll be a typical wintry day, the weatherman says, very much like yesterday — mostly cloudy, maybe a little sun, and the mercury ranging from near freezing to about 38 degrees.

Weebee

More of same for the weekend, with no snow or rain in sight yet.

Over the rest of the Nation, more snow was reporetd. The coldest weather again was centered in North Dakota and Minnesota. Grand Forks, N. Dak., took the cake—frosting and all—with a low of 6 below. Icy highways in western Maryland caused some accidents, but no serious damage or injury was reported.

Hobson's Choice Peace, Magistrate Rules

Colorado Springs, Colo. (U.P.).—Hugh Crow decided that his neighbor made too much noise while he was trying to sleep. Crow hit the neighbor, John R. Hobson, in the face with a hammer.

When the two were brought before Police Magistrate Robert Schaper, Crow charged Hobson with disturbing the peace. Hobson, in turn, charged Crow with assault.

The magistrate fined both $15 and suspended sentence when they promised to get along peaceably in the future.

SNUBBED BY MOTHER—Twin polar bears, weighing barely 1 pound each when they were born Wednesday night in the National Zoological Park, are bottle-fed by Frank Lowe, head keeper. The cubs have little chance for survival, since their mother, Marian, a 20-year-old Polar, refuses to care for them. Lowe said if they get through the next 24 hours, they will probably live to become next spring's greatest attractions at the Zoo

Shoe Buyer Leaps 100 Feet To Death From D. C. Bridge

Samuel Norman Otto, 56-year-old Hahn Shoe Stores buyer, leaped nearly 100 feet to his death yesterday from the Massachusetts ave. bridge over Rock Creek Park.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Otto, 3260 Arcadia pl. nw., a resident of the District for 29 years, left home in his son's automobile as if going to work. A motorist on the parkway below the bridge saw his falling body about 8:45 a. m.

A note, addressed to his wife, Mrs. Lucille W. Otto; his son, Eugene, and his employer, Gilbert Hahn, president of the shoe firm, was found in his overcoat pocket. Police revealed Otto said he was "sorry" in the note but gave no indication of his motive.

Police said Rudolph O. Altrogen, 1610 Park rd. nw., driving in the parkway, saw Otto's body falling from the bridge at Massachusetts ave. and 26th st. nw. Otto's wife said he had not appeared depressed or in ill health. Officials of the shoe firm said he was efficient and secure in his job.

He was a member of Petworth Methodist Church and of the Moose Lodge.

He is survived by his wife; his son, Eugene, 30, an employe of Potomac Electric Power Co.; two brothers, Rollin Otto of Towson, Md., and Forrest Otto of Baltimore, and a sister, Mrs. Dianna Moog of Westminster, Md.

He was born at New Windsor, Md., but moved to Washington when he joined the shoe firm. He was a buyer of men's shoes.

Lawyer Named to Trial Board For Case of Clegg Vs. Police

James O'D. Moran, attorney and member of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, yesterday was named a member of the police trial board to hear charges against three policemen in the Clegg case.

Moran

The Commissioners appointed Moran to the post usually filled by an assistant corporation counsel, thus avoiding embarrassment for Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, who will prosecute the case.

Police Department representatives on the trial board will be Capt. Albert I. Bullock of the Thirteenth Precinct and Inspector Clement Cox, chief clerk of the department, it was revealed.

The board will weigh charges by Julius Willie Clegg, 26-year-old Negro war veteran, that he was illegally arrested, detained and beaten by police August 2.

Defendants will be Detective Sergt. Alex K. Kapsol, Special Investigator David S. Ennis of the sex squad, and Pvt. John G. Gibboney of the First Precinct.

Thirty-five witnesses have been subpenaed to appear before the regular police trial board at Police Headquarters at 10 a. m. today.

But Corporation Counsel West said last night he understood that today's session would merely set the date for the actual trial of the three officers. "I am not going down," he revealed.

He said Assistant Corporation Counsels Oliver Gasch and John J. Donnelly, jr., would represent him at today's hearing.

Asked if he were prepared to proceed with the case, West replied, "There are some things I want to straighten out before we get into it." He said he expected to be ready "in a few days."

Bullock Cox

Charles E. Ford, attorney for the three policemen said he was ready to go ahead immediately with the trial.

It Sounds Complicated But Mousetrap Works

Whittier, Calif. (U.P.).—J. C. Hunnicutt took that adage about "building a better mousetrap" to heart.

His latest de luxe "automatic jail" trapped 13 rats in one night at the city dump.

River Plan Offered at Parley Here

Proposal to Share Cost of Pollution Control by States, U. S., Recommended

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

The possibility of joint municipal action to speed efforts to rid the Potomac River of pollution was raised here yesterday as the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin opened its winter meeting.

Representatives of the District, Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and the Federal Government gathered at the Mayflower Hotel for a two-day quarterly meeting that may well be the most significant in the commission's six-year history.

The problem of easier financing of pollution abatement projects—long a stumbling block in cleaning up the Potomac River—came up as sanitary engineers and administrators of the District and the member States formed a local governments committee. The new group elected as pro tempore chairman Harry Hall, chief engineer of the Washington Surburban Sanitary Commission.

Financing Study Urged

The committee's broad objective appeared to be to attack specific problems in the 14,000-square-mile area on a democratic basis—to bring into better play the efforts of local communities.

The members agreed it might be well to make a study of all the methods already in use of contemplated to finance pollution abatement.

The usually prohibitive cost of sewerage systems experienced by committee members in their own areas prompted discussion of the joint-municipal or district plan. Such pooling of effort and money elsewhere has resulted in lower cost to each of the cooperating communities, it was pointed out.

At a general morning session, Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) promised he would work to obtain a Federal contribution to the commission. The Federal Government, although a party to the compact creating the commission, has never appropriated funds for its work.

Approves Aid by U. S.

"I believe the Government should aid the commission to its fullest extent," declared O'Conor, who was the commission's first chairman. "I intend to give every assistance in seeing that this financial aid is forthcoming."

The commission, admittedly hard pressed for funds, is asking $10,800 this year as the Government's share.

Gov. W. Preston Lane of Maryland told the commission he expected a report next week from the Maryland-Virginia special commission studying revisions of the bistate compact of 1785 for mutual control of fishing and shipping in Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries.

Opening yesterday's sessions, Chairman Raymond V. Long expressed optimism over the future of pollution abatement in Greater Washington. He praised past efforts here, including an agreement between the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and nearby Maryland for sewage disposal through District facilities. This was done, he pointed out, to clean up the Anacostia River.

Other members of the new local governments committee are Ellwood Johnson, deputy director of sanitary engineering, District of Columbia; T. S. Post, mayor of Cumberland, Md.; I. G. Vass, town manager of Waynesboro, Va., James Corbalis, Fairfax County (Va.) sanitary engineer, and Blair M. Haines, mayor of Romney, W. Va.

Today, the commission has scheduled an address on "The Need for Cooperative Planning in the Washington Metropolitan Area," discussion of abatement problems here and a number of committee and area reports.

Neighbors Smell Smoke

Three Women Rescue Invalid From Flames

The Washington Post

RESCUERS—Life-saving apparently runs in the Nyman family. Mrs. Helen Nyman of 710 12th st. se., yesterday safely removed an aged woman neighbor from a blazing bed. And it was only last September that her son, Charlie, 13, with whom she is shown, was hailed as a hero when he saved a playmate from drowning in the Potomac River

MINNIE GRUNNELSON
Rescued from burning bed

Son of One Saved Chum From River During September

A mother, whose son recently saved a chum from drowning, yesterday was one of three women to rescue an eldrly neighbor from her blazing bed.

The victim was Mrs. Minnie Grunnelson, 70, of 716 12th st. se. who escaped being burned but was overcome by smoke. She was taken to Casualty Hospital where her condition last night was reported serious.

Her rescuers included Mrs. John E. Nyman of 710 12th st. se., whose son, Charles, 13, pulled a boy from the Potomac in September; Mrs. Nyman's sister, Mrs. Alice Davis of Hillside, Md., and Mrs. Alice Martin, 700 12th st. st., who cares for Mrs. Grunnelson, an invalid.

Mrs. Nyman said she was in her living room of her home and Mrs. Davis in the iktchen when they smelled smoke about 10:30 a. m. and couldn't find its origin.

At that point a neighbor telephoned inquiring about the smoke, and Mrs. Nyman and Mrs. Davis went outside to look for it.

Mrs. Nyman began pounding on Mrs. Grunnelson's door — "she could hear me, but she either couldn't or wouldn't open the door"—when Mrs. Martin came hurrying up with the key.

Hurrying in, they found Mrs. Grunnelson sitting in a daze on the side of her bed in the front room, with fire enveloping the mattress.

Mrs. Nyman and Mrs. Davis half carried the aged woman outside as Mrs. Martin began extinguishing the fire. Firemen arrived a few moments later.

Mrs. Nyman said there had also been a fire at the home of Mrs. Grunnelson about two years ago.

Crash Landing

Flier Saved By Navy Ship In Atlantic

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 11 (A.P.).—William C. Gilley, a civilian flier of Princess Anne, Md., was near collapse when a motor whale boat from the USS Mississippi rescued him after he crashed-landed his plane in the Atlantic Ocean, 24 miles east of Hog Island.

The former battleship, now an experimental gunnery ship, is en route to Norfolk, where she will berth Saturday at the Norfolk Naval Station. She radioed today that her skipper, Capt. F. S. Withington, had commended the crew for its "outstanding" rescue performance in a rough sea and strong winds.

Gilley, a former lieutenant in the Army Air Forces who flew numerous missions over Germany, was flying a twin-engined plane from Wingate, N. C., to Salisbury, Md., when he crash-landed at sea Tuesday night.

The Mississippi radioed today that Gilley, after being treated aboard ship for a broken nose, a head injury and numerous facial lacerations, said that while flying from Wingate to Salisbury, a sudden shift of wind and faulty operation of the plane's beam transmitter resulted in a 50-mile drift to the east. Aware of his predicament, Gilley turned westward toward land with his gasoline gauge showing only a ten-minute supply of fuel.

Blood Tests Made On Fire Victim

The coroner's office yesterday began making blood tests of Mrs. Helen W. Cole, 45, who died Wednesday night when her clothing caught fire as she dozed in a chair in her apartment at 3500 13th st. nw. No autopsy will be held, it was announced. The blood tests are to determine whether death was from suffocation by smoke or from the flames.

Catholic Board Buys Hospital

Portsmouth, Va., Dec. 11 (A.P.).—Maryview Hospital, erected by the United States Government in 1944, has been acquired by the hospital corporation of which the Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Richmond, is president.

The deed was turned over to the Rt. Rev. Joseph F. Govaert, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic church, Portsmouth, and vice president of the board of trustees.

Amount paid for the hospital by the corporation to the Federal Works Agency was $85,000. The original cost was estimated at more than one million dollars.

Capacity of the one story hospital is 150 beds, but it can be increased to 180 in an emergency.

Falls Church Folk Devise Plan to Aid Europeans

'Sharing Teams,' Which Use Chain Recruiting, Work To Feed Hungry

The town of Falls Church, Va., is pioneering a unique plan to help clothe and feed needy European families.

Called "the Falls Church Plan," the idea is the brainchild of Mr. and Mrs. John Graham, 216 Little Falls st.

They call it "a spontaneous thing that sprung up in our neighborhood," hope it will spread throughout the town and eventually across the country.

Launched Monday, here's how the plan works:

Three Falls Church families or individuals form themselves into a "sharing team." Working from a master list of needy European families, each team members picks a family and decides how much food he can afford to give and arranges the details of sending it.

Chain Recruiting

To provide clothing, the sharing team makes up a clothing pool and arranges to send it to the families selected by the team.

Graham, who calls the sharing teams the "cornerstone of the Falls Church Plan," points out that each team is expected to recruit a fourth person, who in turn will initiate another "sharing team."

Each team is autonomous, makes its own decisions, sets its own food and clothing quotas, and arranges to have them sent.

The master list of European families is kept by Graham, and made up of names supplied by CARE (Cooperative for American Remittance to Europe), the American Friends Service Committee, United World Church Service, and the British Women's Voluntary Services.

Four Ways to Send Food

Names recommended are those of people especially deserving of relief as victims of war disaster, or as leaders in their own communities and able effectively to spread relief sent.

Among Falls Church individuals or families already forming teams are: Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm E. Smith, 400 Great Falls st.; Miss Betty Styles, 301 Park ave.; Mr. and Mrs. George E. Stetson, 527 Poplar dr.; Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Gillette, 309 N. Little Falls rd., and Mr. and Mrs. Rollo S. Smith, 315 Little Falls rd.

Food, Graham explained, may be sent in one of four ways.

It may be purchased in local grocery stores, packed and shipped by individual teams. Or 21½-pound CARE packages may be purchased ready-made for $10, including all mailing costs, by calling Washington headquarters at Columbia 9320.

The Mutual Aid Food Package Service, 318 W 18th st., New York City, also prepares food packages for overseas shipment, and a special multi-purpose food is being developed and distributed by Meals for Millions, Inc., 119 E 19th st., New York City.

Club 'Adopts' Child for Year In Alexandria

This will be a merry Christmas for one littl egirl in Alexandria who didn't really expect it.

She is an eight-year-old underprivifedged child who was "adopted" yesterday by the Carlyle Junior Women's Club of Alexandria for Christmas this year and the whole of 1948.

Club members, who took her name from lists of the welfare department, propose to give the girl a complete outfit of clothes and toys for Christmas. Throughout the year, they will see she is remembered on her birthday and on holidays. Once a month a club member will stop by to see what she needs.

Main purpose of the club, as explained yesterday by one of its members, is to aid in the city's cancer drive, which lasts for only a shhort time in the spring. As result, this group of 22 women under 35 decided to extend their activities.

During National Education Week, they collected a truck load of clothing from Alexandria schools for children overseas.

Then they decided to devote some of their energy to the needy in their own neighborhood. A plan evolved to find some child to look after for a year.

With the aid of the welfare department, they picked a family with several children and a weekly income of $15. The little girl seemed to fit in best with their plan. The other children were either several years older or younger.

The parents agreed, and a club member talked with the little girl about it yesterday.

Makes 7600-Mile Tour Of U. S. on Motorcycle

Yakima, Wash. (U.P.).—A 27-year-old ex-GI has just completed a 7600-mile tour of the United States via motorcycle to realize an ambition nurtured while in the service.

William Hoge made the trip without mishap, beyond a minor collision with an automobile at Randall, Minn.

Policeman's Glance Thwarts Car Theft

A suspect was caught in the act of what appeared to be an auto theft yesterday by a keen-eyed policeman pounding a beat—on a swivel chair.

Unfortunately for the suspect—the car he chose was owned by a policeman and parked on Indiana ave. near 4th st. nw.—opposite police headquarters.

And Pvt. Harvey Mattingly, 27, stationary station clerk at the First Precinct, located at headquarters, just happened to swivel in his chair and glance through a window—facing Indiana ave.

So Siebert had the pleasure of hauling away the suspect in his own car.

Red Cross Suggests Food Saving Ideas

Don't bait your mousetrap with old, hard cheese, the American Red Cross advised yesterday.

Sprinkle it in the soup, grate it on casserole dishes, or pop it in the biscuits instead.

The Red Cross offered the suggestion in a new food conservation leaflet entitled "Food Is Your Business—Make It Pay!"

The theme is how a housewife can provide healthful food at less cost and with minimum waste. The organization suggested, among other things:

Cook potatoes and carrots with their skins on.

Put both compartments of double boilers to work. Cook eggs in the bottom half, a cereal in the top.

Save the green tops of beets, substitute them for spinach.

Serve raw vegetables often—"the family will enjoy the pleasant exercise of crunching carrots, cabbage and cauliflower."

'Messiah' at Annapolis

Choirs from Goucher College, Baltimore, and the United States Naval Academy will give a joint performance of Handel's "Messiah" tomorrow and Sunday in the academy chapel at Annapolis. A portion of the Sunday performance will be broadcast over NBC from 4:30 to 5 p. m. Among the Goucher students who will participate are Barbara Allen Armiger, 4116 Legation st. nw., Natalie Hope Salomon, 1332 Holly st. nw., and Katherine Louise Rowse, 100 N. Columbus st., Arlington, Va.

Apartment Planned

A petition asking rezoning of approximately 30 acres of a 150-acre tract in Chevy Chase from residential A to C to permit erection of an apartment house will be heard Tuesday by the Montgomery County Commissioners.

The tract is situated north of East-West hwy. between Connecticut ave. and Rock Creek Knoll and Farmington Subdivisions. The petitioners, Chevy Chase Land Co., plan 338 apartments ranging in size from one to three bedrooms.

New Terms for Convicts

Already serving up to three years for a Prince Georges County robbery, two Washington youths yesterday got similar sentences in Montgomery County Circuit Court.

They were George C. Neal, 18, and Robert E. L. Brinn, 22, both of 1422 Harvard st. nw. They were given indeterminate terms up to three years in the Maryland Reformatory at Breathedsville for robbery of a Mount Rainier couple on July 5 which netted the thieves $7000.

On each youth also was imposed an additional 3-year-term in the reformatory for his part in the $6000 robbery of Nathan Cosman, Bethesda auto dealer, on June 29.

Charter Foes Assailed

Opponents of the proposed Montgomery County charter will not stop at "smoke screens, subterfuge and trickery," Col. Norman B. Ames, president of the Montgomery Charter Committee, said yesterday.

In a broadcast over Station WGAY, Colonel Ames said charter backers "are prepared for a fight, and we believe we will win."

The charter issue will be voted on next November. Ames described the movement as "an attempt to bring good government to Montgomery County."

Dogs Menace Livestock

Packs of roving dogs which slaughter valuable livestock in Montgomery County are on the increase, officials revealed yesterday.

County Comptroller Alex Hancock said the county government has paid out $2095 to farmers since July 1 this year in reimbursement for losses sustained from the marauding dogs.

During last fiscal year, he said, a total of $3189 was paid to farmers for the losses.

County Agent O. W. Anderson said a large percentage of the livestock destroyed were purebred registered stock and payment on claims is based only on the meat market price.

Policeman Hurt in Fall

A Ninth Precinct Police private suffered a dislocated shoulder early yesterday when he slipped and crashed into a wire fence while checking to see if a door of a store was locked.

Pvt. Edward H. Plumb, 34, of 2001 32d st. se., was admitted to Casualty Hospital where his condition was reported as not serious. He slipped on wet earth at the rear of the Montello Pharmacy, 1609 Montello ave. ne., at 3:40 a. m.

Fire Code Urged

The Montgomery County Association of Volunteer Firemen has gone on record favoring early adoption of a comprehensive fire code and institution of a county fire marshall's office, a statement issued yesterday said. D. B. Johannes, association secretary, released the statement, which also said that all county volunteer fire departments are unanimous in their support of the association's action.

Sinclair Oil Votes 25c Extra Dividend

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—Directors of Sinclair Oil Corp. today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents along with the regular quarterly of 25 cents, both payable February 14 to stock of record January 15. No extra was paid last year.

Container Corp. of America, Chicago, voted an extra dividend of $1.50 on common stock, payable December 26 to stock of record December 17, bringing the 1947 total to $4.50, against $3.40.

Distillers May Start Price War

A wide-open row in the liquor industry, which many predict may lead to Nation-wide price wars between the Nation's large distillers, has developed since Tuesday.

Immediate cause of the disturbance is preparations for resumption of operations December 25, after the 60-day shutdown taken in October as a food conservation measure. The so-called holiday was agreed upon at the request of President Truman's Citizens Food Committee.

One result of the row has been a rough-and-tumble scramble for malt and grains in readiness for reopening at full capacity Christmas Day.

Bidding Sends Grain Up

It was bidding by distillers for cash grain Wednesday that sent quotations for that commodity to more than $2.70 a bushel, grain experts say. This is highest figure the yellow grain ever reached.

At the same time the bidding for malt has become so wild that Louisville maltsters were reported yesterday to be refusing all orders for delivery before February. The buying of malt by distillers has so restricted the market that reports yesterday indicated that many brewers were becoming alarmed that they would not be able to acquire enough to maintain already limited production of beer and ale after New Years Day.

The fight among the distillers first developed last Tuesday at a meeting with James Stillwell, food conservation director for the Cabinet Food Committee. Stillwell had called industry leaders together to discuss plans for curtailing production after reopening Christmas.

On large distiller Schenley's, Inc., telegraphed the meeting that that company was not going to attend and that it would not be bound by any agreement arrived at by the conferees.

Corn Purchases Heavy

One official of the Cabinet committee reported that the Tuesday meeting ended in "complete disagreement." The heavy buying of corn, the most used grain in making of whisky, marked the next day's transactions in the cash grain markets.

At the close of Tuesday's meeting Stillwell issued a call for an industry-wide meeting of distillers for next Tuesday. At that time a Government proposal for voluntary restrictions on operations will be presented.

Two Government officials, Charles F. Brannan, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, and Carl C. Farrington, of the Production and Marketing Association, were detailed to draw up the proposal.

Yesterday it was reported that Schenley's have already announced they did not intend to take part in any such agreement.

In the meantime two bills have been introduced in Congress to continue the 60-day shutdown beyond Christmas.

Would Extend

One of these, offered by Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.) would extend the holiday until after the interim aid to Europe program is completed.

Walter pointed out that the distillers had increased their use of grain to a rate of 10 million bushels a month in October, during the negotiations with the Citizens Food Committee over the proposed shutdown. This, Walter said, was contrary to their promise to Charles Luckman, chairman of the citizens committee.

Already a price-cutting war between distillers has developed in Washington. One leading brand of whisky has been retailed here this week for $3.87—compared with a normal price on other cities of from $5.45 to $5.95 a fifth. Many other brands have been cut in proportion.

Anderson Backs Aims of Farmer Cooperatives

Everett, Wash., Dec. 11 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson said today that farmer cooperatives have his personal support and that of President Truman.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a meeting sponsored by the Washington State Council of Farmer Cooperatives, Anderson asserted:

"I want to say in plain language that I am for farmer cooperatives.

"I want to say just as plainly that the Truman Administration is for farmer cooperatives.

"I say that with the specific authority of President Truman himself."

Anderson likened criticism of certain phases of the cooperative program to a cloud which "may be the forerunner of an all-out assault upon the farmer cooperatives of this country."

Louise Waterman Wise

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—Mrs. Louise Waterman Wise, wife of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, died last night.

Mrs. Wise was founder and president of the Women's Division of the Congress and during World War I founded Congress Defense House centers for servicemen of the Allied nations.

12 War Dead Are Reburied At Arlington

Bodies of 12 World War II Army head, four of them from Greater Washington, were reburied yesterday in mass services at Arlington Cemetery.

Religious and military services at the grave sites at 2 p. m. paid final tribute.

A 70-man Marine Corps honor guard and the Marine Band participated. Services were conducted by Chaplains Lester E. Nicholson of the Bolling Field Command and Thomas F. Wright, Base Chaplain at Bolling Field.

Servicemen from this area reburied were:

Private Joseph Stanley Gately, USA. Pvt. Gately was killed in Germany in September, 1944, at the age of 35, less than a month after returning to active duty on recovering from wounds suffered in action.

A native Washingtonian, he was a graduate of McKinley High School. He had been a printer with Judd & Detweiler, Inc., for 14 years prior to his induction in December, 1943.

Pvt. Gately is survived by his widow, Mrs. Anna M. Gately, 1946 S st. se.

Private Marshall Gogolewski, USA. Pvt. Gogolewski was born in Natrona, Pennsylvania and went to school there before entering the Army in 1942.

He was killed in the Battle of the Bulge in December, 1944, and was awarded the Purple Heart posthumously.

Pvt. Gogelewski is survived by his sister, Mrs. Eleanor M. Zembrzuski, of 1124 Ellison st., Falls Church.

Pfc. James R. Gorman, USA. Pvt. Gorman was killed November 20, 1944 in a small town near Aachen, Germany, while with an infantry unit of the First Army.

He was in his first year at Harvard College when he enlisted in March, 1943, and had been overseas for two months at the time of his death. He was 22.

Pvt. Gorman is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Gorman, 5420 Harewood rd., Bethesda.

Capt. Leon R. Huthnane, USA

Captain Huthnance, 32, was a native of Alabama, and a graduate of the State university there, where he enrolled in the ROTC.

He was killed in the battle of Hedge Rows, near St. Lo, France, on June 23, 1944. He was posthumously awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroism in action six days before his death. His citation revealed that Captain Huthnance risked his own life to aid his wounded commanding officer, in direct line of enemy fire.

Captain Huthnance is survived by his wife, Mrs. Frances C. Huthnance, 3611 South Taylor st., Arlington.

Other war dead reinterred yesterday were:

Pfc. Victor D. Banham, USA; Mrs. Jean C. Banham, Tulsa, Okla.

Second Lieut. Thomas E. Biddle, jr., USA; Mrs. Jean C. Biddle, Detroit, Mich.

Pfc. Millard L. Carr, USA; Alfred M. Carr, RFD No. 1, Bristol, Colo.

Nimitz Decorated By Truman and Feted at Party

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, retiring Chief of Naval Operations and wartime Pacific fleet commander, was decorated by President Truman yesterday at a surprise White House ceremony.

The President presented the five-star admiral with a gold star in lieu of a fourth Distinguished Service Medal, plus a silver cigarette case given on behalf of the joint chiefs of staff.

Nimitz later attended a dinner at the Argentine Embassy, and received the Order of the Liberator, Argentina's highest decoration, in recognition of his heroism and that of his men in World War II.

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet had made Nimitz a grand officer of the French national order of the Legion of Honor earlier this week.

Nimitz and Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, who is stepping down as the Marine Corps' commandant, were honor guests at an elaborate reception given this evening by Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan in the Carleton Hotel ballroom. President and Mrs. Truman attended.

Fourth Branch Store Opened In Shirlington by Jelleff's

The Washington Post

STORE OWNER ATTENDS OPENING—Frank R. Jelleff, convoyed by two attractive models, Gloria Grisso (left), of 403 Hume st., Alexandria, Va., and Virginia Ballad of 1412 Staples st. ne., walks through his new store in the Shirlington Shopping Center. The establishment was opened yesterday

A new Jelleff's store opened at noon yesterday in the Shirlington, Va., shopping center.

The branch has 7000 square feet of space on its one floor, air conditioning, flourescent lighting, and is the largest of the four Jelleff branch stores.

Frank R. Jelleff, president of Jelleff's, Inc., was present at yesterday's opening and witnessed a fashion show in which eight models displayed day and evening wear.

Misses' and women's ready-to-wear apparel, and all accessories, except shoes, will be carried in the new store.

About 35 saleswomen were on hand yesterday at the opening. Store hours are noon to 9 p. m. Thursdays, and from 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. on all other days except Sunday.

Welfare Head In Baltimore Won't Resign

Baltimore, Dec. 11 (AP).—Thomas J. S. Waxter, director of the city welfare department, said today he had no intention of resigning in protest to an investigating commission's critical report of the department's functions.

"I like my job," the former Juvenile Court judge declared. He has served as welfare director since the department was set up 12 years ago.

Earlier this week, Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro made public a report by the Maryland Commission on Governmental Efficiency and Economy which charged the policies of public welfare in Baltimore encouraged "dependence upon the Government, idleness, pauperism, desertion, illegitimacy, dishonesty and irresponsibility."

The commission is making a study of all welfare work in the State as a result of a legislative resolution. The report on Baltimore was issued after a nine-month study.

In its report, the commission said the present director "seems to have the confidence and the good will of the staff as a whole, and to be regarded as the personification of the department's philosophy and objectives."

It further added that "the department needs a fresh start. If the present executives of the department are unable to give proper weight to the sound management principles and business considerations this study has developed to be necessary, persons of proper qualifications must be brought into the department's administration."

Waxter declined to comment further on the report until he has had an opportunity to discuss it with all concerned.

One of these opportunities will come tomorrow night at a meeting of the department's advisory board, which is composed of a citizens' group. Mayor D'Alesandro and Health Commissioner Huntington Williams are ex-officio members.

A "full discussion" of the situation with "concrete suggestions" was urged by the mayor in a letter to the advisory board's chairman, Francis A. Davis.

Board to Act On Rule to Ban Drinking by Minor

Final action on a proposed regulation to ban drinking by minors in local taverns probably will be taken by the Commissioners at their regular board meeting Tuesday, District officials revealed yesterday.

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board made the proposal last September after Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West ruled it legal for minors to drink in local taverns so long as they don't order drinks, pay for them, or have them set before them by waiters.

ABC asked for a regulation making it illegal for minors to drink in the taverns, regardless of how they obtained drinks.

Commissioners John Russell Young and Guy Mason discussed the matter for nearly an hour yesterday with West and ABC board members.

George Junior Rites to Be Held Today

Requiem mass for George G. Junior, 52, administrative assistant in the education division of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs, will be said in St. Aloysius Church, North Capitol and I sts. today at 9:30 a. m. Interment will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Junior suffered a heart attack at a Knights of Columbus meeting at 1601 R st. nw., Tuesday night, and was pronounced dead a few minutes later at Emergency Hospital. He lived at 5403 2d st. nw.

Born in Taunton, Mass., he attended school in Plymouth, Mass., and was graduated from Burdette Business College, Boston, in 1912.

He was employed in the Plymouth Mills until 1917 when he entered the Quartermaster Corps of the Army. After discharge he attended Georgetown University School of Foreign Service from 1919 to 1921.

Mr. Junior worked as sales manager for the American Automobile Association here and was floor manager and later floor supervisor at Woodward & Lothrop's. In 1925 he took a position as assistant manager of Tampa, Fla., store.

Joining the Census Bureau in 1935 he served as a supervisor there until 1942. In 1940 he was in charge of the periodic population survey in Puerto Rico. In 1942 he became associated with the Institute of Inter-American Affairs as administrative officer in its basic economy division.

Mr. Junior was a member of the Washington General Assembly of Fourth Degree K. of C. and Washington Council, No. 224, K. of C. here and American Legion Post No. 40 in Plymouth, Mass.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Chamblin Junior; his father, John G. Junior, Washington, and a brother, Francis E. Junior, Springfield, Pa.

Dr. John McNaugher

Pittsburgh, Dec. 11 (AP).—Dr. John McNaugher, 89, widely known theologian, died today in Allegheny General Hospital.

Dr. McNaugher was president of the Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary for 34 years until his retirement in 1943 and had served on the seminary faculty for 56 years. A former moderator of the United Presbyterian Church, he served as president of the World Alliance of Churches of the Presbyterian system and presided at the quadrennial councils at Cardiff, Wales, in 1925.

Four Killed As Two Trains Crash Head-on

New Braunfels, Tex., Dec. 11 (AP). Four train crewmen were killed near here late last night when two passenger trains collided head-on and exploded into flames. Nine other persons, including an Arlington, Va., man, were injured.

The two trains ran together 10 miles south of here, the locomotives stacking on top of each other and front cars telescoping.

Dead were Jack B. Coleman, fireman of Waco, Tex., about 28; George W. Stainthorpe, a train carman, from San Antonio; Roy Callaway, engineer, about 60, Smithville, Tex., and Will Maney, porter, of San Antonio.

Railroad officials said all others aboard the train had been accounted for.

The northbound train, the Katy Flyer, was en route to Kansas City and St. Louis; the southbound, the Katy Limited, to San Antonio.

The injured included:

[Stanton, a 19-year-old sophomore at Tufts College, was on his way to visit a brother in San Antonio. He left his home Monday morning and drove as far as Waco, according to his mother, Mrs. Charles Stanton. After treatment for shock, he went on to San Antonio.]

Stanton, passenger on the train out of Dallas, said he believed "it was fortunate that not many were on our train."

Building Gets Oil Delivery, All Over Floor

A truck driver pumped 250 gallons of fuel oil into the wrong building Wednesday. Awful mess—no tank.

The office building uses gas for heating—so the oil oozed around the basement.

Mrs. Elizabeth L. N. Newburgh, owner of the office building at 2651 Connecticut ave., learned of the situation when she received a hurry call from one of her tenants Wednesday evening.

It seems an employe of the Central Fuel Co.—who had been delivering oil a total of a day and a half—was looking for an intake pipe for the office building at 2653 Connecticut ave. nw.

You've guessed the rest—he found the wrong intake, one that had not been removed when Mrs. Newburgh replaced her oil burner of 20 years' standing with a gas heater earlier this year.

The intake was removed yesterday. The oil which lubricated the basement was taken out the previous day. It took the combined efforts of the fuel company, Mrs. Newburgh and a hired man, several policemen, and three or four members of No. 28 engine company. The firemen formed a bucket brigade when the fuel company's siphon was only partially successful.

Mrs. Newburgh praised the firemen and police who helped her out, as well as a gas company emergency squad. At her request, they had turned off the gas while the dangerous unwanted fuel was being removed.

The basement was pronounced secure at about 11 p. m. about six hours after the oil was poured in.

Giant Candle to Glow

The Wheaton, Md., Chamber of Commerce will formally dedicate its giant Christmas candle at Georgia ave. and Old Bladensburg rd., at 8 p. m. tomorrow. . . . . The illuminated candle, 32 feet tall and 5 feet in diameter, contains a juke box which plays seasonal music.

Santa Claus will be on hand to pass out candy to the children. Coffee and doughnuts will be provided for adults.

Finns Pay Another Installment on Debt

Finland paid the United States another $260,852.24 yesterday on a $8,400,000 debt contracted after the first World War armistice in 1918.

Thus it kept its record of being the only country which has never defaulted on debts of that period.

But although Finland has paid about $8,060,000 so much of that has gone for interest—at 3 per cent—that Finland still owes this country over eight million dollars.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect such condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Fred A. Hornig, Retired U. S. Worker, Dies

Fred A. Hornig, 82, retired chief electrician of the Treasury Department, died yesterday at his home at 37 W st. nw. after a two days' illness.

Mr. Hornig

Mr. Hornig, a life-long resident of the District, had served with the Treasury Department for more than 30 years prior to his retirement in 1935. He had been chief electrician for about the last 10 years of his employment.

He was a member of the Holy Name Society of St. Martin's Church, as well as the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and the Oldest Inhabitants of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., followed by a high requiem mass at 10 a. m. in St. Martin's Church. Burial will be in St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery.

Mr. Hornig's wife, Mrs. Myrta S. Hornig, died in 1936. They had no children.

He is survived by 20 nephews and nieces, 42 grandnephews and grandnieces and 12 great grandnephews and great grandnieces, the majority of whom live in Washington.

Brumbaugh Services to Be Held Here

Mrs. Rosa Flory Brumbaugh, 72, for many years a resident of the District, died yesterday at Santa Monica, Calif., following injuries suffered in a fall last Saturday.

Mrs. Brumbaugh was born in Union, Ohio and attended Juanita College in Pennsylvania. She came to Washington in 1901, and had lived at 1608 Missouri ave. nw. until about a year ago.

Her husband, Noah J. Brumbaugh, was an examiner in the Patent Office until his retirement in 1946. Mrs. Brumbaugh was for many years a member of the Brookland Baptist Church here.

She is survived by her husband, three sons, Capt. Heber B. Brumbaugh, USN, 3769 Oliver st. nw.; Granville M. of Westport, Conn.; and John W. of New York City; a daughter, Mrs. Frederick H. Green of 1608 Missouri ave. nw., and eight grandchildren.

Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery here. Time and place of the services will be announced later.

Paul D. Brown In Arlington Legal Post

Attorney Paul D. Brown, 28, of 2731 N. Lorcum lane, Arlington, Va., yesterday was appointed assistant to the Arlington Commonwealth's attorney by Denman T. Rucker, who was elected to the office last month. Brown assumes his duties January 1.

Now associated with the law firm of Gloth, Gloth & Brown, the appointee received his education in Arlington schools and was student body president at Washington-Lee High School in 1937.

Receiving his A. B. and law degrees from Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va., Brown was admitted to the Virginia bar in 1942.

He is a member of the committee of management of the Arlington YMCA, which he helped to organize; a vestryman of Grace Episcopal Church, a member of the Arlington Lions Club, a director of the Arlington Tuberculosis Association, and a delegate to the Arlington Civic Federation.

Hospital Porter Fined for Pulling Fuses, Mischief

Baltimore, Dec. 11 (AP).—Mercy Hospital ended a game of hide and seek today when a porter was "it."

During the past six weeks the hospital had been trying to find out who:

Took out light fuses, plunging the hospital into darkness, turned off the ice machine, and blocked lubricators for machinery in the engineer room.

Hospital Engineer James Ellis found out when he caught John C. Clark, 22, in the act of shutting off the oil lubricator to pump used to supply water.

"I just seem to go haywire sometimes," Clark told Magistrate James Ellis, who fined the porter $50.

Deputy Parole Commissioner James Cavanaugh then filed a detainer for Clark, reporting he had been paroled from the State prison farm in Hagerstown.

VPI Plans Installation Of New President

Blacksburg, Va., Dec. 11 (AP).—Plans are being made for the formal installation of Dr. Walter S. Newman, former assistant State superintendent of public instruction, as president of Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Dr. Markham L. Peacock, professor of English at the school, has been named to head a faculty committee on arrangements. Others on the committee, appointed by Col. James P. Woods of Roanoke, are S. K. Cassell, VPI business manager; B. N. Cooper, head of the geology department; R. H. McNeil, director of public relations, and Prof. H. W. Sanders, head of the vocational education department.

Dr. Newman, who became president September 1, after serving a little more than a year as vice president, probably will be installed in the spring.

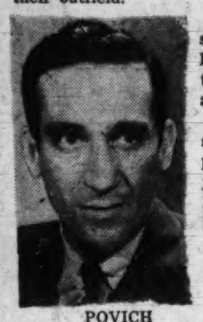
Graziano Fights Non-Title Bout Here

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The major league trading sessions ended with the Yankees making no move of any consequence to match the heavily reinforced Boston Red Sox who by trades and purchases plugged their infield spots, bolstered their pitching and buttressed their outfield.



POVICH

Right now, the Red Sox, who finished in second place, 12 games behind the Yanks last season, are the betting favorites to win the 1947 pennant, and if the Yankees aren't apprehensive they ought to be.

In the past two weeks, the Yanks have seen Boston buy hefty-hitting Vern Stephens from the Browns to fill the third base job with full promise that he'll tattoo the Fenway Park left-field fence with his hard knocks; they've seen the Red Sox add two better-than-fair pitchers in Jack Kramer and Ellis Kinder from the Browns, and yesterday the Boston club came up with Stan Spence from the Nats as outfield and first base insurance.

The Yanks haven't been watching all this with any complacency, you may be sure. Thus far their activity has stemmed from complete helplessness. The Yanks have little trading material and the Yankee dollar is no good with the Browns already picked clean and other clubs refusing to deal for cash.

FOR A TEAM that won the pennant with such ease last season, the Yankees are shockingly shy of marketable talent beyond their own immediate needs. They have one spare outfielder in Johnny Lindell, but Manager Bucky Harris' hands are tied in that direction until the Yankees ascertain if Charley Keller can rebound from this winter's spinal operation.

The Yankees, who are desperate for pitchers, have nothing in the way of infielders to offer, a fact that cooled off the projected deal with the Washington club for Early Wynn. Bucky Harris has no established first baseman besides the venerable George McQuinn, and his only reserve infielder of ability is Bobby Brown, and he is shy of fielding ability.

In the light of the Red Sox dealings, the Yankees can hardly afford to take a smug position. They may consider now that they called off the deal for Early Wynn of the Nats too hastily. Clark Griffith rejected their offer of two second-string pitchers, a minor league outfielder and a catcher, but rumbles are heard that the Yanks will reopen the deal and part with something better in desperation.

Frank Shea is actually the only solid pitcher on the Yankees' staff, and Wynn would represent a tremendous lift to the Yankees' pitching. The Yanks, who are extremely public-relations conscious with their radio and newspaper advertising that represents a new departure in baseball, are aching to show their customers they are making a vigorous try to meet the Red Sox threat.

MEANWHILE, Owner Bill Veeck of the Indians is screaming that Clark Griffith did him wrong in trading Spence to Boston in the face of "better deals that I have offered him many times in the past two years." Veeck doesn't say so, but there are veiled charges of nepotism against Griffith for reserving Spence for the team of Joe Cronin, his son-in-law.

"Veeck's beefing is absurd," said one official of the Washington club today. "Who said he offered us better deals than the Red Sox did. That's just Veeck's opinion. In our opinion, Boston offered us the best deal, and we took it."

It is not like Griffith to part with an established star like Spence for an untried rookie like Al Kozar, the second baseman up from New Orleans in the deal, but opinion was unanimous at the trading sessions here that it was a shrewd trade by the Nats.

"If Kozar doesn't make it, I'll never believe in the opinion of baseball men again," said Manager Joe Kuhel. "A dozen scouts without exception tell us that Kozar is the finest infielder in the minor leagues, including all the AAA leagues. Everybody says he's some kind of a wonder as a fielder and double-play man. As for his hitting, I can read those .340 figures for myself."

Way Cleared For Champ's Appearance In February

Middleweight Champion Rocky Graziano has agreed to box a non-title bout in the National Guard Armory, probably in February, The Washington Post learned last night.

Irving Cohen, manager of the 160-pound champion, disclosed that he (Cohen) will appear before the District Boxing Commission Monday to "discuss a suitable opponent for Rocky."

Telephone conversations with various persons interested in the appearance of Graziano here brought out these developments in behind-the-scenes negotiations:

1. The fight will be staged by Promoter Goldie Ahearn of the Liberty Athletic Club.

2. Cohen has been in frequent contact with Col. Harvey Miller, commission chairman, who gave Graziano the "green light" only Monday.

3. Graziano's manager wants to donate "100 per cent of Rocky's purse, except for actual training expenses, to any designated charity."

Negotiations for a Graziano appearance in Washington started several weeks ago when Cohen sent Miller a letter expressing a desire to show his champion hre.

NBA Vote Favors Him

At that time the NBA was polling its members on allowing Rocky, barred for life in Illinois and under indefinite suspension in his native New ork, to fight in member States. The result of the poll returned Rocky the winner by a narrow margin. Washington voted for Graziano.

Cohen then made formal petition to the commission to fight in Washington and was told it was agreeable to the commission, provided he fought a suitable opponent.

The commission, Miller said, sent leters Monday to Ahearn and Matchmaker Gabe Menendez of the rival Turner's Arena, stating that they were free to deal with Graziano.

It later developed that Ahearn's Liberty Club was to promote the show.

"Cohen promised me the bout last summer," Ahearn said last night after at first denying any knowledge of the projected affairs.

Miller last night said the commission was "anxious" to have Graziano fight here against a first-rate opponent and that his Armory appearance may lead to a championship bout at the ball park next summer.

"Any time this commission can land a championship match for Washington, we'll go after it," he said.

Miller added that he didn't know that Ahearn would promote the Graziano Armory match.

"I knek Goldie was trying to get a few dates in the Armory, but that's all."

Ahearn has been tentatively awarded two of the four Armory dates he requested—January 19 and February 2, the probable date of the Graziano fight.

Graziano will go into training next week. Except for an abortive exhibition tour, which saw him flail an overstuffed training camp aide in a fe wcities, including Washington, after he won the title from Tony Zale in Chicago last summer, Rocky has been idle.

Illinois recently barred him for life for allegedly being dishonorably discharged from the Army. He is still under suspension in New York for failure to report an alleged bribe offer.

At Army-Navy Game

McCloy Gets Piece of Goal Post at Cost of His Wallet

JOHN J. McCLOY, JR., 10, has a sizable piece of one of the Army-Navy game goal posts hanging on the wall of his bedroom.

JOHN J. McCLOY

This memento of the 1917 service game played in Philadelphiai s a gift from his father, president of the World Bank and former Assistant Secretary of War.

The McCloy party sat in a field box on the 50-yard line and immensely enjoyed Army's 21-0 victory over the Middies.

After the game, the McCloys decided to take a short cut across the playing field to their car on the nearby railroad siding.

JOHN, JR., SUDDENLY had a normal boy's inspiration. He saw others swoop down on the goal posts at both ends of the field. He thought he would like to have a piece of the posts, too. And he wanted his Dad to get it.

His dignified father tried to dissuade John, jr., but the lad's mother thought he had a pretty good idea.

Both persisted, so Mr. McCloy, a former Amherst athiete and World War I captain, became resigned and went on the mission.

Mr. McCloy soon found himself in a melee as dozens of persons struggled for pieces of the posts as souvenirs.

Proudly, Mr. McCloy emerged from the tussle with a piece of the posts and handed it over to John, jr.

But later, Mr. McCloy discovered that his wallet was missing—apparently the price of one piece of Army-Navy goal post, about 3 feet long.

Yankees Swap Clark To Tribe for Embree

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—The New York Yankees announced tonight they had traded Outfielder Allie Clark to the Cleveland Indians for Pitcher Charles (Red) Embree.

It was a straight player swap with no cash involved. Embree, a 28-year-old righthander, won 10 and lost 8 games for the Indians last year.

He appeared in 27 games, pitched six complete games and had an earned run average of 3.15. He walked 67, struck out 56 and allowed 137 hits in 163 innings.

Promising Flychaser

Clark, promising young flychaser, was brought up by the Yankees from Newark last August and helped the club in its pennant drive by batting .373 in 20 games.

He is 24 years old. He hit .334 for the Bears in 110 games. His 127 hits included 27 doubles, 9 triples and 23 home runs.

This is the second deal engineered by the Indians and Yankees in two years and both transactions brought a pitcher to Yankee stadium. Last winter the Yankees sent Joe Gordon to Cleveland in exchange for Righthander Allie Reynolds.

The deal proved helpful to both sides. Gordon made a fine comeback at second base, leading his new mates with 29 home runs and 93 runs batted in on a .272 batting average.

Reynolds had a remarkable season with the Yankees, winning 19 games and losing 8 to become the top pitcher on the club.

Embree In and Out

Although Embree joined the Indians back in 1941, the fast ball hurler has put in only two complete seasons in the majors. He had brief trials in '41 and '42, was frozen on his farm in '43, pitched for Baltimore in '44 and joined the U. S. Army in '45.

After a brilliant season with the Orioles, where he won 19 and lost 10 and led all pitchers with 225 strike-outs, Embree was recalled by the Indians and split eight decisions before he was summoned by Uncle Sam.

In his first full season, in 1946, Embree won 8 and lost 12 games.

Clark, a native of South Amboy, N. J., was signed by the Yankee organization in 1941 while still attending high school. He was farmed to Easton, where he batted .325 and played second and shortstop.

After a three-year hitch in the Army, Clark moved up to Newark as a third baseman and batted .344 in 97 games. That was in 1946.

Hoyas Rally To Turn Back Loyola, 54-45

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Georgetown came from behind last night to defeat one of the crack teams of the Midwest, Loyola of Chicago, 54 to 45.

It was Georgetown's second victory of the young season, the Hoyas having previously defeated Denver University here. The defeat was Loyola's first in nine games.

Georgetown trailed Loyola at halftime, 24 to 18.

Loyola, with Kerris pacing the attack, took a 24-to-18 lead at the intermission. The lanky Chicago center was particularly effective under the basket, sinking five shots. He also made three of six foul tries to register 13 of the visitors' points in the first 20 minutes.

Georgetown continued to follow disastrous style. Time and again the Hoyas came down the floor to miss one shot and lose possession.

Only five goals were made from the field and if Andy Kostecka hadn't dropped five of six foul shots, Georgetown would have been further outdistanced.

The game got off to an unusually slow start. Goals were few and far between and after six full minutes, Georgetown led by only 6-3.

In the preliminary, Bun Carlson's 16 points led Georgetown Frosh to a 69-21 victory over Montgomery Junior College.

Southern Schools Seek Explicit Rule on Pros

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 11 (AP).—A lengthy discussion on measures to make the rules of the Southern Conference more explicit regarding athletic professionalism was shaping up as head coaches, athletic directors and members of athletic councils gathered here tonight for Friday's opening session of the league's annual two-day convention.

The debate on the professionalism rule is expected to be the most important subject to come before the conference fathers during the parley, slated to end Saturday morning.

Roosevelt Jayvees Win

Roosevelt Jayvee basketball team opened its season at the Macfarland gym yesterday with a 55-36 victory over Bell Vocational. Forward Tommy Harris dropped in 23 points for the winners. High scorer for Bell was Forward John Groto who tallied 11 points.

After Walcott Bout

Paper Says Louis Plans to Quit in June

NEW YORK, DEC. 11 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis told a reporter for the Bronx Home News today that "win, lose or draw" he would retire from the ring after his return bout with Jersey Joe Walcott next June at Yankee Stadium.

Louis, who has not left his apartment in Upper Manhattan since last Friday night's fight with Walcott, expressed complete confidence that he would win by a knockout the next time he faces the Camden, N. J., veteran.

"I'll be in better shape the next time," Louis declared, adding that he was "very, very weak" in last week's bout.

He said he should have weighed 214 pounds for Walcott instead of 211, and blamed his poor condition on the fact that he "dried out" strenuously the day before the scrap. He admitted that Mannie Seamon, his trainer, had not approved of the drying out.

JOE SAID he realized early in the fight that he was not in shape when he was unable to work up a sweat. Further proof came, he said, when a cut under his left eye did not bleed.

The Home News reporter said that Louis had seen only close friends and his 3-year-old daughter since the fight. He said the champion's left eye, swollen nearly shut after the bout, was back to normal.

Commenting on conjecture in the press that he was washed up, Louis said:

"Nobody knows whether I'm through except myself. I know how I feel and I know I'm not finished."

Phils Trade Hughes To Reds for Haas

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies traded Pitcher Tommy Hughes to the Cincinnati Reds for Outfielder Bert Haas and another player to be delivered by next spring, it was announced tonight.

In the event the player named isn't suitable to the Phils, the Reds will settle for a cash consideration in the neighborhood of $20,000.

Hughes, a 28-year-old righthander, made 29 starts for the Phils last season and won 4 games while losing 11. His best season was in 1940, when he won 14 and lost 11.

Haas, who can play first and third as well as the outfield, batted .286 in 135 games for the Reds last year and batted in 67 runs. He is 33 years old.

Manager Ben Chapman of the Phils said he planned to use Haas at third base.

Haas' 65 Puts Him Out Front In Miami Open

Miami, Fla., Dec. 11 (AP).—Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans, former national intercollegiate champion, one-putted nine greens today to grab a one-stroke lead with a five under par 65 at the end of 18 holes of play in the twenty-fourth annual $10,000 Miami Open Golf tournament.

Forty-five players went around the 6310-yard par 70 Miami Springs Club course in regulation figures or better, but National amateur champion Skee Riegel, of Monterrey, Calif., was not among them.

Riegel needed 73 strokes and was out of the tournament as the field of Simon Pures was cut to 15 for for tomorrow's play with Frank Stranahan of Toledo heading the list with a 68.

Furgol Stroke Back

One stroke back of Haas was Ed Furgol, 28-year-old Detroiter, who like the leader, has never won a major professional tournament.

In third place with 67 was Sammy Byrd, the former baseball player and another Detroiter.

Six were grouped at 68, including Glenn Teal, Jacksonville, Fla.; Walt Burkemo, Detroit; Bob Hamilton, Evansville, Ind.; Jim Milward, Three Lakes, Wis.; Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif., and Stranahan.

Twenty were tied at 69, including Ellsworth Vines of Los Angeles and veteran Willie Klein of Miami Beach, who won the Miami open back in 1925 and has played in every tourney since.

Worsham Equals Par

Sixtee nequaled par figures, including defending champion Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, Va., National Open champion Lew Worsham of Washington; Henry Cotton, former British Open champion, and Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa.

Thirty-three performers were caught on the course when darkness fell and will conclude their rounds tomorrow.

A downpour of rain in the early afternoon and again near the conclusion of play slowed down the horde of 230 golfers. The top 150 professionals and ties and 15 leading amateurs and ties will play tomorrow. All of the known pros made the grade.

Auburn 'Offer' Called Guesswork by Sanders

Biloxi, Miss., Dec. 11 (AP).—Reports that Henry R. (Red) Sanders, head coach and athletic director at Vanderbilt, might become football coach at Auburn, were termed "just a lot of guesses and speculation," by Sanders here today.

"Before I left Nashville," Sanders said, "I said that I had never at any time been an applicant for the Auburn job, and no one in authority has ever contacted me officially about it."

Conerly Says He May Play For Redskins

Charley Conerly, Mississippi's passing wizard, announced in Memphis yesterday that he would play pro football next season and was considering offers from the Washington Redskins and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Dick McCann, general manager of the Redskins, refused to say whether or not the local club had made Conerly an offer.

"We don't want to discuss any college players who still have to compete in bowl games," said McCann.

Conerly already is on the Redskins' reserve list. His class was graduated in 1945 and the 'Skins secured draft rights on him then.

He will play for Mississippi against Texas Christian in the Delta Bowl at Memphis on New Year's Day and McCann admitted that he would be scouted. He added that the 'Skins will have scouts at all the major bowls.

Conerly also said yesterday, "I won't sign any contract until after the baseball season. I want to keep my amateur standing so that I'll be able to pitch again for Ole Miss."

He's equally proficient in throwing a baseball and has talked with representatives of the Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs.

It already has been reported that Harry Gilmer, Alabama tosser, will be Washington's first draft selection.

When the question was raised as to why the 'Skins want passers when they have the incomparable Sammy Baugh, McCann said, significantly, "They'd make wonderful trading material, wouldn't they?"

Daily Double

London, Dec. 11 (AP).—Frederick James Jenkins, a greyhound owner, was awarded 225 pounds ($900) damages today for a broken leg suffered when hit by the mechanical rabbit which his dog, Blade, was pursuing.

Majors Dislike 'Pampering,' Alleged in Berardino Deal

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—Fireworks almost erupted at the joint major league meeting today against the St. Louis Browns for "pampering" players..

An undisclosed discussion, which was hushed up, started concerning the double trade of Johnny Berardino of the Browns.

Berardino first was traded to Washington for Gerry Priddy and Commissioner A. B. Chandler subsequently nullified the deal when Berardino announced his retirement.

The Browns then bought Priddy for cash and traded Berardino to Cleveland, purportedly guaranteeing his appearance.

That caused much grumbling among other owners that the Browns must have made a "deal" with Berardino and probably acceded to his demands in the matter of to whom he should be traded. They felt it was a bad precedent to permit a player to dictate.

AHA Recognized Despite U. S. Boycott Threat

Zurich, Switzerland, Dec. 11 (U.P.).—Dr. Fritz Kraatz, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, indicated today that the Amateur Hockey Association team will be recognized to represent the United States in the 1948 winter Olympics despite a threat by the United States Olympic committee to withdraw all United States teams from the St. Moritz games.

The Swiss organizing committee is scheduled to meet here on Sunday and Monday to decide officially whether the A.H.A. team or a squad backed by the United States Amateur Athletic Union will be chosen.

Dr. Kraatz based his views on the fact that the International Ice Hockey Federation (I.I.H.G.) voted into its membership last April the A.H.A. in preference to the A.A.U.

British Tennists Get Travel Pay

London, Dec. 11 (AP).—The British Lawn Tennis Association relaxed its amateur regulations today by approving the payment of traveling and living expenses to players for eight tournaments a year.

One delegate, speaking in support, said that if the resolution were defeated, the LTA, to be honest with itself, should refuse a host of entries for the Wimbledon championships from countries that made similar payments.

Viscount Templewood, LTA president, said to deny such expenses for British players would handicap them in competition with other players in the world.

Duke Star Returns

Pittsburgh, Dec. 11 (AP).—Moe Becker, one of the most talented basketball players ever turned out by Coach Chick Davies at Duquesne University, has returned to his alma mater in the role of an assistant coach.

American U. Routs Mounts

American University posted its second straight Mason-Dixon Conference victory last night, drubbing Mt. St. Mary's, 57-42, at the A. U. gym.

Leading only by one point, 21-20, at halftime, the winners stepped up their pace after intermission to win easily.

Greek Village Sends Traditional Torch to Olympics

London, Dec. 11 (AP).—A burning torch will be relayed from the Greek village of Olympia to light the traditional Olympic flame that will burn throughout the games atop Wembley Stadium, the British organizing committee reported today.

The route across the continent and ho wthe torch will be borne has not been decided, but the path from Calais, France, to the destination was.

It will arrive at Dover, from Calais, by British warship on the night of July 28. A relay of 75 runners will carry the symbolic flame through the night to London in time for the opening ceremonies July 29.

Ignored Aussie Wins

Melbourne, Dec. 11 (AP).—Billy Sidwell, who was ignored by Australia's Davis Cup selection committee last spring, defeated James Brink of Seattle today, 3—6, 6—2, 6—4, 3—6, 6—4, for the major triumph of his career.

There Were Two Horns on This Play

Corsicana, Tex., Dec. 11 (AP).—Dan Roberts of Corsicana, head linesman, penalized a Hubbard football team five yards here last night in a post season football game when an unidentified Hubbard player blew his nose.

Roberts had dropped his red flag for both teams being offside on a play. The player picked up the flag and casually used it as a handkerchief.

New Mexico Arranges Youth Bowl Grid Game

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Dec. 11 (AP).—A Youth Bowl football game was arranged today for Albuquerque on January 1.

Richard Krannawitter, district governor of the sponsoring Co-operative Club, said the Sacramento (Calif.) Senators pro football team has been signed to meet the Bethlehem (Pa.) Bulldogs, champions of the American Football League, in a benefit for the Albuquerque Youth Center.

Eire Has Program For More Sports

Dublin, Dec. 11 (AP).—The Eire government announced plans today to finance a program to stimulate interest in athletics "to attract young men away from dance halls and cinemas."

Minister for Lands Sean Moylan asked the House in Dail to vote a nominal 10 pounds as approval in principle of the project.

Death of Horse Will Be Probed

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—Anne Arundel County police will investigate the death of race horse Saguaro at Laurel track last month after testimony of a hearing before the State racing commission is received. Albert H. McCarthy, president of the local SPCA, said the matter was also being investigated by the State association.

The racing commission heard testimony that the race horse was shot in the hindquarter with a shotgun loaded with rock salt at the Laurel track starting gate. The horse bolted and ran into a fence, breaking his leg and had to be destroyed.

Miami Open Golfer Dies on Eve of Play

Miami, Fla., Dec. 11 (AP).—Ed Brook, 34, golf professional at Winterhaven, Fla., died last night after three hours' practice for the opening today of the $10,000 Miami Open tournament.

His death was attributed to a heart attack. He was slated to tee off today with Errie Ball, Oak Park, Ill., and Tony Mendoza, Havana, Cuba.

Star Who Changed Mind on Bullis Looms as Big Factor in Shoe Bowl

The fickle change of mind by a promising 19-year-old football player could well cost Bullis Prep victory Sunday in the Shoe Bowl game against Marianapolis (Conn.) Academy at Lynn, Mass.

Six-foot, one-inch Bud Belardinelli, who last summer had visions of playing football at the Naval Academy applied for admission to Bullis, one of Navy's two prep schools.

But before Bullis could wire back approval, Boston College alumni had persuaded Bud that he'd do better to play at their school. He changed his mind from the Navy to B. C. and entered Marianapolis, which is Boston College's leading prep school.

Leading Prep Scorer

Shifty and speedy despite his 200 pounds, Belardinelli took over the left-halfback post in Marianapolis' T-functioning backfield and proceeded to win the New England prep school scoring championship with 16 touchdowns.

Another school, interested in nabbing young Belardinelli was Georgetown. Coach Jack Hagerty had seen the boy play high school ball in New Hampshire, and had wanted him for the Hoyas. He has joined Bullis' scouts in warning the Bullis team that in order to win it will have to stop Belardinelli.

Meanwhile, Bullis officials are making preparations to play Sunday's game on a frozen field. Headmaster Al Grossman left yesterday for Boston to make arrangements to borrow tennis shoes if they're needed.

Freezing Weather Forecast

The temperature in Lynn has been below freezing all week and there already has been a lot of snowfall. Shoe Bowl officials have the field covered with 6 inches of hay, which will remain until the day of the game.

For six members of the Silver Spring team, the game will be more than just a thrill . . . it'll be a homecoming.

Baltimore Team Has High Scorer

An unusually large order of high school basketball for this time of season is on tap for the schoolboy fans today with 10 games slated.

Topping the list is the Eastern-Patterson Park of Baltimore tilt beginning at 4 p. m. at Eastern. The Baltimoreans are defending champions and runner-up in the Duke-Durham tourney last year.

In their lineup will be Mel Baldwin, the 5-foot 9-inch, 16-year-old whiz, who averaged 22 points per game last season.

Eastern's showing in today's game should provide it with an idea of what its chances are in the coming interhigh series.

Veterans of last year's Eastern team seeing action today will be Bill Kallas, Harry Wharam, Sonny Wesley, Spike Barouth and Jim Lamon. Eastern's two big guns of last year, Sal DiGiorgi and John Brown, will play little because they are recovering from football injuries.

Three other interhigh schools will also play today, Wilson invading Alexandria to take on George Washington High, McKinley Tech journeying to Mount Rainier and Chamberlain clashing with Roosevelt at Roosevelt. All these games will begin at 3:30 p. m.

16-Team D. C. League Forms

A 16-team amateur basketball league was organized last night at a meeting held in the Arena Sport Shop. All the league games will be played at the National Guard Armory.

The D. C. Amateur Basketball League will include 10 amateur teams and 6 National Guard quintets. Those entering the loop are Clifton Liquors, Kavakos Grill, Keppell Realty Co., Alexandria Recreation Department, First Baptist Church, Congress Heights, United States Poster Co., St. Stephen's Church, Southeast Merchants and Edgemere A. C.

D. C. National Guard teams will include three from the 163d M. P. Batallion, one from the 171st M. P. Battalion and two from the 260th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Group. The addition of several other teams, expected soon, will force the league to split up into two divisions.

'Love to Play Notre Dame,' Says Columbia's Little

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP).—Lou Little, Columbia University football coach, said today "we'd love to play Notre Dame."

Questioned in an interview about the possibilities of a Columbia-Notre Dame clash at New York to replace the Army-Notre Dame rivalry, now ended, Little said:

"It's up to the schedule makers. Sure we'd love to play Notre Dame. They are the best. I like to play the best and so does the squad."

The Columbia tactician said, however, that Columbia had a "pretty tight" Ivy League schedule and that Notre Dame "also must be committed for some time."

He nominated Penn and Penn State as the best grid teams in the East followed closely by Army, despite the West Pointers' loss to Columbia.

Ottawa Raising Funds For Skating Champion

Coast's Bid for Big League Brushed Off

Majors See Possibility In Future

By Jack Hand

New York, Dec. 11 (AP).—The Pacific Coast's bid for conditional major league status was rejected today by a joint meeting of the American and National Leagues in a resolution that recognized the probability of eventual expansion.

Skirting the subject artfully in a carefully phrased statement by Walter Mulbry, secretary to Commissioner A. B. Chandler, the majors said there appears to be no minor league which is entitled to such classification at present.

After recognizing the probability that increasing population should make advisable such expansion, the two big leagues drew up rigid requirements in the event of future application by leagues or individual teams.

What Applicant Must Do

The applicant must assume responsibility for any adjustments of territorial rights, must have adequate population, income and park facilities and must establish that operation on a major league status is practical and justified.

Thus in about 100 words, the big boys brushed off the ingenious proposal by President Clarence Rowland and his Coast League committee which asked for provisional acceptance as a third major.

While they waited for a final decision, they wanted the draft price on their players increased from $10,000 to $25,000 and asked that their players not be subject for draft until they had been playing six years, instead of the customary four.

When informed of the decision, Rowland said, "we'll keep on battling this thing. We are sorry they couldn't see things our way a little bit, especially as regards the draft. But we'll be back."

National Favors 10 Teams

Although it was not mentioned in the official report of the meeting, there was reason to believe that the 10-club league proposition was a subject of ardent discussion.

The National League is believed to have favored unanimously such a plan as the eventual solution of the Coast problem and the American League was in opposition by a 5-2 vote with one member not voting. Chandler reported in favor of the 10-club idea. None would comment.

Any move in such a direction would, of necessity, be a long term operation, involving an agreement on territorial rights. Other Coast League teams definitely would oppose any move by the so-called "Big Four" of San Francisco, Los Angeles, Oakland and Hollywood.

High Schools Not Discussed

Mulbry said the explosive high school rule did not come up for consideration. A violation of interpretation resulted in the suspension and $500 fine of Leslie M. O'Connor, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, last October.

O'Connor finally relented and paid the fine but it was reported that an attempt would be made to bring the matter into the open at the winter sessions that ended today.

Chandler's ruling that no player may be invited or encouraged to report for spring training before March 1 resulted in considerable discussion and opposition but it still stands.

For the first time, the majors decided to allow some of their players to play winter ball in Cuba during the 1948-49 season. Those who have not played more that 45 days in the majors are eligible, but no more than two from any one team. This should be a terrific boon to the Cubans who recently were granted permission to take their pick from the minor leagues.

Can't Sign Legion Players

Prohibition against signing a boy with American Legion eligibility was finally written into the rules although it has been in effect for many years on an "honor" basis. The legion program was voted an appropriation of $50,000, as compared to the usual $20,000.

The Ends Will Be Busy

Both Baugh and Luckman Make UP All-Pro Team

By Russ Green

Philadelphia, Dec. 11 (U.P.).—Western division nominees outnumbered Eastern division 2 to 1 today in the 1947 National Football League all-star team selected by the United Press.

Balloting by football writers and sports writers, and a survey among coaches, gave the Western teams 22 of a possible 33 players.

The Chicago Bears and the Chicago Cardinals, tied for the Western leadership, each placed three men on the first team and six men on the all-star squad.

Only two players, Tackle Al Wistert of the Philadelphia Eagles, and Ken Kavanaugh of the Chicago Bears, were first-team repeaters.

Baugh, Luckman Backs

Others named to the first team for consistently top-flight performance during a season marked by player and team ups and downs were End Mal Kutner of the Chicago Cardinals, Tackle Fred Davis of the Bears, Guards Len Younce, New York, and Bill Moore, Pittsburgh; Center Vince Banonis, Chicago Cardinals, and a backfield of Sid Luckman of the Bears, Steve Van Buren of the Eagles, Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins, and Pat Hardep of the Cardinals.

The selections marked the return of the perennials Luckman and Baugh to all-league status, Climaxing perhaps the greatest offensive season either has had in their long NFL history. Though both are T-formation quarterbacks. Baugh can run like a halfback, play a defensive halfback position and is one of the league's leading punters.

Both Set Records

Both broke existing passing records in the first 11 games of the season. Each surpassed the old completion record held by Baugh, and the old yardage record held by Luckman.

Between them, they accounted for exactly 5100 yards by passing, and they threw a total of 45 touchdowns.

Offensively, the first team also includes the league's leading ground gainer in Van Buren, the league's top scorer in Harder, and a pair of ends who caught 18 touchdown passes.

Kavanaugh leads the league with 12 touchdowns, and Kutner adds to his value with a fine defensive game.

Lions, Springfield Play Tomorrow

Washington's Lions return to action after a week's layoff tomorrow night when they oppose Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians in an American Hockey League match in Springfield, Mass.

The local pros return to Uline Arena against the Indianapolis Capitols Tuesday night.

The Lions have defeated the Indians three times previously this season, and hope to make it four in a row tomorrow night. They lost a hard fought decision to the Western Division-leading Pittsburgh Hornets last Saturday night, 3-4.

Navy Court Line-up Set

Annapolis, Md., December 11 (AP).—Coach Ben Carnevale announced a tentative starting lineup today for his Navy basketball team's opening engagement against Johns Hopkins at Dahlgren Hall this Saturday afternoon.

His two veterans from last year's quintet, which advanced to the NCAA tournament in New York, will be joined by three former reserves on whom Carnevale is banking heavily to pull the Middies through a rugged 17-game schedule.

Jask Robbins at forward and John Barrow at center are the holdovers, although it will be Barrow's first fling at the pivot. He was a guard last season, but his 6 feet 2 inches and the scarcity of men combining height and court skill prompted Carnevale to shift him to the new position.

Robbins running mate will be Bob Searle, a left-handed sharpshooter while Harry Woods and Charles Sheehan probably will face Hopkins in rear court.

Middlebury, Vt., Dec. 11 (AP).—Students at Middlebury College succeeded late today in raising the $1500 necessary to send the ski team to Sun Valley, Idaho.

Cooper to Box On Stribling Show Monday

Jimmy Cooper, 19-year-old colored scrapper who recently stopped Puggy King at Turner's Arena, yesterday was signed for a special six-round added attraction on Monday night's boxing show, featuring Ken Stribling, the local middleweight, and Frank Lacey of Baltimore.

Cooper, conqueror of King in a fourth round technical knockout, will fight Lucky Johnson, of Philadelphia.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez stated that the Cooper bout comes in the form of a "Christmas gift to boxing fans," since the youngster already definitely has established himself as a solid headline attraction. Menendez also has booked Johnny Arduini, former amateur champion, for a five-rounder against Myron Dickerson, of Philadelphia. Arduini in his pro debut last Monday flattened Charlie Johnson.

Race Permit Granted

New York, Dec. 11 (AP)—The stewards of the Jockey Club granted a provisional racing permit to the Australian 6-year-old Shannon while the animal's breeding background is being investigated.

Potato Bowl Full of Salad

The 90-pound football champions of Washington, representing the Georgetown Boys Club, will celebrate last week's victory in "The Potato Bowl" with a big league stag party tomorrow night at the Georgetown Club.

The 90-pounders planned the party themselves, receiving permission of the Georgetown Club officials to keep the facilities open until 11 p. m. Usually the club closes at 1 p. m. Saturady.

In keeping with the spirit of their 12-0 triumph in the Potato Bowl game, the boys' menu will feature heaping dishes of potato salad.

Among them will be Slingin' Sammy Baugh, Jim Castiglia, Jimmy Youel, Wilbur Moore and Dick Todd of the 'Skins, and Andy Farkas, former Redskin star.

Shirley to Lecture At Basketball Clinic

The Eastern Board of Officials will hold its annual basketball clinic tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Wake Hall gymnasium, Oklahoma ave. and E st. ne.

Visiting coaches and players will hear an explanation of rule changes by Dallas Shirley, local court official.

Flying Raider Wins Her 3d Purse of Charles Town Meeting

Bill Bennings

DEAR FOLKS:

Trainer R. L. Gheen plans on shipping Maryland Morn to Cuba. Gheen has signed to assist Trainer E. A. Christmas in handling the W. L. Brann string, which will spend the winter at the Laurel, Md., track. C. Palmer Sowers, conditioner of the Shangrila Stable's thoroughbreds, and who was leading winning trainer last winter at Sunshine Park, Fla., with 17 winners, states he will ship a small stable to Gulfstream Park at the conclusion of this session. Trainer W. M. Miller will winter eight horses here. He states he can care for a few more. Trainer Bill Wright will winter three horses at Bowie, Md. Jockey Buddy Root, who plans on spending the winter at his home near Camden, N. J., sent word that he would bring a party of friends down for Saturday's racing. Root was the leading rider here in the summer of 1943, hanging up 73 victories. Al Young, formerly connected with the V. P. Noyes' Stable, has taken over Albert C. Bostwick's Mythman and Scuttlemate, B. Frank Christmas' Friendly Miss and Kanteno, and Mrs. Vera S. Bragg's Sweets to train. Trainer Christmas will divide his time between his Maryland farm and here to lend Young a helping hand. Unless some rider stages a sudden spurt, George Cardoza will carry off the jockeys' crown for the 18-days' sport here. Cardoza piloted 11 winners the first nine days. See you on the rail.

Billy Bitz Pays $79.60 In 5th Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 11. Stevens Stable's Flying Raid became the first three-time winner at this meeting when the daughter of Sky Raider-Delma Dunn proved best of the seven-horse field that engaged in the sixth and featured event at this Shenandoah Valley track today.

The 3-year-old filly was very well fancied by the majority of the 4000 fans and consequently brought about a $4.20 payoff. She outlasted Frosty River by three quarters of a length while completing the Charles Town course, 120 feet more than six furlongs, in 1:17 4-5. The track was good. Third place honors went to Aylesbury.

Two Stevens Mounts Star

Joseph Stevens of New York, owner of the Stevens Stable, has sent postward but two horses here, Asaider and Flying Raid, and the pair have, to date, performed successfully on four different occasions.

For this outing, Flying Raid had the services of Jockey Raymond Arduini of Washington, D.C. He did not rush his mount during the early running although he kept the filly close to the pace-setting Frosty River. On entering the stretch, Arduini urged the Stevens representative and she responded gamely to wear down Frosty River in the run home.

Double Pays $9.60

Favorites prevailed in the first and second races when H. Barnard's Licorice and H. D. Green's Bus V. Z. garnered respective honors and were responsible for a meager $9.60 daily double pay-off.

Longshots captured the fourth and fifth numbers when Miss Helen Noyes' Acapana, paying $55.80, took the former event and H. M. Simpson's Billy Bitz, at $79.60 for $2, arrived home first in the "about seven fourlongs" fifth.

Solunar Tables

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Out Hunting

By Jack Bell

HUNTERS IN THE United States, blessed with the finest collection of game birds in the world—thanks to game restoration—show great concern for the rapidly dwindling stock of ruffed grouse.

The grouse is probably the king of all game birds. He is so wild that it has resisted every effort of game breeders to propagate in captivity.

Crowded by increasing agricultural activity and development, the habitat of grouse has become limited. In other areas the bird is given no quarter by an increasing army of hunters.

Only in Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Montana is the population of grouse on the upgrade.

Pennsylvania bans grouse hunting. West Virginia, where the season ended November 29, reports grouse more numerous than last year, although they presented a spotty appearance.

NORTHWESTERN MARYLAND hunters report they are having a better than fair season, which closes December 31.

Shenandoah National Park, where all hunting is forbidden, grouse are on the increase. The Culpeper and Sperryville areas, bordering the park, are notable for grouse hunting. In the national forests, our largest Eastern public hunting grounds, hunters find grouse fair to plentiful.

The Wildlife Management Institute reports that its technicians, working in the Jackson Hole, Mont., area, have observed the largest population in many years. This apparently is one region where these fine game birds are reaching a peak population again.

Game technicians in Pennsylvania have, for the first time, devised a unique live trap designed to catch ruffed grouse for banding and marking purposes.

It is done by mirrors. The trap is placed on a drumming log; the grouse sees his image in the mirror. His aggressiveness and tenacity do the rest. This novel trapping method will enable wildlife technicians to obtain valuable information on dispersal, mortality and territorial studies.

Since all of the essential trapping tricks have not been revealed by technicians, there is no fear that this efficient device will be put to improper use.

Ike Williams Gives Big Edge

New York, Dec. 11 (U.P.).—Lightweight Champion Ike Williams will give away about nine pounds tomorrow night when he tackles the first genuine welterweight of his career, young Tony Pellone of New York, in a 10-round nontitle bout at Madison Square Garden.

Williams of Trenton, N. J., expected to weigh about 136 pounds to Pellone's 145.

Despite this weight difference, Williams was favored at 11 to 5 because of his punching superiority. However, Pellone was receiving strong backing because of his unorthodox style, his ruggedness and his busy attack.

Pepco to File Bond Offering Of 15 Million

By S. Oliver Goodman

Potomac Electric Power Co., in the midst of a heavy expansion program, is expected to issue 15 million dollars in new bonds early next year.

An application, covering competitive sale of the proposed issue, is scheduled to be filed next week with the Securities and Exchange Commission and with the local Public Utilities Commission. The company, it is understood, will advertise for competive bids to be received about the middle of next month.

The new bonds are the maximum of the 5 to 15 million dollars which the company contemplated some weeks ago as the result of its current expansion program.

Pepco's wholly owned subsidiary, Braddock Light & Power Co., recently acquired a site of about 23 acres on the Potomac River at Alexandria, Va., on which a power plant with an ultimate projected capacity of 400,000 kilowatts is being initially developed. Scheduled for installation for 1949 and 1950, respectively, are two 80,000-kilowatt capacity steam-electric turbo-generators and also 75 circuit miles of transmission, distribution lines and one substation.

At present Pepco has outstanding 40 million dollars in 3¼ per cent first mortgage bonds, maturing from 1966 to 1977. The proposed new bonds are expected to carry a 1983 maturity date.

DIVIDEND RAISED: Directors of Industrial Bank of Washington have declared an annual dividend of 5 per cent, or 50 cents a share, on capital stock, Vice President B. Doyle Mitchell reported yesterday. This is an increase over the 4 per cent paid last year. The dividend is payable January 27 to stock of record December 31. Mitchell added that a Christmas bonus was distributed to employes Wednesday.

CHANGES: The two chief officers of First Boston Corp.—Chairman John R. Macomber and President Allan M. Pope—will retire on December 31 in accordance with the investment banking firm's retirement plan. Both have held their respective positions over the 13-year life of First Boston. They will be succeeded by Harry M. Addinsell as board chairman and James Coggeshall as president. Also moving up and their new titles are: George D. Woods, chairman of executive committee; Duncan R. Lindsley, Aubrey G. Lanston and William H. Potter, executive vice presidents.

BULLISH: In a current survey of Washington Gas Light Co. common stock, Fitch Investors Survey says: "Dividend rate is covered by a fair margin and earnings prospects remain favorable. Common stock is attractive for income." With changeover to natural gas completed, Fitch points out, more favorable operating results can be expected. Washington Gas Light Co. expects gas sales for 1947 of about 130 million therms, a rise of 12 per cent over 1946.

RECORD LOANS: Home loans of the 27 members of the District of Columbia Building & Loan League soared to a record high of $296,500,000 as of November 30, League Secretary F. Willson Camp reported yesterday. This was an increase of $60,606,000 or 24 per cent for the 12-month period. The loans numbered 48,865, compared with 44,750 on November 30, 1946. Other highlights of Camp's monthly report: assets rose to $326,277,000; savings share accounts totaled $260,000,000 and numbered 209,900.

MORE POWER: Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday reported November sales totaled 151,323,508 kilowatt hours, an increase of 9 per cent over the same month last year. For the first 11 months sales aggregated 1,665,348,962 kilowatt hours for an increase of 8 per cent over the similar 1946 period. In the District of Columbia alone, Pepco's sales in November amounted to 127,612,081 kilowatt hours, up 8.72 per cent.

Youth Guilty in Md. Slaying

Baltimore, Dec. 11 (AP).—Charles F. Masek, 17-year-old high school student, was convicted of manslaughter today by Judge Joseph Sharbow after trial for the brickbat slaying of Mrs. Mina Taylor, 32-year-old New York divorcee.

Sehtence was deferred pending filing of motions by defense attorneys.

Masek, weeping during part of his testimony, said he struck the woman after she turned and scratched him when he was walking down the street behind her last August 17.

Dr. Jean Cushing, Johns Hopkins psychiatrist, testified that Masek told him under hypnosis that he killed the woman in self-defense.

Assistant State's Attorney John C. Weiss had asked a second degree verdict.

Dr. Manfred S. Guttmacher, court psychiatrist, said he thought Masek's act was that "of a sick individual."

Page County Votes To Probe Luray School

Luray, Va., Dec. 11.—The Page County Board of Supervisors has appointed Superintendent Cecil C. Graves and Supervisor Paul Black to investigate conditions at Andrew Jackson School here. The action was taken following protests by parents of children in the school. Necessary repairs will be paid for from the general county fund.

Wreckage of Plane in Andrew's Field Crash . . .

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

FLIERS' NIGHTMARE—Rescue workers at Andrews Field look over wreckage of Army C-47 cargo plane which crashed within 1500 feet of its runway Wednesday night as it came through freezing rain. Two men were killed, five injured

Andrews Field Crash Fatal to 2d Airman

By Charles Yarbrough
Post Reporter

Death toll in the crash of an ice-clad Army C-47 plane at Andrews Field rose to two early yesterday with the death of Lieut. J. C. Martin, 27, of Chickasha, Okla.

The plane, heavily iced with freezing rain on a return trip early Wednesday night to Andrews Field from Rome, N. Y., crashed and exploded 1500 feet from the approach end of the runway.

Lieut. Carl Curtis, 25, of Vallejo, Calif., copilot, was killed instantly and four other crewmen suffered minor injuries.

An Air Force investigation was under way yesterday to determine cause of the accident. Unofficial opinions attributed it to ice.

The pilot, Lieut. H. N. Hunter, 24, of 918 18th st. nw, was coming in on the field's GCA (ground control approach) system, which uses radar and radio to "talk" a plane through bad weather to a point where the pilot can see the runway. The plane had been lined up with the runway, but dipped suddenly, one wing striking a mobile radar unit.

Ice Survives Fire

The aircraft struck the ground, bounced about 1000 feet along the approach, then rammed the ground and exploded. Ice still caked the leading edge of one wing even after fire had destroyed most of the fuselage.

In radio conversation with the Andrews GCA operator, the pilot was asked if he could climb to 5000 feet where temperatures were higher and would melt the ice. He replied that he could not; that the plane was losing 200 feet of altitude per minute.

Ice, forming on wing surfaces, distorts the air foil to the point where lift necessary to hold the plane in the air is decreased rapidly. More power is required to keep it flying and it stalls at a much faster speed. Normally, a C-47, the Army designation for the DC-3, stalls at about 80 miles an hour with flaps and landing gear down.

One of the four survivors of the Andrews accident, S/Sergt. E. J. Rysyk, who lives at the field, was dismissed from the hospital yesterday. The others injured, in addition to Lieut. Hunter, are T/Sergt. J. F. Ewers, who lives near the field, and Lieut. R. E. Polak of District Heights, Md.

CBI Theater Veteran

Lieutenant Martin was a veteran of the China-Burma-India theater of war with the Twentieth Air Force and also participated in Operation Crossroads at Bikini Atoll. He was squadron adjutant of the Fourth Maintenance and Supply Group at Andrews.

Lieutenant Curtis, married and the father of one child, saw service overseas as a fighter pilot.

Lieutenant Hunter, son of Mrs. Johnsie B. Hunter, employe of the Veterans' Administration, has lived in Washington since 1934 save for war service.

It was the fourth emergency use of GCA at Andrews Field this year. Three of the planes were saved. The Air Forces all-weather flying laboratory, a C-54, has made 330 landings at Andrews in approach for its run to the landing the last 16 months in all kinds of weather, using ground control strips.

The wrecked twin-engine plane was also equipped with another type of landing aid, the instrument landing system (ILS) but it was not in use, Andrews Field said yesterday.

With ILS, two radio transmitters emit impulses which bring the plane in lined up with the runway and determine its glide path. It was the ILS mobile transmitter which the ill-fated aircraft struck when it came in over the runway approach.

Using GCA, the Civil Aeronautics Administration's senior traffic controller, Joe Vivari, talked another ice-heavy, twin-engine Beechcraft into National Airport at the same time of the Andrews Field crash. It was the first emergency use of GCA at National, which also is equipped with an ILS system.

A short time later, Vivari put an Army B-25 bomber into position to land at Bolling Field.

Earlier Wednesday, an Eastern Airlines transport, the same type as that which crashed at Andrews, landed at National Airport with several inches of ice on the wings.

The plane, loaded with passengers, was forced to land at 120 miles an hour because of the weight of ice and loss of lift. Loaded, it normally would land between 80 and 85.

The captain was M. J. Chumbley; the pilot, R. H. Rogers, both of Miami, Fla.

Court Backs Cemetery On Animal Statue Ban

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—A decision of the Greenmount Cemetery proprietors forbidding Mrs. A. S. Abell of Baltimore to erect two statuary lions on her cemetery lot was upheld today by the Court of Appeals.

The court ruled that the decision was neither arbitary nor unreasonable. The lions were described as 18 inches high and 42 inches long and "works of art."

The presence of two small dogs, one cat, an eagle and several lambs in older parts of the cemetery was not considered relevant to setting up the lions, the court held.

Md. Officers Are Cleared in Fatal Beating

Elkton, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—A State trooper and the night turnkey at the Wicomico County jail today were cleared of charges that they beat a Salisbury, Md., businessman to death last July in a fight at the jail after he had been arrested for drunken driving.

The three judges of Maryland's second judicial circuit, who heard manslaughter charges against the two officers on a change of venue after the case aroused considerable feeling at Salisbury, found they used no more than reasonable force to subdue Milton H. Jones, 31-year-old truck line operator and automobile dealer.

They also ruled that Jones was "inordinately intoxicated" and "violently" resisted State Trooper John J. Harbaugh, 29, and Jack W. Turney, 63-year-old one-armed night jailer.

The court expressed a doubt that Jones had died as the result of blows landed by the two officers in the fight.

Chief Judge Owen J. Knotts and Associate Judges William R. Horney and Floyd J. Kintner returned their verdict after deliberating a little more than an hour and a half.

Harbaugh has been suspended since the incident and will be automatically reinstated as a result of the acquittal. He joined the force in 1944.

The case had its inception on Saturday night, July 26, when Harbaugh arrested Jones at an intersection on the outskirts of Salisbury and charged him with reckless and drunken driving.

He and another trooper got Jones into the elevator operated by Turner and were taking him up to the jail atop the county courthouse, when the fight started. Jones was pronounced dead at Peninsula General Hospital a few minutes later.

Winchester Increases License Fees for 1948

Winchester, Va., Dec. 11.—Substantial increases in nearly all license fees for 1948 have been voted by the city council. Not included in the ordinance were mercantile licenses, boosted earlier this year.

Finance chairman Fred Glaize, Jr., said the hikes would add about $20,000 to the town's annual income. Largest increase was on theaters, which were raised from $200 to $500 for the first 350 seats. Fees for professional licenses were upped from $25 to $50 a year.

United Air Lines Plans Philippine Service

Chicago, Dec. 11 (AP).—United Air Lines said today an agreement has been reached with Philippine Air Lines linking passenger and air freight service. Under the agreement, clients can arrange straight through passenger or freight service to points served by Philippine. Transfers will be made at San Francisco or Honolulu. Philippine operates from San Francisco to Honolulu, Wake, Guam, Manila, Hongkong, Shanghai and Bangkok.

Farm Experts Get Advice on Output Costs

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—Dr. R. B. Corbett, associate director of the Maryland extension service, told farm agents and specialists today "too often our thinking has lagged behind price changes."

He told the farm exeperts, meeting here for their annual conference, most farm groups anticipate a drop in prices and said when it comes "low costs in production will be more practical than maximum production."

Earlier, O. W. Anderson, Montgomery County farm agent, speaking on insect and disease control on farms, said a combination of spray and practice adjustments appeared the best methods to meet the farmer's needs.

"Speaking in terms of the corn crop, it would rule out spray alone as being too expensive. Likewise we should rule out practice adjustments alone, because they will not bring about efficient control practiced on a community-wide basis."

He said the combination plan greatly lessens the amount of spraying to be done, thus lowering the cost and encouraging mass cooperation.

A. E. Jones of Washington, chief of operations of the soil conservation service, who was scheduled to address the soil conservation meeting here also, was unable to appear because of sudden illness.

Leading a discussion of soil conservation practice, H. M. Carroll of Howard County, said in his opinion soil conservation was not being extended as rapidly in the State as desired.

Fred Bull, soil conservationist of Towson, said "anyone who has even the smallest part in the soil conservation movement is doing a job he can well be proud of."

Paul Nystrom, deputy director of the extension service in charge of farm labor, who is on leave of absence at Harvard, discussed extension policies on a long-term basis, the subject of his study.

The soil conservation service will convene separately tomorrow for two meetings, while the home demonstrationists, county agents and specialists of the extension service meet jointly with the emphasis on 4-H club work and older youth plans.

Computing Wizard

Latest Army Math Device Ready for '48

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—Edvac, the new electronical computing device that understands two "languages," will be in operation at this Army testing base early next year.

Announcing this today, Col. Leslie E. Simon, director of ballistic research laboratories at Aberdeen, estimated Edvac and its "brother," Eniac, which already is in operation here, will advance the science of mathematics at least one whole generation.

He explained that the solving of any one of a vast variety of problems now confronting scientists would require a lifetime of work if performed by man. But Edvac and Eniac may come up with answers to many complicated problems in a matter of minutes, or possibly hours.

New Machine Faster

Eniac, which has been in operation only a few months, already is "old fashioned" compared with Edvac, Simon said. Edvac will solve problems much more complicated and reach the answers more speedily.

Besides, mathematicians may "talk" to Edvac in their own language, the language of digits. Edvac will perform the problem in its own language, which is a code, and supply the answer in the language of mathematicians.

Eniac has to be "talked to" in its own language, also a code. Edvac also will have a much better "memory" than Eniac.

The value of the "memory device" is this: When one portion of a problem is solved, Edvac will store the answer in a container. When this answer is then needed to be applied again after other phases of the problem are solved, Edvac will call upon the container for the answer stored there and apply it to the problem.

To Have Many Uses

Simon and S. Feltman, of the ballistics section of the office of the chief of ordnance, said the practical applications of Edvac will solve not only many military problems, including some nuclear physics, but also supply many answers for weathermen, airplane designers and even medical men.

Eniac and other computing devices developed as a result of work started by the Aberdeen Computing Laboratory were demonstrated today for about 200 delegates attending the first meeting of the Eastern Association for Computing Machinery.

Thomas Bost Made Director Of College Publicity Group

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 11 (Spl.).—W. Thomas Bost, jr., of Wake Forest College, was elected director of District IV of the American College Public Relations Association today. He succeeds Martha Von Briesen of Sweet Briar College.

The elections ended a three-day meeting at the University of Virginia. Martha Briney of Hood College, Frederick, Md., was elected district secretary.

Medora Mason, national vice president of the National Education Association, was the speaker at the closing luncheon. Marvin W. Topping of the Medical College of Virginia discussed publicity office organization at the morning session, and Randolph Bean of WCHV and George Wilson of the University of Virginia spoke on radio as a publicity medium.

William H. Wranek of the University of Virginia was host to delegates, and the university was represented by Dick Turner, T. Daniel Shumate, Chester Goolrick, and Laurence Laurent.

Among those registered were W. Earl Brown, Rufus King, and C. E. May, Bridgewater College; John R. Busick and Tom Coleman, George Washington University; W. B. Beatty, Hampton Institute; Mrs. Elizabeth Elliott, Hollins College; Otto McClarrin, Howard University; Mary Swann Carroll, Mary Baldwin College; Raymond H. Brooks, Mary Washington College; Marvin W. Topping, Medical College of Virginia; Billie Rivers, Radford College; Mrs. R. E. Gooch, Randolph-Macon Women's College; Edith Kirkland, Salem College; President John Simpson, Russell Neely, and Hazel Richardson, Stratford College.

Others were Jack Carper, Virginia Military Institute; Robert H. McNeil and William Redfield, Virginia Polytechnic Institute; Lea Booth and William Buchanan, Washington and Lee University, and J. B. Jones, Western Maryland College.

Lane Predicts Bay Crossing Start Soon

Princess Anne, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—Governor Lane, in a speech tonight at a dinner given in his honor by Somerset County residents, voiced again his hope for an early start on the Chesapeake Bay crossing, whether it be a bridge or a tunnel.

Speaking before hundreds of Eastern Shoremen the Governor said, "whether it will be a bridge or tunnel depends on whichever is the cheaper to build and operate.

"The time for talking is over, and I am confident we're going to be ready to start building next spring.

"That easy, rapid crossing of the bay, which I hope and expect will be open to traffic within two years and half from the time construction starts, will open to full development the great potentialities of the Eastern Shore.

"Easy access to the lower Eastern Shore, to Ocean City and its fine bathing beaches and unlimited fishing resources, will be given to the people of Baltimore and its metropolitan area and to the million and a half people in Washington and its adjacent areas."

The Governor, turning to fisheries, expressed the hope that Virginia would reach "binding agreement with us to so regulate the taking of fish at the capes and in the lower bay that a more equitable share will reach Maryland waters."

He said an announcement of the findings of the joint commission would be ready within two weeks.

Poland Bans Convoys To U. S. Embassy

Warsaw, Poland, Dec. 11 (U.P.).—The Foreign Office announced today that notes have been sent to the American and British Embassies notifying them that visas will not be issued for future supply convoys from Berlin to Warsaw.

Road convoys normally brought in supplies to the embassies every few months. The Foreign Office spokesman said that other means of transport would have to be used in the future.

Glenn Martin Sells Farm at Chestertown

Chestertown, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—Sale of 400 acres by Glenn L. Martin, Baltimore airplane manufacturer, to Howard B. Strong was reported here.

The sale consisted of the Strong farm in Broad Neck, which includes a colonial brick mansion erected in 1850. Martin, who recently closed his food-processing plant here, will retain his Poplar Neck estate of more than 1000 acres.

S. T., on Monday, January 26, 1948, for the construction and completion of a High School Building at Culpeper, Virginia, at which place promptly thereafter they will be publicly opened and read. Copies of the plans and specifications may be obtained from Eubank & Caldwell, Inc., Architects and Engineers, Roanoke, Virginia, upon deposit of $25.00. If, within 30 days after the ultimate time set for the receipt of bids, the documents are returned undamaged, the deposits of those who submit bids will be returned, and the other deposits, less actual cost of reproduction of the drawings and postage, will be refunded. Each bidder will be required to submit with his bid a bid bond, or a certified check in the amount of 5 per cent of the bid submitted. No bid may be withdrawn for a period of 30 days after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids. The School Board of Culpeper County reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive informalities. SCHOOL BOARD OF CULPEPER COUNTY. By PAUL HOUNSHELL, Division Superintendent of Schools, Culpeper County, Virginia.

8 Harford County Taxpayers Ask Writ to Keep Tax at $1.05

Bel Air, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—A suit by eight taxpayers was on file today in Circuit Court asking an injunction to restrain the Harford County Commissioners from levying proposed new tax rates which were set under the budget adopted November 1.

The action, rare in Maryland legal annals, was taken against the three commissioners, W. Lee Linkous, Republican; Milton R. Walker and Hugh Laird, Democrats, and Streett Bowman, county treasurer.

The plaintiffs contended the commissioners illegally levied a higher tax than necessary.

The board set the new tax rate for Harford County towns at $1.22 per $100 valuation, or 17 cents above the current levy. The levy on county property outside of towns was set at $1.47, an increase of 27 cents.

It is reported the first suit of its kind ever brought in Harford County. Attorneys said the court of appeals had upheld the right of taxpayers to file such actions in a similar Baltimore County suit filed in 1878. In that case, legality of the suit was upheld, but the court said it felt the levy was proper.

Attorneys for the commissioners are expected to file an answer shortly. J. Wilmer Cronin, former Harford County State Senator and one of the attorneys for the plaintiff said that if the court enjoined the commissioners from levying the probate rate, a new budget and tax rate would have to be set up.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Electric Shock Renews Life Of Boy Patient Thought Dead

Cleveland, Dec. 11 (AP).—A 14-year-old Ohio boy who was "apparently dead" at the end of a chest operation owes his renewed life to a new electric shock treatment using ordinary 110-volt alternating current.

He is Richard Heyard of Louisville, Ohio, and the new surgical technique was applied by Dr. Claude S. Beck, associate professor of surgery at Western Reserve University, one of the research experts who devised it.

The case was disclosed here at Babies' and Children's Hospital and reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"During the closure of the wound in the chest, the pulse suddenly stopped and the blood pressure sounds could not be heard," the report said. "The patient was apparently dead."

Reopening the wound, the surgeons began massaging the heart and after 35 minutes noted faint heart action. But the heart chambers had lost their rhythm, a condition which has always led to death.

Two additional steps were taken. A drug, procaine hydrochloride, was injected into the right side of the heart. Then two large electrodes, carrying 1.5 amperes of 110-volt alternating current, were applied directly. After two series of shocks the heart action became regular. The drug, by reducing the irritability of the organ, following the shocks, helped prevent a recurrence of the irregular action.

The massage was used for a total of more than two and one-half hours, and the patient's irregular heartbeat lasted for an hour and 10 minutes before the shocks corrected the condition.

After the normal beat had been established for 20 minutes, the chest wound was closed again and three hours later the patient was able to respond to questioning.

Senate Unit Probes Army Sugar Deal

The Senate Committee on Government spending yesterday asked Secretary of Defense James Forrestal to explain the Army's purchase of 500,000 tons of Cuban sugar, allegedly at "over the market" prices.

McCarthy

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, jr., (R. Wis.) has charged that the Army officers who made the deal were 'incompetent or worse" and suggested that the purchase may have been a "subterfuge," to support Cuban prices.

Chairman George D. Aitken (R., Vt.) said his Senate committee has asked Forrestal and the Commodity Credit Corporation for the full facts "as they see them." Further action will be taken, he said, "if it doesn't look good."

McCarthy claimed during Senate Appropriation Committee hearings Tuesday that the sugar was purchased through the Commodity Credit Corporation, just before sugar was removed from price control in the United States. He said the Army paid 5.17 cents a pound for it, compared with the open market price of between 4.1 and 4.3 cents a pound.

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall defended the transaction, saying the price was not excessive considering the quantity involved and that the purchase was essential in meeting food requirements in occupied areas.

RFC Loans Held Meeting Business Need

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

RFC Chairman John D. Goodloe yesterday said banks were not making the long-term loans needed by small business, and that RFC was meeting the need.

Chairman Buck (R., Del.) called Goodloe to tell a Senate Banking Subcommittee whether RFC loans are hampering free enterprise by covering a wider field that they ought to.

Goodloe thought not. He said many banks had policies against small business loans, on a long-term basis, so that veterans and others who wanted to start their own businesses turned to the big Government lending agency.

Many Small Loans Made

Most of the RFC business loans, Goodloe said, were made to such businessmen; pointing out that 90 per cent of them were for $100,000 or less, and that 65 per cent were for less than $25,000.

This was shown, he explained, by a study of 2910 loans that were turned down by banks in the last 16 months, and then were made by the RFC.

Goodloe agreed with Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) that three or four times as many people might ask the RFC for money if the Government tightened up on bank credit. If that happened, he said, the RFC would judge each request for money on its own merits.

Opposes GAO Plan

The RFC chairman said he was against the General Accounting Office bill to limit RFC directors to making policy and put operations in the hands of a general manager. Goodloe told the Senators he did not see how—except in theory—the two functions could be divided.

Theodore Herz, assistant director of corporate audits in the GAO, told the subcommittee that RFC accounting practice was very loose during the war. The RFC was staking war plants to millions of dollars apiece during the war, Herz said, and there was no uniform system of records, so that no auditor could say for sure how the Government came out on the deals.

War May Be Resumed, Stratemeyer Fears

New York, Dec. 11 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commanding general of the Air Defense Command, said today that war may be "resumed at any time," and the United States is "not blind as to whom the opposition may be."

Stratemeyer, speaking at a luncheon at Hotel St. George, said the United States continues to "hope and pray" that world peace ultimately will be insured by the United Nations. He said, however, that until U. N. can insure peace, there would be only an armistice in the "deadly game of war."

Civil Rights Leader Asks For Action

By Genevieve Reynolds

Action must be taken now to assure civil rights for all groups, declared Mrs. M. E. Tilly, member of the President's Civil Rights Committee, in a luncheon address yesterday to members of the Women's National Press Club. The meeting was held at the Mayflower Hotel.

She told the audience that both moral and economic issues are involved in the civil rights question. "A nation can't support a dual system of living," she said.

Mrs. Tilly said that she had received a half dozen anonymous letters from District residents protesting the accuracy of the civil rights report. But of the 6 to 18 daily letters sent to her personally only 1 per cent express opposition, she said.

Suggests Actions

When asked for specific ways to implement the recommendations of the report, she suggested: (1) cleanse your own thoughts of hate and discrimination; (2) hold discussion groups to acquaint people with problems of various groups, (3) rally the support of American people through an educational program as suggested in section six of the report.

In order to make the educational process effective, Mrs. Tilly advised people to learn to know each other and for various groups and clubs to get together and air their particular problems.

In a question-answer period, following an outline of the aims of the report, she was queried, "how can women's organizations be most effective in implementing the civil rights report?"

Mrs. Tilly replied, "Hope lies in women's groups, particularly church groups. Women have more leisure time to be leaders in human rights issues."

Asked what the South is doing to combat hate and discrimination against minority groups, she cited the work of the Southern Regional Council, of which she is field director, plus church groups. "In one Southern city vicious hate sheets were being circulated. We gathered the religious leaders of the town to study the advertising in the sheet. Next week all ads had disappeared from the pamphlet," she explained. "A religious group also organized a campaign last year to keep the racial issues out of political campaigns and succeeded. Furthermore the Southern Regional Council has organized interracial councils in each city to promote better understanding between the Negroes and whites."

No Monopoly on Hate

Emphasizing that the South had no monopoly on hate and racial discrimination feelings, she said that hate is general throughout the country—in all sections—and missionaries of good will are needed everywhere.

As for the civil rights report's interpretation of loyalty of Gov-

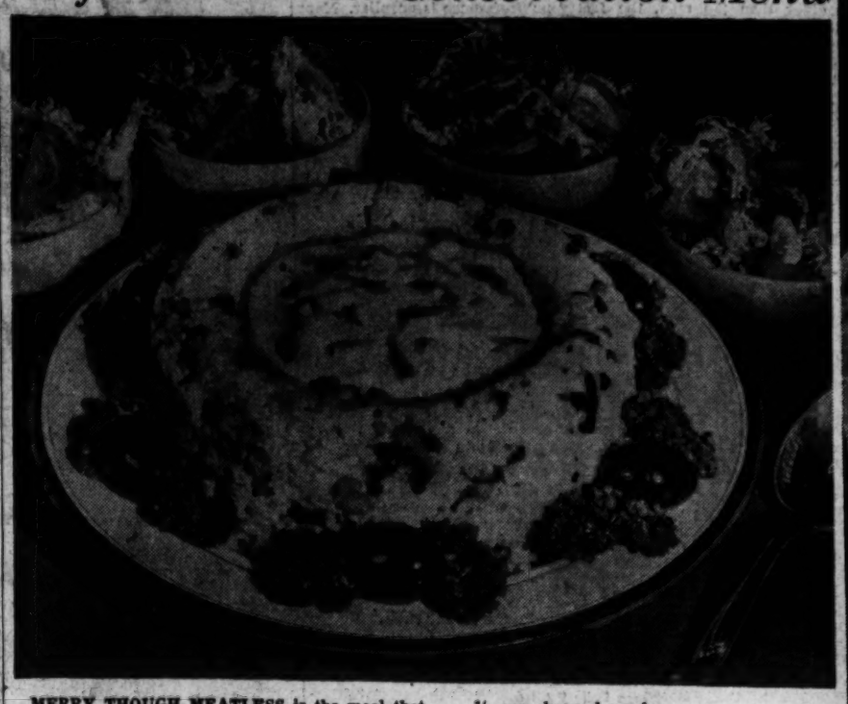
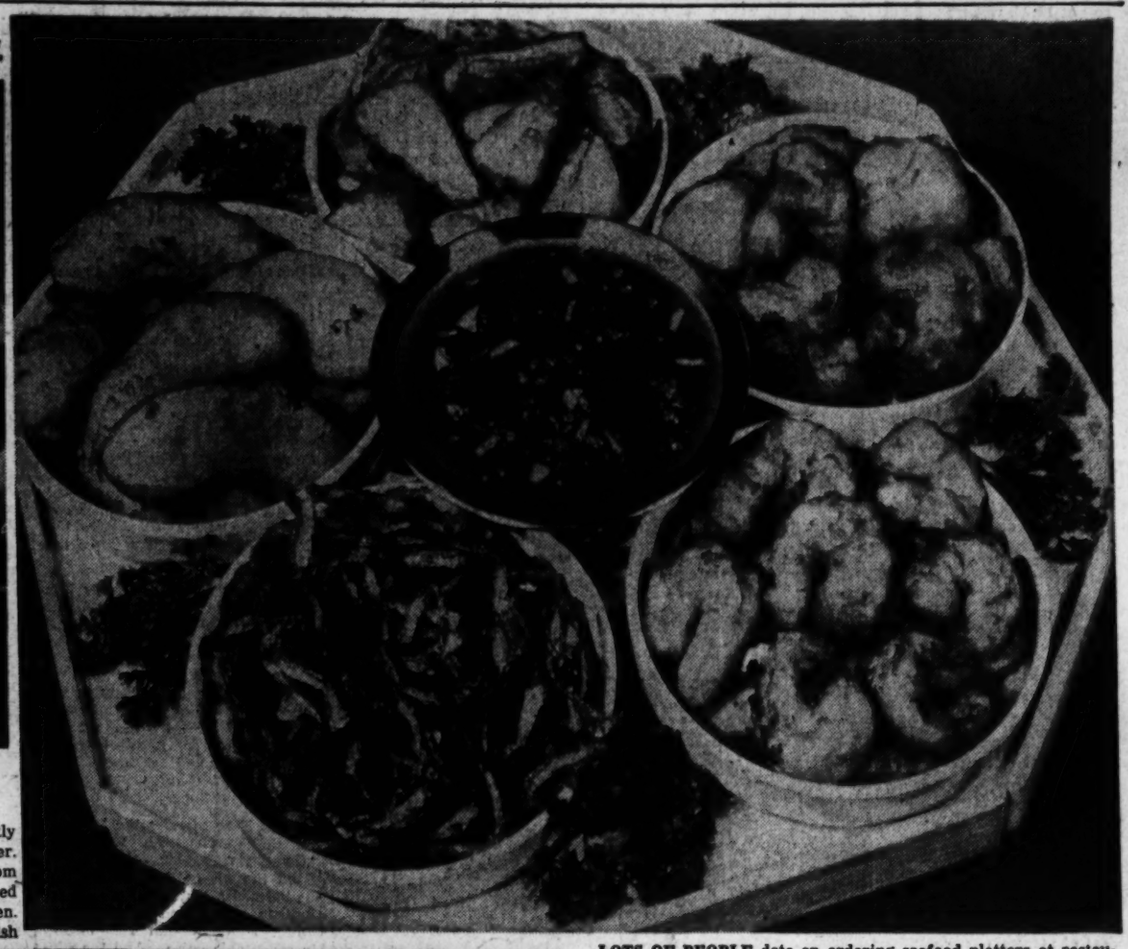
Seafood Stars on Conservation Menu



MERRY THOUGH MEATLESS is the meal that features a cheese-olive-rice ring, filled with creamed eggs or seafood. Here's the way to make this unusually tasty ring:

1½ cups rice
1½ teaspoons salt
2¼ cups boiling water
½ cup thinly sliced celery
¼ cup thinly sliced green onion
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 cup shredded, sharp American cheese
¾ cup ripe olives

Cook rice in boiling salted water, in a tightly covered pan, about 30 minutes, or until tender. Add raw vegetables, cheese and olives cut from pits. Mix lightly with fork. Pack into greased ring mold and heat 10 minutes in moderate oven. Unmold and fill center with creamed eggs or fish



LOTS OF PEOPLE dote on ordering seafood platters at restaurants, but never think of serving them at home. It's almost as easy (and much more interesting) to cook an assortment of seafood—shrimps, scallops and oysters, for instance—as just one kind. Pineapple wedges, dipped in batter and fried, and French-fried onions are both tasty accompaniments for the seafood

Your Questions On Homemaking

How would you refinish an oak chest of drawers which is in the bath room so near the basin it is often spattered? Would it be more serviceable to paint white or refinish with an oak stain and varnish? B. A.

I think you will find that painting your chest white will make it much easier to care for in its present position. If the old finish is in poor condition, remove it with varnish remover and sand the surface until smooth. Wipe with a lintless cloth to remove all dust. Now, apply two undercoats. The undercoat should be the kind of paint which dries without a gloss, that is, flat drying wall paint or enamel undercoater. Thin the first coat with 1 part of turpentine to 3 parts of paint. For the next coat, use it just as it comes from the can. Each coat should be allowed to dry thoroughly before applying the next. Sand the undercoats with very fine sandpaper to smooth the brush marks and then apply the finish coat.

YOU CAN SERVE OCEAN-FRESH FISH for dinner any place, any time—and at reasonable prices, too—with quick-frozen fish so plentiful on the market. There's no waste at all when you buy fillets such as those in the picture above. These are broiled and flanked by rolls of asparagus, garnished with a tasty sauce. Lemon slices also accompany fish and a side dish of tartar sauce

The Market Memo

SERVED any smoked or salt fish lately? The season is right for it, the supply is good and the price about the same as last year. Broiled salt mackerel or herring for breakfast is a tasty dish . . . saves bacon, too, and aids the conservation program . . . and there's nothing better than smoked salmon for hors d'oeuvres.

Rockfish is about the only fresh fish coming out of the Chesapeake now, although the oyster catch is large. Most of the oysters are going to the Middle West now, and the price here is high. Shrimps from Louisiana are plentiful . . . but since the shrimp fleet doesn't go out in the Gulf of Mexico during Christmas holidays, we'll have to fall back on frozen shrimp then. There is very little fresh crab meat now and it is extremely high. Red snappers are coming in, as well as a few shad from Florida. Our own Chesapeake shad, with its delicious roe, won't be on the market until after the middle of January.

Food gifts for Christmas: Maple sugar, made in the form of small Santa Clauses . . . plum puddings that come in crockery baking dishes or glass bowls . . . boxes of assorted marmalades and jellies . . . boxes filled with small packages of various cheeses . . . jars of toasted, spiced almonds . . . boxes of pecan meats—all available in Washington stores.—LUCIA BROWN.

Peach Crumble made with Canned Peaches

SPICED MEAT AND GLAZED YAMS

2/3 cup apple juice and canned meat liquid (mixed)
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 tablespoons fat
1/8 teaspoon salt
12-ounce can spiced luncheon meat
4-6 yams or sweet potatoes, cooked, peeled (and left whole)

Combine apple juice, meat liquid, brown sugar, fat and salt in deep 9-inch skillet. Boil 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Place meat in center of skillet, and surround with yams. Cover and simmer 20-25 minutes. Baste with sirup several times during cooking to glaze meat and yams. 4 servings. Variation: Substitute canned pineapple juice for apple juice, reducing brown sugar to ¾ cup.

Mme. Koo to Be Guest At Fashion Luncheon

Mme. Koo, wife of the Ambassador of China, will be honor guest at a luncheon to be given at the United Nations Club tomorrow at 12:30, when Yvette of New York and Shanghai will give a Washington showing of her latest creations.

Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, chairman of the China Mart to be given at the Chinese Embassy on Tuesday, December 16, is also chairman of the luncheon. The original plan had been to have this fashion show at the benefit, but with crowds milling about at the Christmas sale it was decided to show the Yvette models during this luncheon. Helen Hess is to be the commentator.

Man, 35, Confirmed Bachelor, So He Thought, Falls in Love With Woman Seven Years Older; Friends Remark Age Difference; Is It Crucial?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I thought I was a confirmed bachelor until I met Agnes sometime ago. I am 35 and she is 42. We are very much in love and need companionship. We both have responsible jobs, working for the Government.

We have considered marriage very seriously, but many of our friends remark the noticeable difference in our years. Should we let this stand in our way? Please advise at your earliest convenience, as we feel it imperative to reach a final decision soon. F. B.

Why Bachelor Shifts Sails

DEAR F. B.: In certain components of his emotional make-up, the supposedly confirmed bachelor is still too involved in infantile feelings for the mother, or too closely attached to her if she still lives, to feel capable of adult-type heterosexual love-relatedness to a mate.

Consequently, if he finds himself (somewhat to his surprise) seriously considering marriage in later years, usually it is because (1) on the one hand, he is at heart acutely lonely and (2) on the other hand, has drifted into sentimental association with a woman whom he "identifies" with his mother; due either to elusive physical resemblance, comparable traits of temperament or other evocations of the "mother-image."

Thus if he marries the lady, his decision — though supposedly "thought through" — will derive from the unconscious notion that he has at last found the substitute-mother, with whom he can reconstruct a mother-son relationship in acceptable guise. And the success of the union, or at any rate his contentment therein, will depend upon whether this hidden expectancy is adequately met.

Many Men Seek Maternal Wife

IN THE EVENT the union is childless and the lady is a strongly maternal type, competent and willing to shelter, "baby" or "look after" him, deriving deep satisfaction from doing just that, the marriage should be mutually solacing from first to last. And if the wife is older than the man, the fact can't be construed as a handicaping difference—since indeed her seniority contributes subtly to the love-bond in their case.

It is my hope that the foregoing slant will give you some insight into the pattern of your matrimonial interest in Agnes; and if you agree that the comment is applicable, you need not feel that your preference is peculiar. Many love-matches are made on this basis; hence if you and Agnes are greatly congenial, I should think the age-angle might be dismissed as no obstacle to happy marriage.

Pinhoe Committee Will Hold Sale

The Washington Committee for Pinhoe will hold a three-day sale at Christ Episcopal Church at 31st and O sts. in Georgetown Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, December 16, 17 and 18, to sell some of the more valuable pieces left over from the bazaar held at the British Embassy on December 2.

Because of the crowds at the embassy it was impossible to display some of the handsomer pieces, such as paintings and water colors, antiques, brocades and silks, hand-painted trays, antiques and toys. Also, since the bazaar many more contributions have been received by the committee, all of which are to be sold for the benefit of the child health clinic and community center in Pinhoe.

The public is invited to attend this postbazaar.

Adm. Nimitz, Gen. Vandegrift Share Honors at Cocktail Party

TOP Navy and Army officials in town turned up at the Carlton yesterday to attend the cocktail party given in honor of Fleet Admiral and Mrs. Chester W. Nimitz and Gen. and Mrs. Alexander Archer Vandegrift. The occasion marked the admiral's retirement as chief of naval operations and the general's retirement as commandant of the Marine Corps.

The hosts and hostesses, Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John L. Sullivan, Undersecretary of the Navy and Mrs. W. John Kenney and Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, took turns receiving with the honor guests.

Those who attended included Cabinet members and their wives, members of the Senate and House Armed Services Committee, the Chairman of the Appropriations Committee of the House and Senate, and the Armed Services Subcommittee on Appropriations.

Admiral Louis E. Denfeld and Gen. Clifton B. Gates, successors to Admiral Nimitz and General Vandegrift, were prominent among the guests. Others in the impressive company included Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. W. Stuart Symington, Gen. and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Roscoe Hillenkoetter, president of the Central Intelligence Agency, and Mrs. Hillenkoetter; Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Hecht, Dr. Vannevar Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hargrave.

As well as Admiral and Mrs. William F. Halsey, Gen. and Mrs. H. H. Arnold, Gen. and Mrs. Carl Andrew Spaatz, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Harry W. Hill, Admiral and Mrs. William H. P. Blandy, Vice Admiral and Mrs. Arthur W. Radford and Admiral and Mrs. John E. Tower.

Peruvian Physicians Honored Here

THREE distinguished physicians visiting here from Peru —Dr. Carlos A. de la Puente, president of one of the Rotary Clubs of Peru; Dr. Oscar Guzman del Villar and Dr. Cesar Belaunde—have been widely entertained during their stay. They will leave today for New York to spend a week, returning here for another visit before going back to Peru.

The Charge d'Affaires of Peru, Humberto Fernandez-Davila, and Carlos Alzamora, Commercial Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy, were hosts at luncheon for their countrymen on Monday at the embassy, and on Tuesday Dr. Juan Bautista de Lavalle, Peruvian Ambassador to the Pan American Union, entertained them at luncheon.

The Rotary Club of Washington were hosts at luncheon in their honor on Wednesday, and that evening the visitors were guests of the Argentine Ambassador, Dr. Oscar Ivanissevich, at dinner.

Dr. and Mme. Toutorsky Give Musical Evening

DR. AND MME. BASIL TOUTORSKY entertained at the fourth in a series of musical evenings last night. The program of Christmas music was given by the Antonian Glee Club under the direction of Miss Barbara Von Wald.

Among the guests were the Honduran Ambassador and Senora de Caceres, the Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro, and the Czechoslovak Ambassador and Mme. Slavik.

Mrs. Woodward Luncheon Hostess

MRS. CLARK H. WOODWARD was hostess to a company of 12 at luncheon yesterday at the Army and Navy Club in honor of Mme. de Medeiros, wife of Vice Admiral de Medeiros, Naval Attache of the Brazilian Embassy.

Guests included Mrs. James Foskett, Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. Sherwood Taffinder, visiting here from Newport before leaving for Florida; Mrs. Cleveland McCauley, Mrs. C. C. Hartigan, Mrs. George Meyers, Mrs. Adolph Buquor, Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mrs. Edward Elliott and Mrs. Alva Brewer.

Ray Henles Entertain Gridiron President

A PLEASANT prelude to the Gridiron Club's annual dinner Saturday night, was the dinner last night at the Shoreham given by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Henle in honor of Harold Talburt, president of the Gridiron Club, and Mrs. Talburt. Sharing honors with them were Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Simmons of Decatur, Ill.

Speaker of the House Joe Martin was ranking guest in the company of 30.

Inter-American Goodwill Group Holds Party

FIRST of the Inter-American Goodwill parties to be given by the recently organized group, was held yesterday at the home of Senora de Mora, wife of the Uruguay Minister, to honor her country. Hostesses on this occasion were Senorita Minerva Bernardino, president of the Inter-American Commission of Women; Mrs. Charles W. O. Bunker, Mrs. Frank Morrow, Mrs. Emil Hurja and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mme Rybar and Mrs. Leon Tashof.

Senorita Gladys Mora, daughter of the hostess, took the ladies on an imaginary tour of her country with her vivid description of rolling plains with giant grass dotted with multi-colored wild flowers; of beautiful sandy beaches rimmed with ultra modern hotels and villas; of deep green forests, towering skyscrapers overlooking spacious parks, famous for their rose gardens. And with Senorita Zulita Fernandez-Davila of Peru, both in gaucho costumes, they danced the graceful "el gato."

Senorita Mora also told of the brilliant threatrical and concert seasons and explained the important influence of the arts on the Uruguayan people.

Stimulating mate, a popular drink throughout South America, was served as well as tea and chocolate with tea time delicacies, peculiar to Uruguay.

Although the smallest of the South American nations, Uruguay was the first Latin-American country to adopt social legislation, Senorita Mora said. Also it's the only nation in the world to offer free graduate courses in all sciences and professions to all students, native or foreign born.

Uruguay was the first sister republic to break relations with the enemies of the United States in both World Wars and it was on Uruguayan shores that the Graff Spee was sunk. Senorita Mora went on to say that Uruguay, a pioneer in modern progressive legislation, has a profound respect for humanity and the rights of the individual and in many respects is similar to the United States. Many of her heroes were native sons of the soil.

Among those present yesterday were Senora de Belt, Senora de Vargas Martinez, Senora de Thomen, Senora de Carpenter, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. George W. Malone, Mrs. Conger Pratt, Mrs. Claude Beddington, Mrs. Clark H. Woodward, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Thomas Moran, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Senora de Baron, Mrs. Bissett Norment, Mrs. William H. Watson, Mrs. Blake Clark, Senora de la Colina, Mrs. Alfred W. Johnson, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. J. F. Friant, Mrs. Luther Sheldon and Mrs. Wilbur Carr.

Expressing her own opinion on the subject, she asserted, "I believe Government has the right to expect loyalty from its employes, but employes also have the right to expect respect of their civil rights."

Miss Ruth Cowan, president of WNPC, presided over the program which was broadcast over The Washington Post Station, WINX.

Donor Banquet and Dance To Be at Mayflower

Washington Junior Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives Relief Society of Denver, Colo., will hold its tenth annual donor banquet and dance Saturday night, December 13, at the Mayflower Hotel. Abe Fortas, former Undersecretary of the Interior, will be the guest speaker.

This event is the local chapter's largest fund-raising project of the year, according to Miss Rose Glubin, president. In past years it has raised about $2500. Each member and guest will have earned the admission fee by actual work.

Funds raised are used to support the society's nonsectarian sanatorium at Spivak, Colo., to give relief and treatment, without charge, to persons from all sections of the country suffering from tuberculosis.

Miss Yetta Goldman is chairman and Miss Sylvia Lasky is cochairman of the donor banquet and dance.

Kappa Beta Pi to Have Founders Day Dinner

Province II of Kappa Beta Pi International Legal Sorority will celebrate founders' day with a birthday dinner on Saturday, December 13, at the Parrot Restaurant, at which each chapter will provide entertainment, the nature of which is to be a surprise.

The sorority was founded at the Chicago Kent School of Law on December 15, 1908, the first legal sorority in the world.

The local chapters, which have a membership of over 400, are Epsilon Chapter, Washington College of Law; Nu Chapter, George Washington University Law School; Omicron Chapter, National University; Eta Alumnae and Beta Gamma Chapter, Columbus University.

Miss Estelle Berliner, former dean of Omicron Chapter, is in charge of arrangements.

Doings of the Day . . .

John H. Ferguson, an executive director of the Committee for the Marshall Plan, will be guest speaker at the Smith College Club luncheon, 12:30 p. m. at Parrot Restaurant. He will speak on "Prospects for European Recovery" . . . Massachusetts State Society will have its Christmas party at 10 p. m. at Shoreham Hotel. This will be the second in a series of formal dances . . . Officers Wives Club of the United States Public Health Service will meet at 12:30 p. m. in the clubhouse. Dr. H. van Zile Hyde, State Department liaison officer, will discuss "World Health Organization" and a dessert bridge will follow.

Miss Champion's Collection

Ballerina's Frothy Costumes Are Starred as Evening Style

Rent

MARGE CHAMPION
. . . Her costume is latest style

It rarely happens that a stage costume turns out to be the latest fashion. But that is what happened to Marge Champion's colorful collection of 15 ballerina-type dance frocks.

Of course, it isn't so unusual, when you realize that Margé is a ballerina herself. She is the feminine half of that extraordinary dance team which is currently appearing in the Mayflower Lounge. As a finished ballet dancer, she has been pirouetting since she was 13 years old. And she has always worn costumes designed with tight, fitted bodice and swirling, above ankle-length skirt.

"And now, here I am, right in style," says petite Marge, motioning toward the rack that holds her pretty, filmy gowns. Practically anyone of them, with a few alterations could be worn to a dinner or party. Minus a few of the ruffled petticoats and elaborate trimming which is used to give a dramatic effect, they would all turn into perfect short evening dresses.

Marge's costumes are the handiwork of her mother-in-law, a dress designer in Hollywood. The elder Mrs. Champion does all the intricate sewing and most of the designing. But Marge and Gower, her slim, young husband of seven weeks, think up many of the designs. "Gower," says Marge with wifely pride, "has the best ideas of any of us."

Frocks Are Weighty

Several of her ballerina gowns weigh 5 or 10 pounds, although they give the appearance of being light and frothy. It is the amount of underskirts that causes the scales to tip. Padded and braced on the inside, each skirt is comprised of four or five layers. The two outer ones are of tissue thin silk or chiffon, the top one matching the bodice.

One of the loveliest in her collection is of midnight blue chiffon with shirred bodice. Across one side of the frothy skirt is a dramatic flower design of chalk white rope. Another is of apricot chiffon with huge flowers hand painted on the skirt in rust and gold tones.

"Everything is fine until we start packing," sighs Marge. "Then it takes two big wardrobe trunks to hold all these clothes."

Because she doesn't want the additional care of an elaborate private wardrobe Marge takes only the barest essentials with her on tour. But like most Californians, she owns gay and wearable clothes. With her in Washington she has one red wool gabardine suit and a handsome red tweed topcoat; a black suit and dressy black wool coat; two black dresses and a couple of lounging costumes. For variety's sake she keeps a large supply of blouses, sweaters and scarfs.

PEGGY PRESTON

Bright Colors Shout Yule Greetings

There's a new vividness to colors used in this year's Christmas cards. Eye-stopping reds and luminous greens are especially prominent, often as solid color backgrounds for a striking individual figure like Santa mounting his sleigh or whimsical angel touching up a star from a bucket of yellow paint.

This outburst of brilliant colors may be explained psychologically, believes the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

"The startling color combinations give expression to the widespread public reaction against restrictions and frustrations of wartime and current postwar living," the designers say.

pleasing. It is that one is supposed to have as many kinds of good luck as pieces of different fruit cakes one eats on New Year's Day. This coming New Year's Day, I thought I should like to use that idea as the piece de resistance of my "open house" a la my small apartment, and I wondered if you would not be good enough to make some suggestions for rounding out the affair. Most of my guests, alack, would be spinsters like myself, hence would think it best to have hours from late afternoon to midnight. Eggnog mostly would be my drink, plus coffee for the very dry. Perhaps some of your readers know something of the traditions under which the superstition about the fruit cake originated. If so, I should like to learn them, too. M. M.

The superstition you mention is an interesting and attractive one which I had never heard before. Perhaps some reader can tell us more about its origin. I'm not sure from your request for ideas for "rounding out" the party whether you want food suggestions or to know about other traditions or superstitions that might be carried out. If it's the former it seems to me that, with the addition, perhaps, of candies and nuts, your planned menu of several kinds of fruit cake, eggnog, and coffee should be adequate for an open house. You could, of course, have a variety of fancy sandwiches, too, and some gaily decorated cookies. Or, if you want to have a more hearty fare available, you could have a cold baked ham to slice and serve with hot or beaten biscuit, some interesting type of cheese with crackers, perhaps a bowl of salad and another of various fruits. It's rather difficult to suggest a menu without knowing just what you have in mind.

In "The Book of Days," by R. Chambers (published by Lippincott) are some interesting facts about traditional ways of celebrating New Year's. In Coventry, it seems, if not in other places in England, it was customary to eat "God-cakes" on New Year's Day. These were triangular in shape, about half-an-inch thick and filled with a kind of mince meat.

Drinking "lamb's wool" (spiced wine or ale) from a wassail bowl is another old New Year's custom. An old Scotch recipe is given in "The Book of Days" (which should be available in your local library.) It tells how to make the "lamb's wool" with spices, wine and eggs, and serve it with roasted apples floating in the bowl.

Can you give me a recipe for sugar plums? They are round white candies with filberts in the center. My husband doesn't consider Christmas complete without them, and they aren't available in the stores here in Wyoming. Also, none of my cook books give them. M. S.

I should think that filberts rolled in fondant would come as near to the commercial Sugar Plums as any candies you could make at home. Here is a recipe for fondant: 2 cups sugar, 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons light corn syrup. Put sugar, water and corn syrup in saucepan and stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Do not let boil until all sugar is dissolved. Boil, covered, about 3 minutes to dissolve crystals that collect on sides of pan, remove cover and boil uncovered and without stirring until small amount of the syrup forms a soft ball when dropped into cold water. During the boiling, occasionally wipe the crystals off the side of pan with a damp cloth wrapped around a knife. When soft ball stage is reached, remove from fire, wait until boiling stops, then pour onto a platter. When lukewarm (just warm to the hand) work with a spoon until it becomes white and creamy. For creamy fondant it is important not to work while at all hot. Add flavoring desired (almond would be nice with filberts) and then knead until smooth. Store overnight in covered jar and shape around filbert nuts into balls.

Please tell me how to clean an oil painting,—probably soiled from the oil heat. Also, how can the gilt frame be cleaned without actually regilding it. S. D.

Before you attempt to clean the painting, wipe a small spot in the corner with a damp cloth to see whether or not the paint will resist water. If any color comes off on the cloth you should not clean it at home, but send it to a professional. Here's a cleaning method recommended by one expert: Place a mild soap or castile soap on a soft cloth which is wet, but not dripping. Gently rub on the painting in a circular motion. When the painting has been gone over, the soap and dirt are taken up with another soft clean damp cloth. When the painting is clean, the remaining water is not wiped, but thrown off with a jerk or two. The painting is then stood at an angle, not vertical or flat, in a warm airy place to dry. To check the soiling of the picture in the future and make it easy to wipe the dust away, the painting can be varnished when it is thoroughly dry. Suitable varnishes can be had at art stores. One way of cleaning the gilt frame is with a half-and-half mixture of alcohol and household ammonia applied with a camel's hair brush. After a few minutes for softening the dirt, it is removed with clear water which has also been applied with a brush. The water that remains is shaken off and frame stood on edge to dry. Since the layer of gilt is so very thin on these frames, extreme care must be taken during the cleaning process not to remove any of the gilt.

I have a plastic shower curtain which has become stiff evidently from absorbing soap. I have tried scrubbing it with a brush, but don't seem able to remove the soap film. What would you suggest? L. A.

Some plastic shower curtains become stiff with use due to the action of the hot water and soap on them. However, the soap film can be removed by sponging the curtain with a cloth moistened with vinegar. Lay the curtain on a flat surface to sponge it. After you have removed all the film, wash with mild soap and rinse. Dry thoroughly.

Ageless 'Peter Pan' Lives Again In Children's Theater Play

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

"GO Ahead, I dare You!" taunts a 4-year-old elf, Teddy Katzoff as he watches 3½-year-old Tracy Mullen get ready to apply makeup for her role of a fairy in the play

"COME With Me to the Never-Never Land:" Expert props enable Peter Pan (Joan Fay Macaboy) and Wendy (Barbara Feldman) to fly away in the Children's Theater's production of the Barrie classic. Casting a skeptical eye during dress rehearsal at Roosevelt High School is Georgianna Cozzens, who plays the part of Baby Michael Darling

IT'S tough work, this rehearsing: A girl's got to be dramatic if she wants to get ahead in show business, muses 9-year-old Gloria Gottlieb, one of the Indian dancers who protect the Lost Boys from Captain Hook

By Peggy Preston

Barrie's ageless "Peter Pan," the little boy who didn't want to grow up, came to life last night for a group of children from Washington's settlement houses and orphanages.

Occasion was the season's first presentation by the Children's Theater of Washington, which is sponsored by the D. C. Recreation Department. It took place in Roosevelt High School Auditorium and was a special dress rehearsal preview in honor of the little guests. The same production will be open to the public tonight at 8:15 and Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

"Peter Pan" is the result of seven long weeks of rehearsal on the part of Miss Rose Robison Cowen, director, and her troupe of young actors. Eighty youngsters, ranging in age from 3 to 16, make up the two casts, which perform alternately. All 80 of them, toddlers included, wear costumes which are authentic in every detail.

More than 360 props are used, many of them made by the children themselves. They are remarkably well done and adults and children alike will want to shout with glee at many a well remembered scene. There is, for instance, the little "fairy" house that the Lost Boys build around their beloved Wendy in order to make her feel at home in the "Never-Never-Land."

Nautical Trimmings

The Lost Boys (the ones who fell out of their prams when they were babies and were never found again) like to live independently and have their own little houses underground. These are entered through doors in life-sized tree trunks which are on-stage. Captain Cook's sinister pirate ship, complete with nautical trimmings is one of the outstanding props. And, of course, there is the hungry crocodile and "Nana," the fabulous nursemaid-dog that belonged to the Darling family.

Some of the props have proved to be too realistic for the little actors during rehearsals and have had to be repaired or replaced. A fluffy ostrich, made of papier-mache and soft puffs of white cotton was patted so often by tiny hands, that it became flattened, had to be completely remade.

Play Must Go On

One reason for having duplicating casts was to insure production at all times. "Measles, you know," explains Miss Cowen. Just this week the plan paid off when both the boy and the girl who play the role of Captain Hook met with bad fortune. The former injured his leg while playing football, was unable to walk; the girl developed a case of larnygitis, could not speak. But the rehearsal went on as scheduled with the lame lad in the wings, loud speaking the lines and the voiceless miss performing the role onstage in pantomime.

Tickets for "Peter Pan" are priced at 30 cents, 60 cents and $1.20 for reserved seats. They are available at school playgrounds, the D. C. Recreation Department, Washington School of Ballet and Snow Concert Bureau.

Additional performances of the play are scheduled for the Christmas holidays on the afternoons of Monday, December 29 and Tuesday, December 30.

The Children's Theater is now beginning its second season of producing "little plays for little people by little people." Plans for the remainder of the year call for a ballet performance in February; a program of one act plays in March and a professional marionette show in April.

Child's Room Needs Place for Pin Ups

A large piece of denim thumb-tacked to the wall in the child's room will enable him to pin on it all the things he would like to hang up for display. Those wall objects are apt to change every week and would result in ruined wall paper or damaged painted walls if new tacks were allowed with each change. This pinning up stage does not last long but it is very good for the child as it gives him a pride in his work or an interest in his hobby.

Wedding Bells Ring

Dalson—Norton

Miss Mary Belle Norton, daughter of George Howison Norton, this city, was married in Petworth Baptist Church yesterday to Ralph Charles Dalson, son of Victor Dalson of Twin Lake, Mich. The Rev. David Stone officiated.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown with lace bodice and full skirt of candlelight satin with long train. Her illusion veil fell from a satin tiara and she carried an orchid.

Miss Helen Ryan Norton, maid of honor for her sister, was gowned in American Beauty velvet and carried an old-fashioned bouquet. Merle Dalson served his brother as best man and ushers were Thomas Shafferman, William Anderson, Douglas Way and David Shafferman.

After a wedding trip to Michigan the couple will reside in Kentucky.

The bride, a native Washingtonian, attended Stuart Art School and Mars Hill College in North Carolina. Mr. Dalson is a graduate of Benjamin Franklin University.

Exercise for Beginners

You'll Be Healthier If You Tone Muscles

By Ida Jean Kain

The price of a good girdle being no trivial sum, women want to know if doing housework without one will cause the figure to spread. The answer depends on a couple of things, and the amount of tone and elasticity in the muscles that form the abdominal girdle.

With good muscle tone there is no need to wear a girdle except on dress-up occasions. Nature designed a network of muscles to act as support, and working and walking and even sitting in good posture, with the lower abdominal muscles pulled up snugly, strengthens these muscles and keeps them strong.

However, muscles that have been neglected tend to lose tone and, instead of consisting of muscular fiber, there is an infiltration of fat between, which makes the muscular girdle less able to perform its function.

Naturally, when the muscles do not give the proper support, the mechanical support afforded by a good girdle is often necessary, and makes the work less tiring. But it is far healthier to have the support come from your own muscles, for tone in these muscles exercises a quickening power over the vital organs.

Corrective exercises will help restore the tone, elasticity and contractility that the muscular girdle should possess. Beginning exercises should be taken in a position which helps restore the organs to their normal position, and followed by exercises in a position that prevents any strain. Here is a good set for beginners.

Position: Lying on back on floor, with legs resting across seat of chair, sideways. Have hips fairly close to chair and arms down at sides.

Movement: Raise hips off floor to a straight line and at the same time circle arms up and back overhead. Repeat three times and rest, then repeat three times again. In resting, keep legs on the chair, and pull upward with lower abdominal muscles.

Follow through by flexing knees toward chest in this exercise:

Position: Lying on back on floor, feet elevated to a chair seat or low bench. This time the legs are not across the chair seat; merely the heels are on the edge of the chair. Arms down at sides.

Movement: Flex alternate knees toward chest and stretch arms back on floor overhead. Return to position, flex other knee, stretch up with arms and pull slim through the middle. Repeat slowly six times, later twelve.

Things in the Shade of Ecru

Ecru materials are apt to have a bedraggled appearance if washed a number of times. Try adding a cup of strong coffee to the rinse water and see how it will brighten up the faded appearance.

Accident Unit to Get Lectures

A lecture class for members of the police Accident Investigation Unit will be started next month, it was learned yesterday.

Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the traffic division, said plans call for a series of lectures twice weekly, beginning at 1 p. m. There will be two lectures each class day.

Miller said there has been nothing similar since the AIU was organized in September, 1940. The original men of the AIU were given a training course. Since then there have been promotions and other changes, and only a third of the original men are still in the AIU.

The lectures will be primarily for the 40 men assigned to the AIU, but other members of the traffic division may attend, Miller said.

The lectures will cover a wide range of accident investigation, such as report writing, laws of evidence, photography, braking efficiency, court testimony, measurement at the scene of an accident, questioning of operators and witnesses, collection of evidence, and taking of urine and blood specimens.

Lectures will be given by Corpls. Michael McCarthy, Francis H. Dunn, Albert B. Nicholson, Sergt. Roy Ostrom, Pvt. William E. Bricker, Precinct Detective Emmett Waters, Pvt. Horace W. Carmichael, Lieut. William Liverman, Sergt. Edward H. Sennott, jr., Capt. William Cunningham, Capt. Lorraine Johnson and Inspector Miller.

'Button King' Shows Reds Trick or Two

Moscow, Dec. 11 (AP).—The strange story of an enterprising individual who made himself into the "button king" of Moscow was disclosed in "Evening Moscow."

The "button king," a man with organizing talents, turned up just when the Moscow haberdashery trust was without buttons.

He told the haberdashery trust he would undertake to handle the job of furnishing the buttons, provided that the trust would register him on its rolls as a worker doing piecework at home.

The head of the trust agreed.

Supplied Flood of Buttons

The operator started to supply buttons, at first a trickle, then a stream, and finally a veritable flood of buttons.

Then the problem of payment arose. The operator was making far too much to be accounted for as piecework payment for himself alone.

The head of the trust, "Evening Moscow" said, helpfully solved the problem "by promoting him to a position as head of a brigade of 35 people."

In any case his business soon got too big even for his "brigade of 35 workers." It got to the point where he grossed 257,300 rubles (about $70,000) in two months from this trust alone.

So the operator branched out and found another trust to take his surplus production. In the same two months, the paper said, this trust had bought from him 179,000 rubbles (over $30,000 worth of buttons.

Paid Workers Little

The man was found to be purchasing his raw material—plastics—from a phonograph record factory. Then he was hiring workers in a rural area to make his buttons, paying some of them little or nothing.

He was caught when one member of his "brigade," a 70-year-old, half-blind man, was discovered to be pulling down 10,000 rubles a month for "piecework done at home."

What future awaits the manufacturer in the Soviet Union now that his "business game" has been uncovered?

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

Carr Van Sickler and Don Shook, twin piano bandleaders at Madrillon before the war, will open at the Rainbow Room next Thursday. Milton Davis, now at the Rainbow, is giving up bandleading to devote full time to his real estate biz.

OLMSTED'S EXPANDS — TO MIAMI. There'll be an Olmsted's in Miami beginning Sunday night when 500 leading Miamians will be the guests of Leonard John Mitchell at the place's opening. The Miami edition of Olmsted's is at Collins ave. and 27th st., is a third larger than the Washington Olmsted's, is no end chi-chi in a gray and yellow decoration created by Isabel Karekin. Cuisine by Chef Labondance, formerly of Manhattan's Chambord. Some of the country's best diversionists will caper on top of the long bar. Leonard Mitchell will practically give up Washington to operate the Miami Olmsted's, where he'll be greeting plenty of Capital visitors. James Brahms will direct Olmsted's Washington activities.

FIRST "WHITE CHRISTMAS" parade number of the season is being staged by the Casino Royal's Elaine Shaffer Girls. They're all done up like Christmas tree angels in white chiffon and gold sequins . . . Walter Long, new C. R. dance star, does the kind of tap that theatrical producers dream about.

"JEANNETTE" PAID AND PAID. Harold Mertis, brilliant pianist in the Neptune Room, can truthfully say that a gal named Jeannette paid for most of his musical education. While studying at Germany's Leipzig Conservatory, young Harold wrote a light operetta named "Jeannette." Actress Elizabeth Bergner liked it and it was produced by her husband, Paul Czinner, ran for 18 months in Berlin. After that Paul didn't have to bother about budgeting his conservatory expenses.

Merry-Land is going Parisian at dinner time. The new chef is Francois Marechal, formerly of L'Escargot and the Troika. His forte is sirloin steak stuffed with mushrooms.

Ray Eberle

BANDSTANDING. Joe Masters of the flashy piano technique and his new dance band have taken over at the Fiesta . . . Femmes at Club Kavakos are cooing over handsome Ray Eberle, who was chief crooner with Glen Miller before he became a bandleader . . . When Hi Hat visitors listen to Paul Kain's group they're getting a prevue of orchestra stars-to-be at Glen Echo next summer . . . The Art Calevas trio that opened at Quonset some months ago is creating fine song and dance rhythm interludes at Club Cairo. The larger Cairo band, directed by Violinist Jerry Rodis, is one of the silkiest hereabouts . . . The musical aces of the Old New Orleans, Bob Simpson, Ted Alexander, Frank Coviello and Tony Gaudio, are doing some frantic tax-hopping in order to appear at the Capitol Theater for six shows a day and also keep to their dance music schedule at ONO . . . Grish Gregory, Balalaika's 6-foot-plus bandleader, will toss a pre-Christmas party next Sunday.

Publicitress Babs Lincoln of the Mayflower says that quite a number of gents are making reservations for the luncheon fashion show in the hotel's lounge next Monday. They get fevered up over the event as soon as they discover it'll feature negligees and lingerie.

GET-TOGETHERING. The Trade Winds Room at Ruby Foo's has been a-teem with cheerful events, including Georgetown U. fraternity dances, high school sorority luncheons, meetings of the Washington Alumni Association and a dentists' dinner . . . The Good Earth is the scene of regular dinner meetings of Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity and the Claims Men's Association.

A WATCH COLLECTOR is Michel, owner of Michel's. Also, he always carries four watches, two on his wrists and two in his pockets. They include one that strikes the hours, a six-handed watch that gives the day of the month and week, if I remember rightly, and a standard watch. Also a stopwatch that may be handy for timing bus boys.

AMONG THE GIRLS. A fairy godmother must have smiled over the cradle of Monica Lewis, now at the Statler. She has big brown eyes, curly red hair, a raft of dimples—and that coaxing voice. . . . Prettiest figure in the floor shows belongs to another redhead, Eileen Joy at the Lotus . . . Dona Mason of the King Cole Room is daintly comic in "The Boy Who Stuttered and the Girl Who Lisped" . . . Maurita Gordon, who pianos so elegantly at the Uptown cocktail lounge, dearly loves to play pinochle . . . Singer Paula Rae of the Lounge Riviera is sirenish, slithery and suave in her new black satin formal that fits as if it were painted on her . . . Dolores Gilbert, pianist at Ciro's, is a stanch little New Englander. She comes from Fall River, Mass. . . . Leath Matthews, singer with Frankie Condon's band at the Nightingale, dotes on malted milks with eggs and chocolate sundaes—but stays as slim as if she lived on Ida Jean Kain diets.

League Organized To Give Reds Free Ticket to Russia

Hartfort, Conn., Dec. 11 (AP).—The Connecticut secretary of State's office approved papers yesterday organizing the American Anti-Communist League, whose slogan is a "Free One-Way Ticket to Moscow."

Albert B. Epstein, a restaurant cashier and one of the founders, said the league will give a "free, first class, one-way ticket to Moscow" to any American Communist who renounces his citizenship and promises to "go to Russia and stay there."

Epstein said:

"I lived in Russia at the time of the revolution and have had enough of communism."

One on the Aisle—

Hope Clears the Heir

His New Gagfest Is Battle Royal

By Richard L. Coe

ALL YOU ASK of a Bob Hope comedy is that it have plenty of gags to make you laugh. In "Where There's Life," at the Palace, there are plenty of Hope gags and you'll probably enjoy it as much as we did.

This is one of those Hope comedies in which Bing Crosby only puts in a fleeting appearance—this time on a billboard advertising "Blue Skies." Bob has to carry the whole picture and, so far as this department is concerned, the Hope aplomb is quite equal to it.

In "Where There's Life," Bob plays an unwilling heir presumptive to one of those mythical kingdoms. The name of this one is Barovia and its king lies on what looks to be his deathbed, felled by a bullet from the cane (that's right) of an assassin. "The line will not be extinct on my death," explains the king. "When I visited America back in 1915, I married secretly and my son is living in New York."

In New York, son Michael is a disc jockey, about to marry the sister of one of those policemen William Bendix acts with such bluster. The king's followers and enemies decamp to New York, the first group to bring Michael back to Barovia, the second to kill him off. You ought to be able to fill out Bob's adventures from there.

Such a frankly impossible yarn, as you can see, gives Hope scope for his terrified reluctance to face life. "I can't go up in a plane," he remarks, "my fountain pen leaks." He scoots in and out of hotel closets, happily scolds a dead body and faces the predicament of whether it's worse to be a royal target for knives and bullets or to face the anger of a New York cop whose sister appears to have been jilted.

The Hope style is so familiar that it's pointless to go into it here. Suffice it to say that his scriptwriters, Allen Boretz and Melville Shavelson, keep him well supplied with scrapes and gags.

"Visiting Virginia"

As a Barovian general who discovers pretty clothes in New York, Signe Hasso is a pretty foil for the ski-nosed star. Bill Bendix hasn't a great deal to do, but does it with rambunctious authority. The others are knowing delineators of what court officials of places named Barovia must be like.

Also on the Palace bill are a Pete Smith short on water-skiing and the Fitzpatrick travel talk on Virginia, which had that flossy premiere in Luray last week. The travel man's "Visiting Virginia" doesn't begin to do justice to the Old Dominion—he seems to have landed in the stalactites and stalgamites of Luray Caverns and been unable to get out.

Anyway, it's good to have Hope back at the Palace and hear laughter again. The town's looking up, with Hope on F st. and Bobby Clark at the National.

THE BARTER THEATER—one of the glories of Virginia not even whispered about in "Visiting Virginia"—is hard to keep up with, so traveled are the Porterfield units. The Barter people, however, will be in Arlington with "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" a week from Saturday, the 20th. The place is Washington and Lee High School at 8 p. m., with tickets on sale at the Willard. Sponsoring the performances, as it has the others and will "The Hasty Heart" on March 25, is the Arlington Country Civic Federation. Barter's "Barretts" also will be played in Fairfax High School on Friday 19, sponsored by the Fairfax Rotary Club.

Picasso, Others Protest Eisler Deportation

Paris, Dec. 11 (U.P.) — Artist Pablo Picasso and 23 other intellectuals have protested the pending United States deportation of Hollywood Composer Hanns Eisler to Germany and invited him to come to France and do music for the forthcoming film "Alice in Wonderland," a United States Embassy spokesman said today.

The protest, made at the request of Charlie Chaplin, was signed by Henri Matisse, Producer Louis Jouvet and a score of artists and actors.

German-born Eisler and his wife were arrested at Los Angeles October 6 on four charges of violating United States immigration regulations, when they entered the country in October, 1940. Eisler was released on $1000 bond and his wife on $500 bond, pending a hearing.

Eisler admitted before the House Un-American Affairs Committee that he once joined the Communist Party.

PART OF A SCHUMANN WEEKEND: Paul Henreid and Katharine Hepburn, as Composer Robert Schumann and his faithful wife, Clara, in "Song of Love," which has returned to the Columbia screen. One of the high points of the film—Clara playing her husband's A minor piano concerto—will be reflected Sunday afternoon at Constitution Hall, when England's great Myra Hess plays the concerto with our own National Symphony

It Won Bette an Oscar

'Jezebel' a Perfect Product Of Hollywood Magnolia Mold

By Leo Brady

In the recent spate of revivals spraying across local screens, it's not surprising to find "Jezebel" at the Warner this week, since it might easily qualify as a typical Hollywood product.

It has a star—Bette Davis, a good supporting cast—Henry Fonda, George Brent, Donald Crisp, Margaret Lindsay, Fay Bainter, and it's all about a strong-headed Southern belle.

If there is any way in which the Confederacy came off on top in the War Between the States, it was literarily and dramatically, and "Jezebel" paints the magnolia-scented, liquid-lipped, joyful-slave era in loving colors.

Still Holds Interest

Originally projected to beat "Gone With the Wind" to the light, it had a lot of supporters who rated it over the Leigh-Gable epical epic. And it will still interest as many people.

The stubborn wench in this case quickly repents of her unscrupulousness, moons around for several months arranging flowers and tightening up around the mouth, and then vindicates herself in one grand, heroic, torchlit final scene. Of course she has to talk her lover's wife into giving up her husband—since apparently the marriage vows in this case didn't include yellow fever among the "worse" or "sickness" possibilities—but Southern and Far Western sentiment combine to pull this off.

Miss Davis performs with a clattering competence that won her an Oscar for this performance, although her revolving hips are cabineted in hoops. She has the nerve early in the picture to accuse a small boy of bulging his eyes, but otherwise seems unaware of the mannerisms which merge all her own roles into one continuous portrayal. In spite of a full repertory of facial contortion, Miss Davis always looks deadpan and lemon-fed to me, and I always have the feeling that any minute she'll blow her top and knock over the camera.

Director William Wyler is guilty of throwing in all kinds of sights and sounds—yelling children, booming cannons, ballroom shots, crowded bars, etc.—to keep the tale moving, but he comes up with two excellent scenes; one in which Henry Fonda is stricken by fever, and the final one in which Miss Davis goes F. Nightingale as penance for her sins.

Fonda and Donald Crisp do fine acting jobs, by the way, and Max Steiner's score is unusually appropriate and moving.

The Gallup Poll

Majority Wants U. S. to Stop Shipment of Goods to Russia

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 11.—Demands in Congress for full information about the extent of our lend-lease shipments to Russia are closely in tune with American public attitudes.

Whatever reasons the State Department has for lend-lease exports to Russia—such as the fact that we import useful material from Russia or the need to encourage normal trade—those reasons have not been presented effectively to the general public.

A substantial majority of voters react unfavorably to the idea of our Government shipping such products as oil, machinery and industrial items to the Soviets while we are being called upon to help check communism in Europe by supporting the Marshall Plan.

Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota Governor and a candidate for the 1948 GOP presidential nomination, declared last week that in 1947 the United States shipped Russia more electrical machinery and apparatus than to England and France combined. He urged a ban on exports of heavy machinery or potential war materials to the Soviets.

The country's attitude toward the issue was probed in a survey conducted just prior to the congressional questioning which prompted the current publicity on our Russian exports. From coast to coast voters were asked two questions. The first was designed to find out how many American voters think goods are being shipped by our Government to Russia. The findings reveal that about half did not know they were.

Do you happen to know whether the United States Government is now shipping oil, machinery and industrial products to Russia?

Yes, it is	52%
No, it isn't	48

The second question, asked of everyone in the sample, was:

Would you like to see the United States Government stop shipments of oil, machinery and industrial products to Russia or should we continue to send these things to Russia?

Stop	71%
Continue	16
Qualified	6
No opinion	7

The principal qualified answers were: "Stop until Russia is more cooperative," "send shipments only after we find out how they are being used," and "send a minimum of goods."

Whether the public would have any objections to private manufacturers and business firms selling goods to Russia in the normal course of trade will be studied in a new survey from coast to coast.

The Senate Appropriations Committee on December 4 ordered the State Department to submit facts on the amount and kind of 1947 shipments to Russia and her satellite nations. The committee asked for figures on lend-lease shipments as well as all other exports.

Civic Group to Discuss Larger Trolley Shelter

The Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring will meet at 8 p. m. Monday in the Liquor Control Board Building, according to president Victor Richter. Need for increased covered space at the Capital Transit Co. terminal at the District Line and Eastern ave. will be discussed. Ralph D. Boyd, president, will speak on the objectives of the newly formed civic planning committee of Montgomery County.

3 Men Pushing Car, But Woman Gets Fined

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 11 (AP).—Acting Judge J. Chesley Williams ruled today that manpower can be as dangerous as horsepower and fined Ruth Gandy for driving while drunk, although her car was being pushed by three men.

Judge Williams levied a $100 fine and suspended Miss Gandy's operator's license for six months.

Committee Confirms Gray to Head VA

The appointment of Carl R. Gray to succeed Gen. Omar Bradley as Veterans Administrator was approved by the Senate Finance Committee yesterday.

The committee also unanimously recommended confirmation of Oscar R. Ewing as Social Security Administrator.

Silver Spring Contest

A complete outfit will be given to the woman who wins a contest at the Silver Dollar Ball tonight from 9 until midnight at Montgomery Blair High School gymnasium in Silver Spring. The Parent-Teacher Association, which is sponsoring the ball, says details of the contest will be kept secret until the dance.

Cotton Resigns As Aide to CIO General Counsel

Eugene Cotton, for five years assistant general counsel to the CIO and to the CIO Steelworkers, yesterday announced his resignation from those two posts, effective January 1.

Cotton said he will practice labor law in Chicago. He has been retained as general counsel of the CIO Packinghouse Workers, with headquarters there.

Philip Murray, CIO president, said he agreed to Cotton's resignation "with the greatest regret."

Said Cotton: "I have felt for some time that the difficulties which face labor in the months ahead, particularly under the impact of the Taft-Hartley Act, call for the greatest possible availability of legal assistance at local levels. I hope my transfer will make some contribution in that direction."

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

"Enemies" Slug It Out—But Only in Public

Readers of Washington newspapers are quite familiar with the frequent verbal clashes between Rufus S. Lusk, secretary of the Building Owners and Managers Association, and Robert F. Cogswell, District rent control administrator.

They're on opposite sides of the real estate fence, and they don't pull any punches as they tear into each other.

COGSWELL

Last week with a bitter and well-publicized controversy raging between the two, Lusk arrived at the University Club one evening — to the great dismay of an attendant.

LUSK

"Uh — Mr. Lusk, sir," he stammered, "maybe you'd better not go in there. Mr. Cogswell is in there, sir."

"Oh, that's all right," murmured Lusk as he breezed right in. "I'm having dinner with Mr. Cogswell."

What the attendant didn't know was that Lusk and Cogswell served in the same outfit in the first World War, and have been good friends for many years.

In private, that is.

SO-SO SEWING WILL DO

We recently carried a letter from Kathryn W. Hughes of 223 Holly ave., Takoma Park, Md., in which she asked for dolls for the girls at Children's Hospital.

Some of the dolls which were contributed were in excellent condition, and will make fine Christmas presents.

But others need a good bit of repair work, and District Liner Hughes has been kept hopping collecting the dolls, buying materials, sewing, patching and all the rest.

So she wonders whether some organization in her neighborhood would like to help out. Does anybody out that way like to sew doll clothes?

MISCELLANY

Thirteen-year-old Johnny Adams of 2726 M st. nw., is currently asking his friends, "For whom did Sir Walter Raleigh spread his cloak?" So far, he has gotten 23 wrong answers and 2 that were right. (The correct answer appears at the end of this item) . . . Emigres from the Lone Star State recognize Francis E. Murray of 4417 Lowell st. nw., as Washington's "official unofficial ambassador from Texas" . . . Did you know that Pepco keeps a record of householders who own dogs?

Apparently they want their meter readers to be properly alert on "dog stops" . . . Mrs. Yung Kwai of 3312 Highland pl. nw., wants to know whether there was a Whitney st. in Washington about 50 years ago—and if so, what happened to it? . . . Today's thanks for streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital go to I. I. Siegel of 201 Maryland ave. ne.; Betty Butler; the gang at 918 F st. nw.; and Mrs.

Samuel Appleton of 2524 17th st. nw. . . . Sir Walter's cloak was spread for Queen Elizabeth.

PERSONAL NOTES

Clayton Henderson, 2239 Pennsylvania ave. se.; R. A. Mack, 3026 Wisconsin ave. nw.; and Rosa Mae Lanham, Boyce, Va.: Thanks for the information about Double Toll Gate, Va. When I finally ran the roundup of answers, I thought the mailman had finished bringing in all the replies.

MEMOS TO JAY AITCH

So his home is his castle
When his wife is away?
Do you think we should crown him
Our "King For a Day?"

Mrs. Martin Learn
1530 Rhode Island ave. ne.

Your castle, indeed,
Would seem mighty bare,
If your good friend wife
Were never there.

ADD SIGNS

J. P. of Newcomb st. se. found this one outside a roadside lunch stand in Maryland:

"Eat Here or We'll Both Starve."

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

J. P. Dutton of 1733 20th st. nw. lifts an eyebrow at the advertisement which recently offered:

"Ice skates—white, genuine cowhide leather, with removable toe stops and fiber wheels."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Tristan Bernard, the venerable French playwright, who died this week, was imprisoned by the Nazis in the third year of the occupation of France. When he and his wife were taken to a Nazi jail, he told her: "Don't worry. For three years we've lived in fear. Now we can live in hope."

Bernard once said that if he had had his choice he would have chosen to live in the time of Napoleon, "because then there wasn't a single man on earth who thought himself a Napoleon."

In Monte Carlo he always wore a yachting cap. "I bought it with my winnings at roulette," he'd explain. "With my losses, I could've bought a yacht."

Bernard once tried to withdraw 40,000 francs which he had on deposit in a branch of the Bank of France, and was told that there were only 12,000 francs on hand. He took the 12,000 and on his way out he said to the bank guard: "Son, you can go home now."

He was a proud patriot who felt that anything which hurt France hurt the entire world. After a short visit to London he reported: "The British are a strange people. They have a Waterloo Bridge, Trafalgar Square, Wellington House—They name their monuments after defeats."

Whenever he sold the movie rights to a play, he'd list the income in his tax return as "damages." "Everyone knows how Hollywood always ruins stage plays," he explained. "So I presume that the money was paid for what they did to my play."

Mrs. Ruth Shipley, the passport boss at the State Department, reluctantly issued a new passport to Doris Duke, who will use it in a few days to join her husband in the Argentine.

Eddie Duchin saw Miss Duke sitting with Ali Kahn, son of the Aga Kahn, at El Morocco one night. Duchin, pointing to the world's richest heir and heiress, said to his companion: "That reminds me. My wife left my money in my old suit at home. Lend me $1.25."

Herbert Brownell, jr., who was Tom Dewey's presidential campaign manager, was asked to comment on the report that Governor Dewey would wait until next year before throwing his hat into the ring for the presidential nomination. "Tom Dewey threw his hat into the ring in 1940," said Brownell, "and never took it out."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Senators Are Rough on Reece

By Drew Pearson

GOP National Chairman Carroll Reece has been dodging so many brickbats his own team, hurled at him by that he ventured nervously up to Capitol Hill the other day waving the white flag.

Reece

His visit was reported by the press, but what didn't get into the papers was the reaction which followed. One group of Republican Senators later dissected him in penetrating whispers on the Senate floor.

"Reece is the best man the Democrats have," bristled Vermont's Ralph Flanders.

To this Harry Cain of Washington and gentle-mannered Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin agreed.

"The Democrats certainly have done a better job of selling what they have accomplished to the country," remarked McCarthy.

Massachusetts cautious Henry Cabot Lodge leafed over and put in his two-bits' worth.

"Every time Reece opens his mouth," he added, "we lose another 10,000 votes."

Note—Nevertheless, a tacit understanding was reached between Reece and his critics that he would stay on the job, though wear a gag in the future. It was agreed that Reece would stick to party organization and leave national policy to the Republican leadership on Capitol Hill.

Four European Friendship Trains

Probably fewer peacetime cargoes were ever transferred from train to ship quicker than the food from the Firendship Train. On the day after the last section of the train arrived in Philadelphia, the SS American Leader of the United States Lines picked up that part of the cargo, and one week later it cleaned up the New York cargo designated for France. This ship will arrive in Le Havre on December 17—well before Christmas.

The second ship, the SS Exiria, of the American Export Lines, sailing from New York today, is due in Italy December 23. The balance of the friendship food will sail on the SS Hoosier State of the States Marine Corp. on December 19, and on the SS Alewai of the Waterman Lines on December 20.

Greetings on Boxcars

In France and Italy, it is planned to run four Friendship Trains, so the people of those two countries can see them and know where the food came from. And just as the Friendship Train in the USA carried big placards of greetings from Ft. Smith, Ark., or Lock Haven, Penn., so the European trains will carry large colored posters, with the American Flag, a picture of the original Friendship Train and a message in French and Italian from the American people.

Argentina Holds Up USA

Miguel Miranda, Argentina's economic czar, is not the man to let sentimentalism interfere with driving a hard bargain—and he doesn't mind saying so, either.

During recent negotiations with a United States military purchasing mission for the sale of Argentine corn, Miranda was at his hardboiled best. Col. Arnold Guilliam, head of the United States mission, objected that the price asked by the government export monopoly was exorbitant. He pointed out that the corn was not being bought for resale but to feed the United States occupation zone in Germany.

The rotund tin-can manufacturer, who now wields more economic and financial power in Argentina than Hjalmar Schacht under Hitler, listened imperturbably to the translation of the colonel's remarks, then snapped:

"I can't help that. We did everything we could to aid the Allies during the war and they repaid us by slapping a blockade on us. And today we can't buy what we need in the United States because their Government won't grant export licenses and won't force manufacturers to deal directly with us, instead of through middlemen who want to make 50 to 100 per cent profit.

"We have to defend ourselves the best we can," Miranda continued. "If they want our corn, they'll have to pay our price. I don't care what they're going to do with it. If the Germans starve to death, what's it to me?"

The interpreter discreetly translated only the most essential part of this impersonal harangue. But Colonel Gulliam got the idea, and in the end the United States had to accept Miranda's asking price—$104.22 (United States) per metric ton for 25,000 tons, the highest figure ever paid for Argentine corn in such volume.

Some service free

We render certain services . . . For which the people pay . . . But there are times in life when we . . . Should give our work away . . . The product of our labor has . . . A value of its own . . . And gradually throughout the years . . . Its prominence has grown . . . Yet now and then and here and there . . . We can afford to pause . . . And give our best ability . . . To help some worthy cause . . . To pave the way for others and . . . To heed The Lord's command . . . That we should live as brothers for . . . The good of all the land . . . So let us learn unselfishness . . . And make our efforts free . . . At least to lend some small support . . . To church and charity.
